Embassy Of Israel In Bangkok Seized

Palestinian Guerrillas Seek Prisoner Release

BANGKOK (UPI) — Four Palestinian guerrillas seized the Israeli embassy today and threatened to blow it up along with six hostages unless Israel released 36 Palestinian prisoners. But tonight they agreed to free the hostages in return for safe conduct from Thailand.

Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chulasapya announced the guerrilla decision to accept safe conduct and a police official said that in return the guerrillas had agreed to release the six Israelis held inside the embassy building for more than 10 hours under a threat of death.

Dawee made no mention of the hostages when he emerged with Egyptian ambassador Mustaffa El Tawi from the embassy after a face-to-face meeting with the guerrillas but the police official said the hostages would be freed.

Dawee, a ranking member of the military controlled government, entered the Embassy with Egyptian Ambassador Mustaffa el Tawi and won the guerrilla promise to leave the country. He said he and Deputy Foreign Minister Chartchai Chunahawan would accompany the guerrillas when they left Thailand. Other officials said that El Tawi would also make the trip, and that the guerrillas would be allowed to keep their weapons.

The Israeli National Radio reported from Bangkok tonight the guerrillas would be flown to Cairo aboard a Scandinavian Airlines plane.

Dawee made the announcement in the floodlit street in front of the Embassy and then after further consultations in a temporary command post across the street, he, Chartchai and the Egyptian ambassador returned to the embassy building. With them they carried two bottles of liquor.

The guerrillas identified themselves as the Black September Organization which carried out the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics and said it was responsible for the massacre at the Lod International airport in Tel Aviv in which Japanese gunmen shot and killed a score of persons.

Dawee emerged from the embassy at 10:35 p.m. , more than 10 hours after the four guerrillas, armed with automatic weapons, took it over. They threatened death to the Israelis inside if their demands for release of guerrillas held prisoner in Israel were not met by 8 a.m. Friday (8 p.m. EST today).

"For the sake of the king and Thailand they have agreed to leave the country," said Dawee who is agriculture minister and an influential member of the military controlled government.

'Heaviest' Hanoi Raid Reported

SAIGON (UPI) — Swedish diplomatic reports said American B52s and fighter-bombers hit Hanoi at noon today in the heaviest daylight bombardment of the war, and the Soviet news agency Tass reported that parts of the North Vietnamese capital had been "erased from the face of the earth."

There were hints in the government-controlled press in Saigon that the North Vietnamese might have had enough and that the raids might be halted above the 20th Parallel in the next few days in order to resume the peace talks in Paris. But the Communist Vietnamese in Paris were still issuing defiant statements.

The U.S. Command reported growing American losses of planes and men in the massive aerial assault but had no word on today's bombing activities. U.S. military sources said strikes against the Hanoi-Haiphong industrial heartland continued today and Communists reports said there were three Hanoi raids today.

The command reported the loss of two more B52s and the shooting down of a Jolly Green Giant rescue helicopter over North Vietnam, bringing to 14 the number of the $8 million strategic bombers lost in the air war that began on Dec. 18.

Hanoi Radio said a North Vietnamese air force plane, presumably a MIG, shot down a B52 some 70 miles southwest of Hanoi on Wednesday. A Hungarian report said three B52s were shot down by fighter-planes.

The North Vietnamese delegation in Paris issued a special statement today saying the American attacks have ravaged areas of Hanoi and Haiphong with the force of an earthquake, killing "thousands" of people. It said North Vietnamese gunners had shot down 71 U.S. aircraft, including 31 B52s, in nine days.

The U.S. Command and the Pentagon gave no reports of any damage to civilian areas and insisted that the planes dropped their bombs only on military targets. The only reports of what actually was happening in the greatest aerial assault of the war came from Communist news agencies and neutral diplomats in Hanoi.

The Hungarian news agency MTI reported today that a blazing B52 shot down over Hanoi Wednesday crashed near the presidential palace and that several crewmen died in the flames. It said the wreckage demolished a few buildings but no Vietnamese were killed.

Final Goodbye To Truman Is Said In Simple Funeral

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) —In a simple funeral fitting for the common man he was, America said goodbye today to Harry S Truman.

After the 20-minute last rites, the nation's 33rd President was buried in the ground he loved, near the rose garden in the courtyard of the Truman Library.

Bess Truman, his aging widow and helpmate for more than half a century, was there to say a final farewell to her beloved Harry. And about 220 relatives and close friends who knew and loved him as companion and neighbor, said goodbye, too, at the plain, private service.

There was no pomp because Truman disdained it. There were no eulogies. There was only prayer.

"Most merciful Father, who has been pleased to take unto Thyself the soul of Thy servant, Harry, grant to us who are still in our pilgrimage, and who walk as yet by faith, that having served thee with constancy on earth, we may be joined hereafter with Thy blessed saints in glory everlasting," said the Rev. H. Lembcke Jr., pastor of the Independence Trinity Episcopal Church.

In death, as in life, Truman's desire for simplicity prevailed. He believed that man provided his own dignity and that pageantry was not needed.

His state funeral, embellished only with military flourishes, taps and a 21-gun salute, still was a modest tribute from a grateful nation to a courageous leader. A memorial service is planned next week in Washington's National Cathedral as a final gesture to the tough, little Missourian.

Some of the old doughboys who served under "Captain Harry" in Battery D during World War I were at the funeral. They stood with the stiffest military posture that age would allow.

The casket was covered with red carnations — Truman's favorite flower. He was buried in his favorite blue pin-striped suit and wore his famed wire-rimmed glasses.

This was the chosen prayer for the funeral: "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die."

Truman himself selected the burial spot in the grassy courtyard. He looked out on it often from the glass wall of his library office where he spent his last years happily surrounded by his White House mementos.

"I want to be buried out there so I can get up and walk into my office if I want to," he once told Army funeral planners.

Truman's mahogany casket was brought to the library, high on a knoll, and placed in the lobby on a black velvet-draped catafalque to lie in state Wednesday until noon EST today.

President Nixon, Truman's old political foe, and former President Lyndon B. Johnson, Truman's close friend and ally, came separately, placed wreaths and left. Neither returned today for the private funeral for Truman, who died Tuesday at the age of 88 after a three-week illness.

Tighter Controls On Surplus Planes Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government safety investigators called today for tighter restrictions on the use of surplus military airplanes, such as the one that crashed into a California shopping center in September killing 22 persons.

In a series of recommendations based on its preliminary investigation of the crash the National Transportation Safety Board urged the Federal Aviation Administration to:

Establish stricter experience and proficiency standards for private pilots who fly surplus military planes.

Tighten flight rules to provide greater separation between air show planes, spectators and nearby residential areas.

Limit the use of surplus military planes by tightening requirements for FAA certificates needed to fly them.

"The establishment of reasonable minimum standards in this area would serve to promote aviation, rather than inhibit it," the board said.

It also said the "built up area around the Sacramento Executive Airport raises serious questions with regard to the suitability for airshows at this and similar airports."

TWO ESCAPE FAIRFAX INFERNO

The Fred Jens home at 95 Forrest Avenue, Fairfax, is a charred ruin today, totally destroyed by a roaring fire at 2 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Jens fled in their nightclothes after being awakened by a family dog. Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger — who saw the blaze while returning from a trip to Santa Rosa — and a neighbor, Wilton L. Dyer of 97 Forrest Avenue, helped rescue the pair and called firemen. Firemen still were seeking the cause of the fire, which did more than $30,000 damage, according to preliminary estimates.

Heerdt Marsh Development Is Given Setback By BCDC Staff

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The staff of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday recommended denial of a permit to develop virtually all of the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera.

The controversial $5.5 million plan by San Rafael developer Frank M. Burke and property owner William J. Heerdt will be voted upon by the commission at 2 p.m. on Jan. 4 in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

Staff recommendations almost always are sustained by the commission. Five previous development plans for the marsh failed to get commission permits.

Burke's plan calls for dredging 21.3 acres for a 335-berth marina and filling 47 acres for commercial recreation and marine industrial uses. Only five acres of marsh would be left undeveloped.

The commission's staff recommended denial on the grounds that the application was not properly before the commission, the project was not necessary to the health, safety or welfare of the public in the Bay Area, and it was inconsistent with the commission's bay plan.

State law requires applicants for commission permits first to seek required permits from the local government having jurisdiction. The applicants, however, only sought approval "in concept" by the Town of Corte Madera — which the town council refused to grant.

The staff recommendation stressed that the commission's law requires that a substantial portion of such projects be built on existing land, while the proposal would put all of its bay-oriented commercial recreation on new fill.

As for the proposed industrial and commercial uses, the staff said, the applicants had not shown there was no alternative upland site.

The staff's four-page report concluded that "the project will cause substantial harm to the bay."

Lester Pearson Dies In Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian prime minister who won the Nobel Peace Prize for helping arrange a cease-fire in the 1956 Suez crisis, died Wednesday at the age of 75.

Dr. P. M. Burton, Pearson's private physician, earlier in the day had confirmed that Pearson had cancer of the liver. Time of death was 11:40 p.m. EST.

Pearson's health had been uncertain since the summer of 1970 when he had a cancerous eye removed. He had been in Florida on vacation but was rushed home Christmas Eve. He lapsed into a coma Wednesday morning.

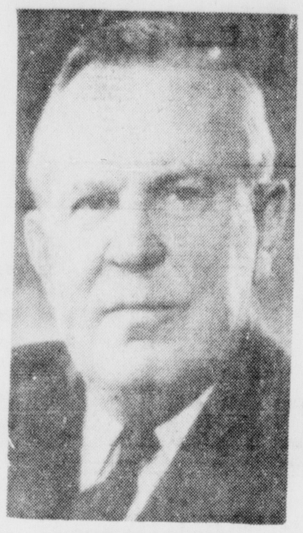
At his bedside when he died were his widow, Maryon, and his son and daughter, Geoffrey and Pat.

Pearson will lie in state in the rotunda in the center block of Canada's parliament building. A full state funeral was planned, but final arrangements were not immediately announced. He was to be interred in a $10 plot he purchased in the late 1940s in Quebec's Gatineau Hills.

"The loss of the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson is a great one, for men like him appear rarely," said Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau. "He was a man of ability and good will who worked the greater part of his life to make the world a better place for others."

In 1956, Pearson personally directed a successful move to obtain a cease-fire in the Suez crisis in which France and Britain had intervened in the Israeli-Egyptian conflict and a major world conflict threatened to explode.

On Nov. 1, 1956, Pearson went before the U.N. General Assembly and proposed a cease-fire in the Middle East to be followed by a supervised police force in the area.



LESTER B. PEARSON
Former prime minister dies

Following his speech, Pearson got support from the United States, which had been considering a resolution of its own calling for the withdrawal of the British and French from the Suez. The resolution was passed 57-0 by the United Nations and within two week U.N. troops with Canadian contigents were in the Suez.

The cease-fire did not end the hostilities but it did buy cooling off time, and when Gunnar Jahn, chairman of the Nobel Prize Committee, presented Pearson's peace award, he told Pearson he had "saved the world."

Pearson served as prime minister from 1963 until 1968, when he was replaced by the current Canadian leader, Pierre Trudeau.

Nixon Team Gives Hints On Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials indicate "Phase III" of President Nixon's economic program may see the dropping of rent controls next year and changes in the profit margin rule disliked by business.

They also indicate food price regulations will escape major tampering when the administration's economic stabilization program is redesigned.

Hints of what government economic controllers have in mind for 1973 emerged in briefings for newsmen by leading federal economic policy makers Wednesday.

President Nixon already has said he wants some form of continued stabilization authority when the present Economic Stabilization Act expires April 30, and officials emphasized that Nixon will have the final word on the shape of the redesigned wage-price controls.

The administration has been gathering suggestions from business, labor, consumers, congressmen and its own stabilization officials for the past two weeks. A sense of the thinking of most participants was revealed by the briefers.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said prolonged rent controls have a "negative effect" on tenants as well as landlords.

"We ought to be on the way out of the rent control business," Stein said.

Stein and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz also suggested that reducing coverage of the controls would improve the efficiency of the government stabilization program and eliminate essentially nonproductive paper work for many businesses.

A senior official of the Cost of Living Council, who asked not to be identified, said the business profit margin rule "has got to change."

This regulation, widely criticized in the business community, limits profit margins (profits as a percentage of sales) for companies who boost prices to the average of the best two of the last three fiscal years.

Businessmen have argued that this base period is no longer realistic. More important, most observers concede that the rule encourages wasteful spending by companies who are bumping against their profit margin ceilings.

With a sigh and a shake of his head Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, told reporters there were three problems to be faced during the next phase of controls: "Food, food and food."

The stubborn rise in food prices, spurred by heavy consumer demand and the fact that prices at the farm level are uncontrolled, has been the biggest headache for the economic controllers.

The administration has consistently argued that controlling raw agricultural products would inevitably lead to rationing and black markets since farmers would cut back their output substantially.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Penalty Lifted

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday that it is lifting the death penalty more than two years after it was made law. It was never used.

Suspension of the death penalty was decreed after a cabinet meeting presided over by President Alejandro Lanusse. One of his predecessors, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, invoked the death penalty on June 2, 1970, the day after extremists claimed they had assassinated former president Gen. Pedro Aramburu.

Aramburu was kidnaped in May, 1970, and his body found six weeks later.

Mars Boiling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The planet Mars is beginning to "boil" inside — the result of heating from radioactive decay — which may well lead to the production of an atmosphere similar to that of Earth, a professor of planetary science said Wednesday.

Dr. Bruce Murray of the California Institute of Technology told the annual winter meeting of the American Physical Society that findings of the Mariner 9 space probe show that Mars is just coming alive.

He said the decay of radioactive heat has started a boiling process within the planet which creates volcanoes and fracturing of the crust.

Murray said the process may well produce the carbon dioxide and water that make up an atmosphere.

Heights Sealed

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops sealed off the Golan Heights to civilian traffic early today in the wake of air strikes Wednesday against three targets in Syria. But military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the situation along the border was calm.

Military authorities closed the Heights to everything except military traffic and vehicles driven by local residents — as they usually do as a precautionany measure when there is a flareup on the Syrian frontier.

No Peace Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Because of Communist protests about the full-scale bombing of North Vietnam and an American request for a holiday break, the four parties at the Paris peace talks scheduled no meeting today. It was the first miss in the talks in two months.

The meeting is usually held every Thursday and so far there have been 171 sessions since the talks began in 1969.

The last break in the talks came Oct. 19 when the four delegations skipped a week while leaders of the European Common Market used the Kleber Avenue hall where peace delegates meet.

Coffee Study

BOSTON (UPI) — A team of researchers has found that coffee may be a factor in causing heart attacks.

"The team found that people who drink more than five cups of coffee a day are twice as likely to suffer heart attacks as people who drink no coffee at all," a spokesman for Boston University Medical Center said last night.

The researchers, headed by Drs. Hershell Jick and Dennis Slone, studied records of 276 heart patients at hospitals in the United States and other countries. They compared them to a control group of 1,100 hospital patients with similar backgrounds who suffered from other ailments.

"They found that all of them varied very little in their medical history — a number of both groups smoked, for instance — but when they additionally compared their coffee consumption, that's where there was a really substantial difference," the spokesman said. "All of the heart attack victim consumed much greater quantities of coffee."

Shoot Order

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Gen. Anastasio Somoza ordered troops to shoot to kill today in enforcing a dusk-to-dawn curfew in the earthquake-destroyed center city in an effort to "restore Nicaragua's honor, our only salvation."

Officials said National Guardsmen bullets killed at least two persons, including a 4-year-old boy, after Somoza warned over an emergency radio broadcast that his troops had been ordered to kill looters. Martial law was declared Saturday but not enforced until Wednesday.

Somoza said the toughened measures were taken "to help protect the people in the area and restore Nicaragua's honor, our only salvation."

Nicaraguan officials said at least 3,000 persons were killed in the three major tremors early Saturday.

Irish Killing

BELFAST (UPI) — British army troops shot a gunman dead Wednesday night in the first killing in Northern Ireland since a Christmas cease-fire by political and religious extremists involved in the province's 3½ year conflict.

Fourteen other persons were wounded in bombings and shootings during a 48-hour period which followed the resumption of hostilities.

British spokesmen said troops shot and killed Eugene M. Devlin, 22, in the town of Strabane on the border with the Irish republic. Another man with him was wounded when an army patrol opened fire after challenging the two men to stop.

No Pay Hike

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The bankrupt Penn Central Railroad will not have to give 44,000 union employes wage increases next Monday as scheduled.

Trustees of the ailing carrier Wednesday told U.S. District Court Judge John P. Fullam they faced a "difficult cash position" and asked for a three-month delay of the pay increases.

Fullam, who is overseeing reorganization of the railroad, agreed. He allowed the trustees to put off until April paying increases totaling about $5.1 million to members of six unions.

Moral Right Of SST Questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of a conservation organization said today that no country has the moral right to create a supersonic transport (SST) that would deplete the world's supply of oil and pollute its environment.

"Oil will have too many far more important uses throughout all the future we can envisage," said David R. Brower, president of Friends of the Earth. "This generation does not have the moral right, and should not have the gall to waste its oil on SST's, whoever builds them."

Brower testified before a joint economic subcommittee hearing, called by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to investigate reports that the administration plans to revive the SST, which was killed by the last Congress.

Administration witnesses refused to testify, although Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe has said publicly that no SST money will be included in the upcoming budget.

However, numerous opponents appeared to testify.

"We deplore the indications that the administration now wishes to try mouth-to-mouth resuscitation of an albatross that should be given a decent burial and forgotten," said Brower. "Organizations devoted to the protection of the environment here and abroad have a heavy enough burden without having to refight battles, properly won at substantial cost, with such frequency."

"As we have tried to make clear before, the supersonic transport is economically unsound. It produces an intolerable level of noise, whether flying supersonically or subsonically.

"It adds to atmospheric pollution, unacceptably at lower elevations and possibly catastrophically at its higher altitudes. It threatens an unconscionable drain on the world's vanishing stores of fossil fuels, oil in particular."

Brower urged Congress to ban all SST takeoffs and landings in the United States and its possessions.

He said that the 500 SSTs that the Boeing Company proposed to build before the program was killed would use up an extra 2 million barrels of jet fuel per day to maintain its extra speed over the same number of passenger miles produced by the Boeing 747.

"That happens to equal the predicted drain on North Slope oil that the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline would carry," Brower said, adding that if all that oil were refined into jet fuel," then the convenience of the jet set would cost the world the entire Alaska discovery "in less than two decades."

Lack Of Period In Truman's Name Explained

INDEPENDENCE, Mo, (UPI) — There always have been questions why no period follows former President Harry S Truman's middle initial.

The answer: his parents wanted no punctuation there and in later years Truman himself asked that none be used. The "S" is in honor of his two grandfathers, named Shipp and Solomon.

The recently published Truman biography by his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Truman Daniel, is titled "Harry S. Truman." The publishers offered no explanation for use of the period.

New Reform Planned In Hot Dog Labeling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surrendering to consumer pressure and a court order, the Agriculture Department has announced plans for a second major round of labeling and content reform for hot dogs.

The first step in response to rising complaints over one of the nation's favorite foods came three years ago. In 1969, officials ended a long dispute by ordering a 30 per cent fat content limit on hot dogs and other cooked sausage products.

Now, officials say new proposals which may take effect early next year will junk current rules under which a hot dog containing water, sweeteners and curing agents can still be labeled "all meat." A federal court had ruled the "all meat" wording was misleading to consumers.

Also repealed would be rules allowing a hot dog containing up to 3.5 per cent nonfat dry milk to be labeled simply "frankfurter."

In a companion step, which had been disclosed earlier, the department said its new hot dog reform plan would also ban the use of meat and poultry byproducts such as lips, snouts and spleens in frankfurters and other cooked sausages bearing ordinary labeling. If byproducts are used in something that looks like a hot dog, the product would have to be labeled "imitation" in letters as large as those used for the word "frankfurter."

The new plan would set up two name categories for frankfurters, bologna and other similar cooked sausage:

—Category One would contain only "skeletal muscle meat," including up to 15 per cent poultry, plus necessary processing ingredients such as water, sweeteners and curing agents. Such products, which currently can be labeled "all meat frankfurter" or "all beef," depending on content, could in the future use only the traditional product name such as "frankfurter."

—Category Two could contain the same ingredients as the first group, but also could contain limited amounts of binders such as nonfat dry milk or soy protein. Under present rules such products are labeled "frankfurter," but in the future they would have to bear a more descriptive title such as, for example, "frankfurter, nonfat dry milk added."

Harvard Begins A Smoking Study

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Harvard Medical School began Tuesday a five-year, $2.8 million study of the relationship between smoking and heart and lung disease.

Eight tobacco companies are funding the project. Dr. Gary L. Huber of Boston City Hospital said there may be "many other factors, not so well publicized" involved in heart and lung disease, such as heredity, air pollution and other environmental factors.

"A direct causal relationship for any of these or other environmental factors has not been clearly demonstrated," Huber said.

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California Highway Patrol made an all-time high total of drunken driven arrests during the Christmas holiday, but CHP Commissioner Walter Pudinski says the record for a 72-hour holiday period may fall during New Year's weekend.

Pudinski reported Wednesday that 2,500 drunken driving arrests were made during the Christmas weekend. The total was more than double the number arrested during a normal 72-hour period.

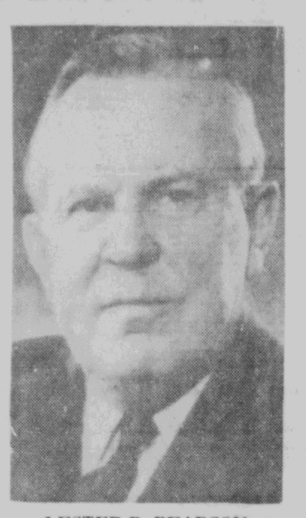
Lester Pearson Dies In Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian prime minister who won the Nobel Peace Prize for helping arrange a cease-fire in the 1956 Suez crisis, died Wednesday at the age of 75.

Dr. P. M. Burton, Pearson's private physician, earlier in the day had confirmed that Pearson had cancer of the liver. Time of death was 11:40 p.m. EST.

Pearson's health had been uncertain since the summer of 1970 when he had a cancerous eye removed. He had been in Florida on vacation but was rushed home Christmas Eve. He lapsed into a coma Wednesday morning.

At his bedside when he died were his widow, Maryon, and his son and daughter, Geoffrey and Pat.



LESTER B. PEARSON
Former prime minister dies

Pearson will lie in state in the rotunda in the center block of Canada's parliament building. A full state funeral was planned, but final arrangements were not immediately announced. He was to be interred in a $10 plot he purchased in the late 1940s in Quebec's Gatineau Hills.

"The loss of the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson is a great one, for men like him appear rarely," said Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau. "He was a man of ability and good will who worked the greater part of his life to make the world a better place for others."

In 1956, Pearson personally directed a successful move to obtain a cease-fire in the Suez crisis in which France and Britain had intervened in the Israeli-Egyptian conflict and a major world conflict threatened to explode.

On Nov. 1, 1956, Pearson went before the U.N. General Assembly and proposed a cease-fire in the Middle East to be followed by a supervised police force in the area.

Following his speech, Pearson got support from the United States, which had been considering a resolution of its own calling for the withdrawal of the British and French from the Suez. The resolution was passed 57-0 by the United Nations and within two week U.N. troops with Canadian contigents were in the Suez.

The cease-fire did not end the hostilities but it did buy cooling off time, and when Gunnar Jahn, chairman of the Nobel Prize Committee, presented Pearson's peace award, he told Pearson he had "saved the world."

Pearson served as prime minister from 1963 until 1968, when he was replaced by the current Canadian leader, Pierre Trudeau.

Nixon Team Gives Hints On Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials indicate "Phase III" of President Nixon's economic program may see the dropping of rent controls next year and changes in the profit margin rule disliked by business.

They also indicate food price regulations will escape major tampering when the administration's economic stabilization program is redesigned.

Hints of what government economic controllers have in mind for 1973 emerged in briefings for newsmen by leading federal economic policy makers Wednesday.

President Nixon already has said he wants some form of continued stabilization authority when the present Economic Stabilization Act expires April 30, and officials emphasized that Nixon will have the final word on the shape of the redesigned wage-price controls.

The administration has been gathering suggestions from business, labor, consumers, congressmen and its own stabilization officials for the past two weeks. A sense of the thinking of most participants was revealed by the briefers.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said prolonged rent controls have a "negative effect" on tenants as well as landlords.

"We ought to be on the way out of the rent control business," Stein said.

Stein and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz also suggested that reducing coverage of the controls would improve the efficiency of the government stabilization program and eliminate essentially nonproductive paper work for many businesses.

A senior official of the Cost of Living Council, who asked not to be identified, said the business profit margin rule "has got to change."

This regulation, widely criticized in the business community, limits profit margins (profits as a percentage of sales) for companies who boost prices to the average of the best two of the last three fiscal years.

Businessmen have argued that this base period is no longer realistic. More important, most observers concede that the rule encourages wasteful spending by companies who are bumping against their profit margin ceilings.

With a sigh and a shake of his head Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, told reporters there were three problems to be faced during the next phase of controls: "Food, food and food."

The stubborn rise in food prices, spurred by heavy consumer demand and the fact that prices at the farm level are uncontrolled, has been the biggest headache for the economic controllers.

The administration has consistently argued that controlling raw agricultural products would inevitably lead to rationing and black markets since farmers would cut back their output substantially.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Penalty Lifted

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday that it is lifting the death penalty more than two years after it was made law. It was never used.

Suspension of the death penalty was decreed after a cabinet meeting presided over by President Alejandro Lanusse. One of his predecessors, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, invoked the death penalty on June 2, 1970, the day after extremists claimed they had assassinated former president Gen. Pedro Aramburu.

Aramburu was kidnaped in May, 1970, and his body found six weeks later.

Mars Boiling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The planet Mars is beginning to "boil" inside — the result of heating from radioactive decay — which may well lead to the production of an atmosphere similar to that of Earth, a professor of planetary science said Wednesday.

Dr. Bruce Murray of the California Institute of Technology told the annual winter meeting of the American Physical Society that findings of the Mariner 9 space probe show that Mars is just coming alive.

He said the decay of radioactive heat has started a boiling process within the planet which creates volcanoes and fracturing of the crust.

Murray said the process may well produce the carbon dioxide and water that make up an atmosphere.

Heights Sealed

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops sealed off the Golan Heights to civilian traffic early today in the wake of air strikes Wednesday against three targets in Syria. But military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the situation along the border was calm.

Military authorities closed the Heights to everything except military traffic and vehicles driven by local residents — as they usually do as a precautionany measure when there is a flareup on the Syrian frontier.

No Peace Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Because of Communist protests about the full-scale bombing of North Vietnam and an American request for a holiday break, the four parties at the Paris peace talks scheduled no meeting today. It was the first miss in the talks in two months.

The meeting is usually held every Thursday and so far there have been 171 sessions since the talks began in 1969.

The last break in the talks came Oct. 19 when the four delegations skipped a week while leaders of the European Common Market used the Kleber Avenue hall where peace delegates meet.

Coffee Study

BOSTON (UPI) — A team of researchers has found that coffee may be a factor in causing heart attacks.

"The team found that people who drink more than five cups of coffee a day are twice as likely to suffer heart attacks as people who drink no coffee at all," a spokesman for Boston University Medical Center said last night.

The researchers, headed by Drs. Hershell Jick and Dennis Slone, studied records of 276 heart patients at hospitals in the United States and other countries. They compared them to a control group of 1,100 hospital patients with similar backgrounds who suffered from other ailments.

"They found that all of them varied very little in their medical history — a number of both groups smoked, for instance — but when they additionally compared their coffee consumption, that's where there was a really substantial difference," the spokesman said. "All of the heart attack victim consumed much greater quantities of coffee."

Agency's Goal: Lead-Free Fuel At Every Gas Station By 1978

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government has proposed a gradual ban on leaded gasoline that would make lead-free fuel available at every filling station by mid-1974 and in every pump by 1978.

The announcement Wednesday by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was greeted by a lawsuit and congressional criticism.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus told newsmen he first proposed the action a year ago, but ran into opposition from other government officials about whether automobile exhaust fumes are the cause for increases in the level of lead in American's blood.

The double-barreled plan proposed by Ruckelshaus would require:

—That at least one grade of gas at every station contain no more than one-20th of a gram of lead per gallon by July 1, 1974. On the average, gasoline has 2.34 grams of lead per gallon, Ruckelshaus said.

—That the leaded grades of gasoline be reduced in lead content starting in 1975, and be virtually lead-free by Jan. 1, 1978.

Ruckelshaus said all interested groups would have 60 days to comment on the proposals before the final regulations would go into effect.

The cost to consumers of gradually shifting to unleaded gas would be about a penny a gallon, he estimated.

At the same time Ruckelshaus was announcing the proposals, a coalition of environmental groups was filing suit in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to force EPA to move faster.

David Schoenbrod, attorney for the 13 environmental groups, said the suit contended that gasoline could be made lead-free within two years at little additional cost.

"This thing has been dragging on for three years now," Schoenbrod said. "We want the court to force the EPA to put the regulations into effect in 30 days or so, and to clear lead out of gasoline quickly."

Detroit Shootout Takes Life Of One Policeman

DETROIT (UPI) —One plainclothes policeman was killed and another critically wounded Wednesday evening in a shooting linked to one earlier this month in which four officers—members of the same controversial undercover unit— were wounded.

Police named two men wanted in the earlier incident as suspects in Wednesday's shootout.

The shooting occurred on Detroit's Northwest Side in a neighborhood where they were investigating a tip involving a robbery and shooting suspect, police spokesmen said. They spotted their assailants lurking in a shadow between two homes.

Gunfire started as they approached the two men and the officers got off one shot themselves before falling, police said.

On Dec. 4, four STRESS officers were shot and wounded by gunmen believed to be riding shotgun for a narcotics runner. Two of the men charged in that shooting—John P. Boyd Jr., 23, and Haywood Brown, 18, both of Detroit—also were sought in the latest incident.

Killed Wednesday was patrolman Robert Bradford Jr., 25, a 4-1-2-year police veteran. He was the sixth policeman killed in Detroit this year and the second STRESS officer. Bradford's partner, patrolman Robert Dooley, 28, another 4½year veteran, was hospitalized in critical condition.

"The police department is using all available resources," said Mayor Roman S. Gribbs, "and its cool approach will ferret out the guilty and present the case to the courts."

STRESS has been involved in numerous controversies—some of which went to court—since it was formed nearly two years ago. One involved a shootout between STRESS officers and off-duty Wayne County sheriff's deputies in which one deputy was killed.

The other STRESS officer killed this year was shot while attempting to stop a bank holdup in early December. He was off duty at the time.

The Champions, both 53, married in Los Angeles in 1947, and have two children, Gregg, 16, and Blake, 11.

Mrs. Champion said irreconcilable differences brought their marriage to an end last Aug. 5.

Men Over 62 To Get Free Fishing Cards

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Under a "men's liberation bill" signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, the State Department of Fish and Game must issue a free fishing license to low income Californians of any sex who are more than 62 years of age.

The person must have been a resident of California for the five years preceding the license application under the bill by Assemblyman John Burton, D-San Francisco.

Previously, the licenses for those 62 and over went only to women. Burton's bill extends the privilege to men.

It is AB2169.

Conviction On Stolen Airline Ticket Charge

BOSTON (UPI) —The U.S. attorney's office announced "the country's first conviction for transporting stolen airline tickets in interstate commerce."

It referred to the case of Broadus S. Durant, 33, Los Angeles, who pleaded guilty Tuesday in U.S. District Court to a charge of conspiracy to transport stolen and falsified airline tickets in interstate commerce. Judge Charles E. Wyzanski Jr. scheduled sentencing for Jan. 3.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Frederic R. Kellogg said Durant was accused of "conspiring with others to distribute thousands of dollars of tickets which had been stolen from American Airlines and validated with a stolen die." Durant was ticket agent for American Airlines.

Orange Soil From Moon Looks Less Bright Now

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — The first scientist to land on the moon studied the most fantastic collection of rocks gathered by Apollo astronauts Wednesday and said the orange soil did not look as bright as it did when he kicked it around on the moon.

"It doesn't look the same," Apollo 17 astronaut Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt said. "The only real orange was the stuff I kicked up."

Schmitt and fellow moonwalker Eugene A. Cernan were taking samples around Shorty Crater during the second lunar excursion when Schmitt, a geologist and the first scientist to fly to the moon, kicked the orange soil from just below the surface. The color was easily distinguishable on television and in pictures taken by the astronauts.

But the volcanic type soil, studied closely for the first time Wednesday, appeared to have a darker, duller tint. Geologists said it was probably because the orange soil was mixed with the other gray soil which Cernan and Schmitt scooped up.

"It is not the perfectly grey or nearly black we've seen before," said Dr. William R. Muehlberger, head of the Apollo 17 surface geology investigating team. "But, this is the most fantastic collection we've ever had."

Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the soil looked brown or tan. But Schmitt confirmed that the sample being examined contained the orange soil which indicates there was volcanic activity on the moon.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government has proposed a gradual ban on leaded gasoline that would make lead-free fuel available at every filling station by mid-1974 and in every pump by 1978.

The announcement Wednesday by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was greeted by a lawsuit and congressional criticism.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus told newsmen he first proposed the action a year ago, but ran into opposition from other government officials about whether automobile exhaust fumes are the cause for increases in the level of lead in American's blood.

The double-barreled plan proposed by Ruckelshaus would require:

—That at least one grade of gas at every station contain no more than one-20th of a gram of lead per gallon by July 1, 1974. On the average, gasoline has 2.34 grams of lead per gallon, Ruckelshaus said.

—That the leaded grades of gasoline be reduced in lead content starting in 1975, and be virtually lead-free by Jan. 1, 1978.

Ruckelshaus said all interested groups would have 60 days to comment on the proposals before the final regulations would go into effect.

The cost to consumers of gradually shifting to unleaded gas would be about a penny a gallon, he estimated.

At the same time Ruckelshaus was announcing the proposals, a coalition of environmental groups was filing suit in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to force EPA to move faster.

David Schoenbrod, attorney for the 13 environmental groups, said the suit contended that gasoline could be made lead-free within two years at little additional cost.

"This thing has been dragging on for three years now," Schoenbrod said. "We want the court to force the EPA to put the regulations into effect in 30 days or so, and to clear lead out of gasoline quickly."

Detroit Shootout Takes Life Of One Policeman

DETROIT (UPI) —One plainclothes policeman was killed and another critically wounded Wednesday evening in a shooting linked to one earlier this month in which four officers—members of the same controversial undercover unit— were wounded.

Police named two men wanted in the earlier incident as suspects in Wednesday's shootout.

The shooting occurred on Detroit's Northwest Side in a neighborhood where they were investigating a tip involving a robbery and shooting suspect, police spokesmen said. They spotted their assailants lurking in a shadow between two homes.

Gunfire started as they approached the two men and the officers got off one shot themselves before falling, police said.

On Dec. 4, four STRESS officers were shot and wounded by gunmen believed to be riding shotgun for a narcotics runner. Two of the men charged in that shooting—John P. Boyd Jr., 23, and Haywood Brown, 18, both of Detroit—also were sought in the latest incident.

Killed Wednesday was patrolman Robert Bradford Jr., 25, a 4-1-2-year police veteran. He was the sixth policeman killed in Detroit this year and the second STRESS officer. Bradford's partner, patrolman Robert Dooley, 28, another 4½year veteran, was hospitalized in critical condition.

"The police department is using all available resources," said Mayor Roman S. Gribbs, "and its cool approach will ferret out the guilty and present the case to the courts."

STRESS has been involved in numerous controversies—some of which went to court—since it was formed nearly two years ago. One involved a shootout between STRESS officers and off-duty Wayne County sheriff's deputies in which one deputy was killed.

The other STRESS officer killed this year was shot while attempting to stop a bank holdup in early December. He was off duty at the time.

Board Hikes Water Use For Cotati

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Water Agency has tentatively agreed to allow Cotati to draw more water from the county system.

Agency engineer Gordon Miller advised the agency board to approve additional water sales to Cotati because additional wells on the Russian River have made more water available. A similar request by Cotati last year was rejected because of a potential water shortage.

The supervisors, sitting Tuesday as the water board, told Cotati City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen that they would expect the city to become a prime water purchaser once the system is fully expanded. Prime contractors such as Petaluma and the North Marin Water District are those which helped build the system and are guaranteed a certain supply of water. Secondary users must depend on surplus water being available.

The additional water hook-up on East Cotati Avenue was requested when test wells drilled in Cotati showed a high mineral content would make the water unsafe to drink.

Snow Helps Ski Resorts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An overnight snowfall further improved skiing today at most Northern and Central California ski resorts.

Highway 50: Heavenly Valley, 24-42 inches, very good, packed and powder; Sierra Ski Ranch, 39-51 inches, very good, powder.

Highway 4: Bear Valley, 18-54 inches, very good, powder.

widow who did not leave the century-old home on Delaware Street where she and Truman lived during 53 years of marriage.

But the greatest tribute to Truman was not the fleeting visits of past and present presidents. It was long lines of plain folk who stood waiting for hours Wednesday and today to file by his bier.

From the time the doors opened at 3 p.m. Wednesday for the public viewing, thousands passed the flag-draped coffin, some solemn, some stopping to pray silently, men in uniform saluting sharply.

Eight pallbearers carried the casket into the Truman Library lobby. The casket was sealed permanently Tuesday, a few hours after Truman's battle against failing heart, kidneys and lungs ended.

Mrs. Truman, who made daily trips to Research Hospital during her husband's last three weeks, stayed at home and greeted Nixon and Johnson Wednesday. But as the cortege passed by the Truman home, a 17-room Victorian mansion built more than 100 years ago, she pulled open a single window shade and watched the casket of her husband pass.

President Nixon invited Mrs. Truman, the Truman's only daughter Margaret Daniel, and Mrs. Daniel's family to stay in the Blair House for the Jan. 5 services at Washington's National Cathedral. The Trumans lived for a time in the Blair House while the White house was being remodeled in 1950.

Truman, who began his political career as a county commissioner in Kansas City during the 1920s and was elected to the Senate in 1934, became president April 12, 1945, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt daied.

Truman won re-election in 1948, defeating Thomas E. Dewey in what most historians call the biggest political upset in the nation's history.

As president, Truman gave the order to drop the atomic bomb on Japan, ending World War II, sent U.S. troops to Korea in a "peace keeping" mission, ordered the Berlin airlift to overcome Russia's blockade of the isolated city, created the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and established the "Truman Doctrine" to limit Russian expansion in Europe.

today with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the American commander in Vietnam, presumably to discuss the U.S. bombing operations against North Vietnam.

Tin Song, the daily newspaper closest to Thieu, said that Thieu, Bunker and Weyand met "amid rumors that the U.S. will stop bombing areas above the 20th Parallel in the next few days in order to resume the talks in Paris."

The newspaper, quoting a "reliable source," said that "the meeting took place after the Communists in Paris demanded that the bombing above the 20th Parallel be stopped and the talks resumed."

The Swedish Foreign Ministry in Stockholm reported that U.S. warplanes carried out their heaviest daylight bombings to date against Hanoi at noon today. It said B52s and fighter-bombers took part but gave no results of the raid.

The U.S. Command in its weekly casualty report reflecting losses in the bombings of the Hanoi-Haiphong area said seven Americans were killed last week in Indochina, including four fliers in Laos. It reported 29 wounded and 73 missing. In addition, the command said today at least six more fliers were missing in the loss of a B52 over Hanoi.

Marin's Seventh Rabies Case Found In Skunk

Marin County's seventh case of animal rabies for the year has been diagnosed in a skunk found near Fawn Drive in Sleepy Hollow, county health officer Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht reported today.

She said the skunk got into a pen containing two dogs on Saturday, and one of the dogs killed the intruder. County laboratory technicians reported that tests showed the skunk to be "very rabid," Dr. Albrecht said.

Both the dogs had current rabies vaccinations, and were ordered quarantined for 30 days. Dr. Albrecht noted that had the dogs lacked vaccinations, they would have had to be either destroyed or quarantined for six months

Cotati Yule Committee Is Formed

Hoping to avoid future controversy over Christmas displays, the Cotati Parks and Recreation Commission named a committee last night to plan decorations for 1973.

Commission Chairman Lorraine Leivas said the group hopes to avoid the hard feelings created this year when residents split in opinion on a plastic Noel sign built in Plaza Park.

Mayor Annette Lombardi and Councilman Stephen Laughlin drew strong criticism from long-time residents when they removed the sign to the Cotati fire station lawn.

Mrs. Leivas said Janet Nelson, a lifelong resident of Cotati, was named to head the 1973 Christmas Decoration Committee. Committee plans will be presented to the commission and passed on to the city council for approval.

In other business, the commission appointed Norma Fassio to head a committee to plan the dedication of the new bandstand in Plaza Park. The ceremony is scheduled for early spring.

Investigation Of Burglary Is Continuing

No charge has been filed against a 32-year-old Novato man arrested on Christmas Day on suspicion of burglary, but a deputy district attorney said yesterday that investigation is continuing.

The deputy, Jerry R. Herman, said he didn't have enough evidence to prosecute Freddy Morris Sullins on a charge of burglarizing the Sub Hut in San Rafael.

However, he said, an effort is being made to match a screwdriver Sullins carried to pry marks on vending machines at the establishment.

San Rafael police arrested Sullins at 2 a.m. after a burglar, who looted a coin box in a cigarette machine, touched off the burglar alarm.

Sullins was released Tuesday because the district attorney declined to charge him.

Texan Arrested In Drugs Case

Booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $3,000 bail was Betty Frances Kingsbury, formerly of Austin. She was scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Miss Kingsbury was arrested at the Shoreline Drugstore, 205 Flamingo Road, at 12:20 p.m. after the druggist became suspicious of the signature on a prescription and called deputies, according to the sheriff's report.

Equipment Stolen

Search For Man Resumed

A Coast Guard spokesman identified the missing fisherman as Ronald H. Harbour, 29. He fell from the boat Dorothy L, believed to be out of Astoria, Ore.

Search efforts by two cutters and an aircraft were hampered by poor visibility and heavy seas yesterday

Board Hikes Water Use For Cotati

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Water Agency has tentatively agreed to allow Cotati to draw more water from the county system.

Agency engineer Gordon Miller advised the agency board to approve additional water sales to Cotati because additional wells on the Russian River have made more water available. A similar request by Cotati last year was rejected because of a potential water shortage.

The supervisors, sitting Tuesday as the water board, told Cotati City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen that they would expect the city to become a prime water purchaser once the system is fully expanded. Prime contractors such as Petaluma and the North Marin Water District are those which helped build the system and are guaranteed a certain supply of water. Secondary users must depend on surplus water being available.

The additional water hook-up on East Cotati Avenue was requested when test wells drilled in Cotati showed a high mineral content would make the water unsafe to drink.

widow who did not leave the century-old home on Delaware Street where she and Truman lived during 53 years of marriage.

But the greatest tribute to Truman was not the fleeting visits of past and present presidents. It was long lines of plain folk who stood waiting for hours Wednesday and today to file by his bier.

From the time the doors opened at 3 p.m. Wednesday for the public viewing, thousands passed the flag-draped coffin, some solemn, some stopping to pray silently, men in uniform saluting sharply.

Eight pallbearers carried the casket into the Truman Library lobby. The casket was sealed permanently Tuesday, a few hours after Truman's battle against failing heart, kidneys and lungs ended.

Mrs. Truman, who made daily trips to Research Hospital during her husband's last three weeks, stayed at home and greeted Nixon and Johnson Wednesday. But as the cortege passed by the Truman home, a 17-room Victorian mansion built more than 100 years ago, she pulled open a single window shade and watched the casket of her husband pass.

President Nixon invited Mrs. Truman, the Truman's only daughter Margaret Daniel, and Mrs. Daniel's family to stay in the Blair House for the Jan. 5 services at Washington's National Cathedral. The Trumans lived for a time in the Blair House while the White house was being remodeled in 1950.

Truman, who began his political career as a county commissioner in Kansas City during the 1920s and was elected to the Senate in 1934, became president April 12, 1945, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt daied.

Truman won re-election in 1948, defeating Thomas E. Dewey in what most historians call the biggest political upset in the nation's history.

As president, Truman gave the order to drop the atomic bomb on Japan, ending World War II, sent U.S. troops to Korea in a "peace keeping" mission, ordered the Berlin airlift to overcome Russia's blockade of the isolated city, created the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and established the "Truman Doctrine" to limit Russian expansion in Europe.

today with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the American commander in Vietnam, presumably to discuss the U.S. bombing operations against North Vietnam.

Tin Song, the daily newspaper closest to Thieu, said that Thieu, Bunker and Weyand met "amid rumors that the U.S. will stop bombing areas above the 20th Parallel in the next few days in order to resume the talks in Paris."

The newspaper, quoting a "reliable source," said that "the meeting took place after the Communists in Paris demanded that the bombing above the 20th Parallel be stopped and the talks resumed."

The Swedish Foreign Ministry in Stockholm reported that U.S. warplanes carried out their heaviest daylight bombings to date against Hanoi at noon today. It said B52s and fighter-bombers took part but gave no results of the raid.

The U.S. Command in its weekly casualty report reflecting losses in the bombings of the Hanoi-Haiphong area said seven Americans were killed last week in Indochina, including four fliers in Laos. It reported 29 wounded and 73 missing. In addition, the command said today at least six more fliers were missing in the loss of a B52 over Hanoi.

Marin's Seventh Rabies Case Found In Skunk

Marin County's seventh case of animal rabies for the year has been diagnosed in a skunk found near Fawn Drive in Sleepy Hollow, county health officer Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht reported today.

She said the skunk got into a pen containing two dogs on Saturday, and one of the dogs killed the intruder. County laboratory technicians reported that tests showed the skunk to be "very rabid," Dr. Albrecht said.

Both the dogs had current rabies vaccinations, and were ordered quarantined for 30 days. Dr. Albrecht noted that had the dogs lacked vaccinations, they would have had to be either destroyed or quarantined for six months

Search For Man Resumed

A Coast Guard spokesman identified the missing fisherman as Ronald H. Harbour, 29. He fell from the boat Dorothy L, believed to be out of Astoria, Ore.

Search efforts by two cutters and an aircraft were hampered by poor visibility and heavy seas yesterday

Texan Arrested In Drugs Case

A 20-year-old Texan was arrested yesterday in a Tamalpais Valley drugstore after an attempt to obtain drugs with an apparently forged prescription.

Booked into Marin County Jail in lieu of $3,000 bail was Betty Frances Kingsbury, formerly of Austin. She was scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Miss Kingsbury was arrested at the Shoreline Drugstore, 205 Flamingo Road, at 12:20 p.m. after the druggist became suspicious of the signature on a prescription and called deputies, according to the sheriff's report.

Equipment Stolen

Cotati Yule Committee Is Formed

Hoping to avoid future controversy over Christmas displays, the Cotati Parks and Recreation Commission named a committee last night to plan decorations for 1973.

Commission Chairman Lorraine Leivas said the group hopes to avoid the hard feelings created this year when residents split in opinion on a plastic Noel sign built in Plaza Park.

Mayor Annette Lombardi and Councilman Stephen Laughlin drew strong criticism from long-time residents when they removed the sign to the Cotati fire station lawn.

Mrs. Leivas said Janet Nelson, a lifelong resident of Cotati, was named to head the 1973 Christmas Decoration Committee. Committee plans will be presented to the commission and passed on to the city council for approval.

In other business, the commission appointed Norma Fassio to head a committee to plan the dedication of the new bandstand in Plaza Park. The ceremony is scheduled for early spring.

Investigation Of Burglary Is Continuing

No charge has been filed against a 32-year-old Novato man arrested on Christmas Day on suspicion of burglary, but a deputy district attorney said yesterday that investigation is continuing.

The deputy, Jerry R. Herman, said he didn't have enough evidence to prosecute Freddy Morris Sullins on a charge of burglarizing the Sub Hut in San Rafael.

However, he said, an effort is being made to match a screwdriver Sullins carried to pry marks on vending machines at the establishment.

San Rafael police arrested Sullins at 2 a.m. after a burglar, who looted a coin box in a cigarette machine, touched off the burglar alarm.

Sullins was released Tuesday because the district attorney declined to charge him.

Magee Trial Speedup Is Ordered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge has ordered attorneys to speed up the trial of Ruchell Magee, who faces murder-kidnap charges in the 1970 Marin County courtroom escape attempt in which a judge was killed.

Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin told lawyers for both sides Wednesday that they "have been repetitious and unduly time-consuming."

Colvin observed that the attorneys have been questioning prospective jurors for a month and asked that each side limit itself to 20 minutes in questioning each prospective juror.

"If they do not proceed expeditiously, the court will lay down further guidelines," he said.

Magee is charged in the shotgun death of Judge Harold J. Haley, 65, who was killed after he, three women jurors and an assistant district attorney were kidnaped in an escape attempt by prisoners who had been testifying in his courtroom.

Chlorine Contract To Georgia Pacific Corp.

Georgia Pacific Corp. of Richmond, lowest of three bidders, was awarded a contract to supply chlorine during next year to the Novato Sanitary District.

The contract, paying $124.95 per ton, passed by a 4-0 vote Tuesday night with Commissioner Thomas D. Hardcastle absent, according to Bill L. Bayles, assistant district engineer.

The same firm had the contract last year at $119.80 per ton, so the cost has gone up almost 5 per cent, Bayles said.

The board ratified the appointment of Shirley Furno as administrative secretary. She has worked for the district since Sept. 26.

It set 6 p.m. Jan. 8 and 22 at the North Marin County Water District office for its meetings next month.

Pistol Case To Superior Court

A 28-year-old San Rafael man arrested at his home during a search for drugs has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of being a felon in possession of a pistol.

After a preliminary hearing in municipal court, Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Elzie Johnson Jr. to appear Jan. 9.

Johnson was arrested in his fortified home at 1 a.m. Dec. 12 after a state drug agent and a Marin inspector with a search warrant made a frustrated search for drugs.

Arresting officers said Johnson was flushing a toilet when they entered his house, protected by bars on doors and windows.

Suit Is Filed In Loss Of Cow

A Petaluma Dairy has filed a $25,000 lawsuit against the state and the Cotati Veterinary Hospital for the loss of a registered Holstein cow.

The suit filed by Sleepy Hollow Dairy, 7689 Lakeville Highway, through attorney Max Mikelsen of Petaluma, charges that Frank A. Mongini of the veterinary hospital incorrectly told the dairymen to destroy the cow because it had a contagious disease.

The suit claims the animal was destroyed March 27 and was later found not to be infected. Also named in the suit was C. B. Christensen of the California Department of Agriculture Livestock and Poultry Laboratory, where tests were made and Dr. Frederick Groverman, a partner of Mongini's.

Garage Looted

Four fire extinguishers valued at $160 were taken from a garage area of the Park Tower Apartments, 108 Professional Center Parkway, San Rafael, on Monday or Tuesday, police reported today.

Bearded Men Sought In Two Sex Offenses

San Rafael police today were looking for two bearded men — one fat, the other thin — in connection with sex offenses involving two 14-year-old San Rafael girls and a 30-year-old San Francisco woman over the past two days.

The two girls told police they were hitchhiking near Las Gallinas Avenue and Lucas Valley Road at about 2:50 p.m. Tuesday and were picked up by a chubby man with a full beard and mustache and wearing greasy grey trousers and a pin striped shirt. The man exposed himself and offered the girls $2 apiece to fondle him, whereupon they jumped out of the vehicle on Lincoln Avenue, police said.

The San Francisco woman said she was accosted by a slender man with a full beard wearing a dark coat shortly after she left work at about 7 p.m. yesterday at the Northgate shopping center. The man jumped in her car, pulled her onto his lap and drove to a country road where he threw her to the ground and fondled her, police said. The man burst into tears when the woman began talking about religion, and drove her to a Terra Linda service station, according to police.

Cover For Hillsides Suggested

Planting trees on the naked, scarred hillsides of Corte Madera east of Highway 101 could be the most significant improvement in the town's appearance, Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville suggested to the town's park and recreation commission last night.

Commission secretary Nancy Urbani said the mayor asked commissioners, in a memo, to find out the cost of digging pockets in the rock and placing soil to support trees.

Mrs. Urbani said the commissioners liked the idea too, commenting that much of the rock faces are held in place only by tufts of grass, wtih constant danger of rock falls. An experimental program might be begun, they thought, with annual plantings thereafter.

A subcommittee of three members — Juliette Kraeger, William M. Ford and chairman Robert W. Riboli — was appointed to meet Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to work on the project.

Case Goes To Superior Court

A Fairfax man, charged with forcing a 9-year-old girl to copulate orally with him, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on the felony count.

Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Frank Clifford Seewester, 22, to appear Jan. 10 after hearing the evidence against him.

San Anselmo police arrested him Nov. 18 after linking him to the girl's story by a license number supplied by a witness.

Police said the young girl was on her way home from school Nov. 14 when she was forced into a car at knifepoint and ordered to commit the sex act.

This occurred nine years after Bell, a resident of Salem, Mass., received Patent number 174,465 in 1876 on what then was called "telegraphy."

A HOLIDAY TRAGEDY

The front and driver's seat of this bus is an unrecognizable tangle of metal. The bus collided with a loaded cattle truck on a narrow bridge in eastern New Mexico Tuesday. At least 19 members of a group of young people bound for a church-sponsored retreat were killed. The accident occurred near Fort Sumner, N.M.

Magee Trial Speedup Is Ordered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge has ordered attorneys to speed up the trial of Ruchell Magee, who faces murder-kidnap charges in the 1970 Marin County courtroom escape attempt in which a judge was killed.

Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin told lawyers for both sides Wednesday that they "have been repetitious and unduly time-consuming."

Colvin observed that the attorneys have been questioning prospective jurors for a month and asked that each side limit itself to 20 minutes in questioning each prospective juror.

"If they do not proceed expeditiously, the court will lay down further guidelines," he said.

Magee is charged in the shotgun death of Judge Harold J. Haley, 65, who was killed after he, three women jurors and an assistant district attorney were kidnaped in an escape attempt by prisoners who had been testifying in his courtroom.

Chlorine Contract To Georgia Pacific Corp.

Georgia Pacific Corp. of Richmond, lowest of three bidders, was awarded a contract to supply chlorine during next year to the Novato Sanitary District.

The contract, paying $124.95 per ton, passed by a 4-0 vote Tuesday night with Commissioner Thomas D. Hardcastle absent, according to Bill L. Bayles, assistant district engineer.

The same firm had the contract last year at $119.80 per ton, so the cost has gone up almost 5 per cent, Bayles said.

The board ratified the appointment of Shirley Furno as administrative secretary. She has worked for the district since Sept. 26.

It set 6 p.m. Jan. 8 and 22 at the North Marin County Water District office for its meetings next month.

Pistol Case To Superior Court

A 28-year-old San Rafael man arrested at his home during a search for drugs has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of being a felon in possession of a pistol.

After a preliminary hearing in municipal court, Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Elzie Johnson Jr. to appear Jan. 9.

Johnson was arrested in his fortified home at 1 a.m. Dec. 12 after a state drug agent and a Marin inspector with a search warrant made a frustrated search for drugs.

Arresting officers said Johnson was flushing a toilet when they entered his house, protected by bars on doors and windows.

Suit Is Filed In Loss Of Cow

A Petaluma Dairy has filed a $25,000 lawsuit against the state and the Cotati Veterinary Hospital for the loss of a registered Holstein cow.

The suit filed by Sleepy Hollow Dairy, 7689 Lakeville Highway, through attorney Max Mikelsen of Petaluma, charges that Frank A. Mongini of the veterinary hospital incorrectly told the dairymen to destroy the cow because it had a contagious disease.

The suit claims the animal was destroyed March 27 and was later found not to be infected. Also named in the suit was C. B. Christensen of the California Department of Agriculture Livestock and Poultry Laboratory, where tests were made and Dr. Frederick Groverman, a partner of Mongini's.

Garage Looted

Four fire extinguishers valued at $160 were taken from a garage area of the Park Tower Apartments, 108 Professional Center Parkway, San Rafael, on Monday or Tuesday, police reported today.

Bearded Men Sought In Two Sex Offenses

San Rafael police today were looking for two bearded men — one fat, the other thin — in connection with sex offenses involving two 14-year-old San Rafael girls and a 30-year-old San Francisco woman over the past two days.

The two girls told police they were hitchhiking near Las Gallinas Avenue and Lucas Valley Road at about 2:50 p.m. Tuesday and were picked up by a chubby man with a full beard and mustache and wearing greasy grey trousers and a pin striped shirt. The man exposed himself and offered the girls $2 apiece to fondle him, whereupon they jumped out of the vehicle on Lincoln Avenue, police said.

The San Francisco woman said she was accosted by a slender man with a full beard wearing a dark coat shortly after she left work at about 7 p.m. yesterday at the Northgate shopping center. The man jumped in her car, pulled her onto his lap and drove to a country road where he threw her to the ground and fondled her, police said. The man burst into tears when the woman began talking about religion, and drove her to a Terra Linda service station, according to police.

Cover For Hillsides Suggested

Planting trees on the naked, scarred hillsides of Corte Madera east of Highway 101 could be the most significant improvement in the town's appearance, Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville suggested to the town's park and recreation commission last night.

Commission secretary Nancy Urbani said the mayor asked commissioners, in a memo, to find out the cost of digging pockets in the rock and placing soil to support trees.

Mrs. Urbani said the commissioners liked the idea too, commenting that much of the rock faces are held in place only by tufts of grass, wtih constant danger of rock falls. An experimental program might be begun, they thought, with annual plantings thereafter.

A subcommittee of three members — Juliette Kraeger, William M. Ford and chairman Robert W. Riboli — was appointed to meet Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to work on the project.

Case Goes To Superior Court

A Fairfax man, charged with forcing a 9-year-old girl to copulate orally with him, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on the felony count.

Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Frank Clifford Seewester, 22, to appear Jan. 10 after hearing the evidence against him.

San Anselmo police arrested him Nov. 18 after linking him to the girl's story by a license number supplied by a witness.

Police said the young girl was on her way home from school Nov. 14 when she was forced into a car at knifepoint and ordered to commit the sex act.

An Anniversary

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It was 85 years ago that Alexander Graham Bell's claim to invention of the telephone was settled following two years of hearings before the U.S. Patent Office. This occurred nine years after Bell, a resident of Salem, Mass., received Patent number 174,465 in 1876 on what then was called "telegraphy."

Parkinson's Law At Work Again

Representatives of states, counties and cities pleaded with the federal government to enenact revenue-sharing to give them back some of the money that goes to Washington. The program was enacted, and the first checks have now gone out.

Of course, the federal government doesn't have any revenue to share — except borrowed revenue. It is $250 billion in the red, so any money it distributes has to be borrowed, then collected from the taxpayers — with interest. But anyhow, the checks are arriving.

SO WHAT HAPPENS? Are the states, counties and cities using the money to reduce the local taxes that they told Washington were becoming too heavy for their citizens to bear? Are they using them to save essential services for which they couldn't pay?

Well, not always, it seems. Somehow the state, county and city budgets took care of those essential services (plus some others) — no matter how big that made the tax bite.

So we have Parkinson's Law at work: Government expenditures will rise to meet revenues. And we have city and county officials looking for ways to spend the "windfall" from Uncle Sam — the money that they said they couldn't do without.

FOR EXAMPLE, Marin County received $550,054 as its first six-month installment of the new largesse. And before the check even arrived, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste was suggesting to the Marin County Youth Commission that the money might be used to buy 300 acres north of Novato for a motorcycle range. Later, he raised the ante to 600 acres.

Mill Valley got $37,051, while Novato received $63,489. Both cities have called on city department heads to suggest ways to spend the money. One gets you 10 there are plenty of suggestions — and not all essential services.

Belvedere and Ross, Marin's two smallest cities, have use of their federal revenue more-or-less planned. Belvedere, which got $4,812 in the first installment, is considering putting it toward a needed storm drain project. Ross, which received $5,077, has pledged $1,500 to the town recreation program and plans to use he rest — or most of it — to improve the fire alarm system. Belvedere and Ross seem to be thinking of essential services.

OVER IN San Francisco, Mayor Joseph Alioto (who seldom is at a loss as to how to spend money) called for suggestions on what the city-county should do with some $26 million in revenue sharing. His call brought a response from the Downtown Association that three-fourths of it should be put in the general fund to reduce the property tax and the rest spent for police, street improvements, and other essentials.

We like that idea. But one gets you 10. . .

Officials Face No Penalty For Withholding Records

By EARL G. WATERS

The tendency of those in public office to "protect" their image by withholding from public view such records as they choose is constant and ever-present.

On the federal level, the bureaucrats take recourse in a system of "classification" of documents for "security" reasons. The instances where such treatment of records has been made with no justification of national security are widespread.

On the state and local levels, the opportunity for such flimsy refuge is not present. Nevertheless the frequency of incidents wherein citizens experience difficulty inspecting records of public agencies makes it crystal clear that bureaucrats are not burdened with any necessity to justify capricious denials of access to records.

BUT IF A DEMOCRACY is to work, the public must have the ability to keep informed. For public business is the public's business. Citizens of a self-governing society must have the legal right to examine and investigate the conduct of its affairs. Without that the citizens of a democracy have only changed kings.

A real newspaperman is a soldier of freedom. The freedom which he wants is not a privilege for reporters but the right of all men to get information and share opinions.

Newsmen are knowledgeable and experienced in getting information. They are familiar with the records maintained by the various public agencies and the laws governing those records.

So when a reporter is denied or encounters difficulties in viewing public records, it is an easy leap to imagine what barriers must be overcome by the citizen who does not have the implied "power" of the press.

This, of course, is what incenses the reporter. He is confident he will achieve his objective. But he thinks of the sometimes-impossible position in which a citizen is placed who, unsure of the law, seeks to exercise his right to inspect public records.

CALIFORNIA'S LAWS have been written to guarantee the right of all citizens to inspect public records. There is no special privilege for newspapermen. It is just the nature of a newsman's work, to keep the public fully informed, that cuases him to be in the forefront in controversies involving accessibility of records.

And despite the continuing efforts of legislators, such as the late Ralph Brown and now Assemblyman William Bagley and Sen. Milton Marks, to strengthen these laws and keep them up to date, denials or attempts to withhold public records occur regularly.

This makes it obvious that teeth are lacking in the present laws. When one is denied access to public records, he must seek redress through the courts at his own expense.

The only penalty imposed upon the public official whose flouting of the law has caused the troubie is the necessity of doing that which he was obligated to do without a court order, that of producing the record.

IN ALL FAIRNESS there should be relief for the citizen. His legal expense should be reimbursed. He should be awarded triple damages to compensate him for the time and trouble.

But even that may not deter the determined bureaucrat who knows that his legal expenses and other costs will be borne by the public agency he serves.

The real insurance against willful denials of public records would be a penalty for such malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance upon the public officer committing the act.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

The country finally has achieved a zero population growth rate. Just in time to save us old guys from being outvoted by 18-year-olds.

The population explosion has fizzled out with just 2.1 children per family. What puzzles us is that one-tenth of a child.

Does this mean we'll have to wait 65 years before there's a decrease in the number of citizens drawing Social Security benefits?

Options For Future In Population Control

Your Dec. 21 editorial, "In Static Society . . .", presents a future with compulsory birth control and "a strange nomadic population outside the controls" due to rigid planning.

The future which faces our children or grandchildren largely will be determined by our attitudes and actions now. We as citizens, parents and prospective parents collectively are making this choice for our descendants. In addition to the sort of future which you outlined, we have the following options:

(1) Successful voluntary birth control, higher living standards and the solution or amelioration of many major problems, with no loss of freedom.

(2) Successful compulsory birth control with the preceding advantages, except for restrictions on the freedom to breed.

(3) Unsuccessful birth control, leading to famine and disease and to increased regimentation followed by a breakdown of civilization.

Full Candidate Field For School Board Seen

With the San Anselmo Elemetary School District getting into gear for the April, 1973, trustee election, I should react to an editorial of last October in which you chided San Anselmans for a lack of interest in school affairs because only one person filed for a vacancy occurring at that time.

Please be advised that at least four persons were considering to run for that seat but the prospect of doing it again five months later was just too much. Professor Morgan had the courage and was seated without opposition.

For April, I predict between five and eight candidates for three seats. The issues will range from the board's alleged efforts to stifle public participation during board meetings to preoccupation with non-educational matters, lack of fiscal responsibility, disregard for teachers, and the role of the superintendent.

Tax Land Rather Than Improvements

The recent call by Anne Ellinwood, former chairman of CCPC, for a blue ribbon committee to develop ways of reducing land costs, serves to point out how important this factor is both in the high cost of housing and the problems of implementing a county-wide master plan.

One of the most effective ways of reaching this and other goals would be a constitutional change allowing a higher tax rate on the land other than on the improvements. This is now being done in Pennsylvania where several cities have taken advantage of this, as well as in Hawaii. It is an effective tool in slowing the spiraling cost of land or actually reducing land costs, since, unlike all other land taxes, it cannot be passed on to the consumer. Thus, when it is coupled with lower improvement taxes, the result is a significant lowering in the average homeowners' property taxes, lowering the costs of land, and an automatic stimulus in the refurbishing or replacement of old units. The latter effect is often the most important since it prevents the development of slums and often the need for "redevelopment."

Miss Ellinwood is to be complimented on focusing attention to this problem since obviously subsidized housing simply increases everyone's costs and does not solve the problem.

Heritage Group Grateful For City Assistance

Marin Heritage (formerly the San Rafael Historic Preservation Committee) would like to publicly thank the mayor and city council of San Rafael for their generosity and cooperation as demonstrated in their decision to help in the study of the feasibility of purchase and preservation of the Dollar Estate. Our plans for the Dollar Estate as a community cultural center are admittedly ambitious, but similar projects have worked in other areas and we applaud the council for giving us the opportunity to find out if it can work here.

We look forward to the challenge of further developing a positive and economically workable plan for adaptive use of the estate that would not only preserve the historic site but also establish an exciting community complex for the people of San Rafael.

Giacomini Breaks Campaign Promise

It would appear that Mr. Giacomini is exercising his prerogative as a politician by failing to keep his campaign promises. His promise to keep his office open and to become a "full-time" supervisor has fallen by the wayside. His excuse being that the job doesn't pay enough. Didn't he know what the job paid when he ran for office? Or is this the first step in bulldozing a pay raise down the taxpayers throats?

Now that he has broken the first promise, do the other promises get broken as well? Aren't they easier to break after the first one? What do you say Mr. Giacomini? Are you speaking with a forked tongue? Are you going to make us regret we elected you?

Dog Control Law Enforcement Unfair

May I bring the following to your attention:

Once in two years my dog has accidentally been out of our yard. He was cited "at large" by the Humane Society Patrol. $160 later — for 300 feet of 5-foot fence — he is out again. My neighbor saw him and secured him in our yard while two Humane Society trucks followed close behind. The drivers saw our dog in our yard, came up to our home and wrote us a citation, "at large." What is the solution to unfair dog law enforcement? Why are gentle, licensed dogs harassed — because they are easy to apprehend, because they wag their tail and wander home where their owner is nabbed with a $15 "at large" ticket!

Fairfax gives the Humane Society over $4,000 every year as an answer to keeping the streets of Fairfax free from packs of unlicensed, roaming, potentially dangerous dogs. Well folks, the dangerous, roaming unlicensed dogs are still roaming because they are not caught!

At present, enforcement of our dog laws mean that cared for dogs who occasionally and accidently get out of their yards are cited and their owners, like me, are furious. I'm mad because dog law enforcement is harassing owners of gentle family pets while packs of half-wild animals run free because they're harder to catch!

Acupuncture One Benefit From Opening To China

WASHINGTON — One of the great events of 1972, with consequences far into the future, was the opening to China. Out of that opening benefits are only just beginning to flow. Some, such as the sale of American planes, are obvious. With a continuing exchange we could in the long run learn much from the practice and philosophy of an ancient people.

The National Institutes of Health are about to authorize a serious study of the pros and cons of acupuncture, the medical practice used throughout China for many centuries. Those at NIH who have taken a preliminary look are convinced that acupuncture, the use of needles as nerve blocks, deserves thorough and impartial examination since it could become an asset in the American medicine chest.

As is customary, NIH will commission outside specialists to do the research and provide the answers. Proposals now being reviewed have already come from eight different groups. Reports to NIH tell of sufferers from the extreme pain of advanced arthritis given relief by acupuncture. Visitors to China during the year now ending have brought back reports of the seemingly miraculous results of acupuncture. American physicians have observed abdominal operations in which acupuncturists provided the only anaesthic. The patients were not only conscious but apparently in good humor, joking and laughing with the surgeon as the operation proceeded.

THE CHINESE are said to be concerned lest acupuncture be seized on in this country as a fad and exploited with harm to all concerned.

Acupuncture is only one part of the approach to medicine in China. Herbs used in accord with formulas centuries old have an equally important place. The whole is wrapped up in a philosophical concept of the conflict between the forces of darkness and evil and the forces of light and goodness. The ying and the yang.

In the two most populous states, California and New York, acupuncture has stirred controversy. In New York City an acupuncture clinic was headed by an internist, a licensed M.D., who turned his patients over to four acupuncturists. The fees were said to be high.

The clinic was closed because of New York State's licensing requirements. Many letters of protest to the White House and NIH followed this action. In the city's Chinatown the folk practice of acupuncture has long been winked at. Inspectors who put on old clothes would drop in for a treatment to make sure the needles were sterile. Only a licensed physician may now practice acupuncture in the state and, since few, if any, physicians are trained for a procedure more complex than it appears, the treatment is all but precluded. As standardized following its introduction into Russia from China, there are between 800 and 1,000 points of insertion classified as primary, secondary and tertiary.

CALIFORNIA HAS ruled that acupuncture is a "medical treatment." It may be performed under a number of conditions including in a medical school or a hospital and under the supervision of a licensed physician. Several Oriental practitioners in Los Angeles are said to have had near-miraculous results with arthritis and seemingly incurable headaches.

Handled in an orderly way and cutting through the jealous prerogatives of the medical profession and the complexities of state licensing laws, this could be a valuable addition to American medicine. It is but one element of the wealth of learning that can come from the opening to China.

Despite all the upheavals of war and civil war, much of the classical past remains. It is embedded in a civilization older than any other on earth. Surely we are now mature enough to show that we can learn from a people so long closed away.

Nixon Takes Desperate Gamble With Renewed Bombing Attacks

Getting the United States out of the Vietnam War is proving to be a more difficult and more costly process than President Nixon and his advisers had any idea when they moved into the White Huse nearly four years ago. The final (we hope) phase is proving to be particularly painful.

The United States has 450 of the big B-52 bombers in its inventory of ready and available weapons. It lost eight in the first four days of the new bombing campaign, which Mr. Nixon launched when he failed to get the terms he watned out of the last round of negotiations in Paris. That rate of loss would not be acceptable for very long. For two or three weeks, yes. For 10 weeks or more, no.

The situation in the White House war room inevitably recalls the one in the London and Berlin war rooms at the height of the German submarine offensive in early World War II. Who could stand the ship losses longer —British or Germans? And again, there was the crucial moment in the German war room at the peak of the German air attack on London — the "Battle of Britain." How many more bombers could the German Luftwaffe afford to lose? The Germans called it off; probably only a day before the Roayl Air Force would have been exhausted.

On the ground there is pain, and damage. The targets appear to include the offices of government and the top people in government. All the damage is being done that can be done. It is the unleashing on Hanoi of what in World War I was called "schrecklichkeit" (terror) when indulged in by the Germans at British, French, and Belgian expense.

But the bombers no longer roam the skies over North Vietnam in safety. The crews of the SAM-2 missiles down below have improved their technique since the beginning of the big American involvement back in 1965. They have been scoring a high rate of hits. And the price for Mr. Nixon of this return to force only begins with the loss of big bombers and their crews.

Add to the price the lost hope for an end to the fighting by Christmas. And the disappointment to the families of the American prisoners who expected them home by Christmas. Add the possibility that some of those prisoners were the victims of American bombs on Hanoi. Add the disapproval of American friends and allies overseas. Add even the break in the upward elimb of the American stock market. The price is high.

WHAT DOES MR. NIXON hope to get at that price?

He is hoping to buy better prospects for the survival of a non-Communist government in Saigon. The argument for the resort to the bombing is that Hanoi was trying to take advantage of the desire in the United States for peace by Christmas. The danger in the polcy is that Mr. Nixon will never get his prisoners back unless or until he does sign a formal peace agreement with Hanoi.

It is a footnote to the above that Henry Cabot Lodge, long the American ambassador in Saigon, has often said he doesn't think there will ever be a formal, signed peace agreement.

Perhaps this application of American bombs to the men in Hanoi will have its intended effect. Perhaps they will be impressed by Mr. Nixon's willingness to use force to get his way in Vietnam.

But bombs from the air and tanks in the streets are different. The bombers go away. The tanks stay. We will now learn whether bombing is as effective as tanks for this sort of operation by a great power.

HISTORY SINCE World War II provides more failures than successes on the list of efforts of this kind to use military power to coerce small countires. The French applied their military power (weapons mostly by courtesy of Washington) to Vietnam and Algeria, and failed. The British tried it against Egypt, and failed. (But that was largely due to American diplomatic pressure). The Russians tried brandishing weapons (not quite using them) against Yugoslavia. That failed.

Mr. Nixon is a man who calculates his chances carefully before he makes a move of this kind. We assume that he sat down and added up the pluses and minuses on one of his big pads of lined yellow paper before he gave the order to unleash the bombers. He must think that Hanoi is paying a higher price than he is, and that it will give in before he has to call the bombers home.

There, of course, is one of the high stakes in the battle of Hanoi. Mr. Nixon's own credibility as a leader is on the line. Men who undertake a venture of this kind and win, continue in office. Anthony Eden, now Lord Avon, is a warning of what happens to those who fail. They lose credibility as leaders.

Parkinson's Law At Work Again

Representatives of states, counties and cities pleaded with the federal government to enenact revenue-sharing to give them back some of the money that goes to Washington. The program was enacted, and the first checks have now gone out.

Of course, the federal government doesn't have any revenue to share — except borrowed revenue. It is $250 billion in the red, so any money it distributes has to be borrowed, then collected from the taxpayers — with interest. But anyhow, the checks are arriving.

SO WHAT HAPPENS? Are the states, counties and cities using the money to reduce the local taxes that they told Washington were becoming too heavy for their citizens to bear? Are they using them to save essential services for which they couldn't pay?

Well, not always, it seems. Somehow the state, county and city budgets took care of those essential services (plus some others) — no matter how big that made the tax bite.

So we have Parkinson's Law at work: Government expenditures will rise to meet revenues. And we have city and county officials looking for ways to spend the "windfall" from Uncle Sam — the money that they said they couldn't do without.

FOR EXAMPLE, Marin County received $550,054 as its first six-month installment of the new largesse. And before the check even arrived, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste was suggesting to the Marin County Youth Commission that the money might be used to buy 300 acres north of Novato for a motorcycle range. Later, he raised the ante to 600 acres.

Mill Valley got $37,051, while Novato received $63,489. Both cities have called on city department heads to suggest ways to spend the money. One gets you 10 there are plenty of suggestions — and not all essential services.

Belvedere and Ross, Marin's two smallest cities, have use of their federal revenue more-or-less planned. Belvedere, which got $4,812 in the first installment, is considering putting it toward a needed storm drain project. Ross, which received $5,077, has pledged $1,500 to the town recreation program and plans to use he rest — or most of it — to improve the fire alarm system. Belvedere and Ross seem to be thinking of essential services.

OVER IN San Francisco, Mayor Joseph Alioto (who seldom is at a loss as to how to spend money) called for suggestions on what the city-county should do with some $26 million in revenue sharing. His call brought a response from the Downtown Association that three-fourths of it should be put in the general fund to reduce the property tax and the rest spent for police, street improvements, and other essentials.

We like that idea. But one gets you 10. . .

Officials Face No Penalty For Withholding Records

By EARL G. WATERS

The tendency of those in public office to "protect" their image by withholding from public view such records as they choose is constant and ever-present.

On the federal level, the bureaucrats take recourse in a system of "classification" of documents for "security" reasons. The instances where such treatment of records has been made with no justification of national security are widespread.

On the state and local levels, the opportunity for such flimsy refuge is not present. Nevertheless the frequency of incidents wherein citizens experience difficulty inspecting records of public agencies makes it crystal clear that bureaucrats are not burdened with any necessity to justify capricious denials of access to records.

BUT IF A DEMOCRACY is to work, the public must have the ability to keep informed. For public business is the public's business. Citizens of a self-governing society must have the legal right to examine and investigate the conduct of its affairs. Without that the citizens of a democracy have only changed kings.

A real newspaperman is a soldier of freedom. The freedom which he wants is not a privilege for reporters but the right of all men to get information and share opinions.

Newsmen are knowledgeable and experienced in getting information. They are familiar with the records maintained by the various public agencies and the laws governing those records.

So when a reporter is denied or encounters difficulties in viewing public records, it is an easy leap to imagine what barriers must be overcome by the citizen who does not have the implied "power" of the press.

This, of course, is what incenses the reporter. He is confident he will achieve his objective. But he thinks of the sometimes-impossible position in which a citizen is placed who, unsure of the law, seeks to exercise his right to inspect public records.

CALIFORNIA'S LAWS have been written to guarantee the right of all citizens to inspect public records. There is no special privilege for newspapermen. It is just the nature of a newsman's work, to keep the public fully informed, that cuases him to be in the forefront in controversies involving accessibility of records.

And despite the continuing efforts of legislators, such as the late Ralph Brown and now Assemblyman William Bagley and Sen. Milton Marks, to strengthen these laws and keep them up to date, denials or attempts to withhold public records occur regularly.

This makes it obvious that teeth are lacking in the present laws. When one is denied access to public records, he must seek redress through the courts at his own expense.

The only penalty imposed upon the public official whose flouting of the law has caused the trouble is the necessity of doing that which he was obligated to do without a court order, that of producing the record.

IN ALL FAIRNESS there should be relief for the citizen. His legal expense should be reimbursed. He should be awarded triple damages to compensate him for the time and trouble.

But even that may not deter the determined bureaucrat who knows that his legal expenses and other costs will be borne by the public agency he serves.

The real insurance against willful denials of public records would be a penalty for such malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance upon the public officer committing the act.

THE NEEDLE

The country finally has achieved a zero population growth rate. Just in time to save us old guys from being outvoted by 18-year-olds.

The population explosion has fizzled out with just 2.1 children per family. What puzzles us is that one-tenth of a child.

Does this mean we'll have to wait 65 years before there's a decrease in the number of citizens drawing Social Security benefits?

Options For Future In Population Control

Your Dec. 21 editorial, "In Static Society . . .", presents a future with compulsory birth control and "a strange nomadic population outside the controls" due to rigid planning.

The future which faces our children or grandchildren largely will be determined by our attitudes and actions now. We as citizens, parents and prospective parents collectively are making this choice for our descendants. In addition to the sort of future which you outlined, we have the following options:

(1) Successful voluntary birth control, higher living standards and the solution or amelioration of many major problems, with no loss of freedom.

(2) Successful compulsory birth control with the preceding advantages, except for restrictions on the freedom to breed.

(3) Unsuccessful birth control, leading to famine and disease and to increased regimentation followed by a breakdown of civilization.

Full Candidate Field For School Board Seen

With the San Anselmo Elemetary School District getting into gear for the April, 1973, trustee election, I should react to an editorial of last October in which you chided San Anselmans for a lack of interest in school affairs because only one person filed for a vacancy occurring at that time.

Please be advised that at least four persons were considering to run for that seat but the prospect of doing it again five months later was just too much. Professor Morgan had the courage and was seated without opposition.

For April, I predict between five and eight candidates for three seats. The issues will range from the board's alleged efforts to stifle public participation during board meetings to preoccupation with non-educational matters, lack of fiscal responsibility, disregard for teachers, and the role of the superintendent.

Nixon Takes Desperate Gamble With Renewed Bombing Attacks

Getting the United States out of the Vietnam War is proving to be a more difficult and more costly process than President Nixon and his advisers had any idea when they moved into the White Huse nearly four years ago. The final (we hope) phase is proving to be particularly painful.

Nowadays, Everybody Gets Angry About The Weather

WASHINGTON — Something is happening to the weather in this country and it's causing tremendous anxiety amongst the people. In the days before television, nobody really cared that much about weather. You got up in the morning and looked out the window. If it was raining, you put on rubbers; if it was snowing, you put on boots. If it was a lousy day, you always figured that tomorrow the sun would shine.

But now, thanks to the miracle of television, people worry about the weather all the time. We are told not only what weather to expect in our neck of the woods, but also what's happening in Billings, Mont., and Pitchfork, Newfoundland.

This not only causes traumas in most American households, it also polarizes the country.

FOR EXAMPLE, the other night a group of friends were watching the weather on the local news. The jolly newscaster was standing in front of a map of the North American continent chuckling as he informed us that we could expect rain, sleet and fog for the next 48 hours. Had he let it go at that, nobody would have been too upset, but he decided to go into a long explanation about what caused it.

Using his pointer he said, "as you can see, there is mass of cold air coming in from Canada ...

"Canada always keeps sending us cold masses of air," my friend Harry Dalinsky said. "If Nixon has any guts he'll tell them to knock it off or else."

"Or else what?" Collins Bird asked.

"We'll send them masses of cold air that will make their masses of cold air look like a trade wind," Dalinsky said.

"I wouldn't fool with Canada when it comes to cold air masses," Bird said. "They have a cold air superiority over us of five to one."

"This cold air mass from Canada is expected to meet with this warm air mass coming up from the South, which will cause the rain, sleet and fog that will arrive in our area tomorrow morning."

"There is your problem," said Carey Winston. "It isn't cold air coming from Canada that is causing the trouble, it's the warm air from the South. They shouldn't allow the South to send up any warm air at the same time Canada is sending down cold air."

"Nixon isn't going to make the South stop sending up warm air, not after what they did for him during the election," Jim Symington said.

"He has always maintained," Dalinsky agreed, "that the exporting of warm air should be left to the individual states."

THE WEATHERMAN was still talking away. "The Midwest can expect heavy snow which is blowing in from the Rockies."

"I'll bet you the people in the Midwest are really mad at the Rockies," Collins Bird said.

"They shouldn't have settled so near the Rockies," Carey Winston said. "I have no sympathy for them."

"Why do you say that?" I asked.

"Because the Midwest sends us all their bad weather. They get furious because they have all that snow dumped on them, so they want to dump it on someone else," Winston replied. "I'll start feeling sorry for people who live in the Middle West when they stop dropping their snow on us."

"They'll probably get a tax depletion allowance for them," Symington said.

"Now," said the weatherman, "let's look at our satellite map of the United States. As you can see, there is a cloud cover over the entire United States except for Key Biscayne, Fla., where the President is spending his holidays."

My wife said, "It figures."

Japan Faces 1973 Wallowing In Money

By ROBERT CRABBE

Wallowing in money, prosperous beyond their wildest drams, the Japanese must somehow find a way to make their success acceptable to the rest of the world.

Long gone are the dark days when Japan crept out of World War II 27 years ago almost bankrupt, her cities and factories bombed to rubble.

In 1972, the economic colossus built on the ashes of Hiroshima and Tokyo turned out 6.2 million motor vehicles, and about 95 million tons of steel.

With a Gross National Product (GNP) of $242.3 billion in 1971, Japan trailed only the United States and the Soviet Union. She had left every other Asian country far behind.

Gone also were the days when the Japanese were called mere copyists and makers of cheap merchandise.

Her excellent cameras, desk calculators and TV sets flowed into the markets of Europe and America like a flood. Japan made more than $8 billion in trade with foreign countries in 1972, almost half of it with the United States.

There were angry complaints. American businessmen charged Japan had easy access to markets in the United States, and jiggered the rules to restrict entry of American products into Japan.

Asian trade partners like Thailand, South Korea and Taiwan charged that Japan's huge trade surpluses were bleeding them white.

By autumn of 1972, Thai students were staging boycotts against Japanese goods. America and the European Common Market were threatening legislation and quotas to limit Japan's share of the market.

The United States also was threatening to put on pressure for another revaluation of Japan's currency, the yen, whose price was increased by 16.67 per cent in December, 1971.

In foreign affairs outside the economic sphere Japan had surprisingly few problems.

President Nixon had rocked Japan's conservative government in 1971 by sending security adviser Dr. Henry Kissinger to China without consulting his Japanese allies.

During 1972, Japan adapted to Nixon's new Asian diplomacy with a speed that astonished official Washington. In January, Japan got in touch with North Korea, sending a member of parliament from the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) to Pyongyan to sign an unofficial trade agreement.

In February, two representatives of the Japanese Foreign Office were in Hanoi, to lay the groundwork for a post-war aid to North Vietnam.

In September, new Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka went to Peking with a muted apology for Japan's World War II invasion, and established diplomatic relations with China.

Japan today is something new in history. Never before has a country become an economic giant while remaining a military dwarf. She has no nuclear weapons, and only about 270,000 men under arms, to provide for defense of the country in conventional warfare only.

A no-war constitution drafted in 1947 by U.S. Gen. Douglas MacAarthur and his advisers is still in force. The government interprets it to mean that Japanese troops may not go abroad to peace keeping operations in Indochina or other countries rent by power struggles.

For nuclear defense, Japan is linked by a military security treaty to the United States. In return, she grants America the right to maintain military bases on Japanese soil.

Prominent Americans like outgoing Defense Secretary Melvin Laird sometimes confuse Japanese public opinion by demanding that Japan should "do more," without specifying what "more" meant.

Prime Minister Tanaka won a new mandate for himself and the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) at a general election Dec. 10.

The party has governed Japan almost continuously since World War II, with business-oriented policies on the home front and cooperation with the United States in foreign policy.

Tanaka in many ways symbolizes the incredible career of his country during the last 27 years. He started life as a poor farm boy in the snowy hills near the Japan Sea and was a common soldier in the old Japanese Imperial Army before World War II.

With no more than a sixth grade education behind him, he went into the construction business, became a millionaire, and won Japan's top political job in July.

The people call him "the computerized bulldozer" and they like him. Polls showed 60 per cent approval of his policies, far more than actually voted for his party.

As the year ended, Tanaka was pushing for wider entry of foreign goods into Japan to lower the trade balance and negotiating special advance purchases of uranium and passenger aircraft from the United States to meet American complaints.

However, many of these moves are fought by special interests in his own country. Among them are Japan's farmers, whose votes LDP desperately needed to stay in power.

Tanaka's declared goal is to ward off another yen revaluation. But most businessmen in Tokyo doubt he will succeed.

Keidanren, the elite club of Japan's top business leaders, forecast an economic growth rate of 10.3 per cent for 1973. Every able bodied Japanese who wants to work can get some kind of a job. "Help Wanted" signs are hanging out all over Tokyo.

The tiny apartments and houses in which most Japanese must live in a crowded country are stuffed with refrigerators, washing machines, color television, oil heaters and hi-fi sets.

The 1972 Tokyo stock market was one long bull stampede that could be compared only to the American market of the 1920s. The Dow-Jones index of the Tokyo market had crashed to 2,190 yen in August, 1971, after President Nixon floated the American dollar. But on Dec. 8, 1972, it stood at 4,862 yen and was soaring toward the 5,000 yen mark.

The only clouds on Japan's horizon forecast possible troubles in the long-term future — not right away.

Thoughtful leaders of LDP and the businessmen who pay its campaign bills worry over the growing tendency of Japan's city voters to support the Communist and Socialist parties. It has forced LDP into increasing reliance on the rural voter in an increasingly urban age. If it continues, it could threaten Japan's political stability by the end of the 1970s.

Nixon Again Leads Most Admired Man

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — president Richard M. Nixon, for the fourth consecutive year, is the man Americans most admire in the world today, followed by the Rev. Billy Graham and Harry S Truman, the Gallup Poll indicated Wednesday.

The poll was conducted Dec. 8-11 and included interviews with 1,008 persons 18 or older at 300 selected localities across the nation.

Nixon, landslide winner in the Nov. 7 presidential election, held a wider margin over the field this year than he did in the past three, the survey said. Graham also was No. 2 for the fourth straight year.

Truman, who died Tuesday, figured prominently in the poll's "Most Admired Man" list since its inception in 1946. He placed among the top 10 in 22 out of a total of 27 surveys, heading the list in 1948 and 1949.

In fifth place was Sen. Edward Kennedy, followed by Spiro Agnew and Pope Paul VI.

Two other newcomers to the list were George McGovern, ninth, and Willy Brandt, 10th.

Age of Majority

In 33 states now, one is considered legally an adult at the age of 18 or 19. Many older youths thus can legally drink hard liquor, join the armed forces without parental permission, and be held responsible for their debts. For the first time, this age group is being plagued with salesmen offering everything from encyclopedias to motorcycles on the "buy now, pay later" plan. The only way that these new credit buyers can break a contract in these cases is to prove fraud. The Federal Trade Commission urges a vigorous program of consumer education for this group.

Internees Aided By A New Law

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Japanese-Americans interned in U.S. Government camps from Dec. 7, 1941, through Dec. 30, 1946, are eligible for Social Security wage benefits for the time of their confinement under terms of a new law.

John F. Richardson, regional Social Security commissioner, said Tuesday that the World War II internees may qualify for the credits if they reached the age of 18 during their confinement.

The wage credits give Social Security coverage for retirement, survivor, disability and medicare benefits. They also include possibly higher benefits for those already receiving Social Security payments.

Nowadays, Everybody Gets Angry About The Weather

WASHINGTON — Something is happening to the weather in this country and it's causing tremendous anxiety amongst the people. In the days before television, nobody really cared that much about weather. You got up in the morning and looked out the window. If it was raining, you put on rubbers; if it was snowing, you put on boots. If it was a lousy day, you always figured that tomorrow the sun would shine.

But now, thanks to the miracle of television, people worry about the weather all the time. We are told not only what weather to expect in our neck of the woods, but also what's happening in Billings, Mont., and Pitchfork, Newfoundland.

This not only causes traumas in most American households, it also polarizes the country.

FOR EXAMPLE, the other night a group of friends were watching the weather on the local news. The jolly newscaster was standing in front of a map of the North American continent chuckling as he informed us that we could expect rain, sleet and fog for the next 48 hours. Had he let it go at that, nobody would have been too upset, but he decided to go into a long explanation about what caused it.

Using his pointer he said, "as you can see, there is mass of cold air coming in from Canada . . ."

"Canada always keeps sending us cold masses of air," my friend Harry Dalinsky said. "If Nixon has any guts he'll tell them to knock it off or else."

"Or else what?" Collins Bird asked.

"We'll send them masses of cold air that will make their masses of cold air look like a trade wind," Dalinsky said.

"I wouldn't fool with Canada when it comes to cold air masses," Bird said. "They have a cold air superiority over us of five to one."

"This cold air mass from Canada is expected to meet with this warm air mass coming up from the South, which will cause the rain, sleet and fog that will arrive in our area tomorrow morning."

"There is your problem," said Carey Winston. "It isn't cold air coming from Canada that is causing the trouble, it's the warm air from the South. They shouldn't allow the South to send up any warm air at the same time Canada is sending down cold air."

"Nixon isn't going to make the South stop sending up warm air, not after what they did for him during the election." Jim Symington said.

The Curious Case Of The Two Wise Guys At A Bridge Table

"This hand I call the Curious Case of the Wise Guys in the Night," my friend George Boehm announced as he showed me the North and South hands of the diagram shown today. "You mean that the wise guys did nothing in the night?" I asked, recalling the famous dog in the Sherlock Holmes story, "That is what was so curious," Boehm agreed.

SOME YEARS AGO

"I played this hand some years ago against two of the wisest guys in New York," Boehm related. "They knew all the tricks, traps, snares and stratagems." (He named them, but the two gentlemen wouldn't relish seeing their names in print in this connection. Suffice it to say that his two opponents were crafty enough to satisfy anybody.)

"I played the queen of spades from dummy at the first trick, and East put up the king. I won with the ace of spades, and now I needed the diamonds. Right?"

NO DISAGREEMENT

There could be no disagreeing with this statement.

"I took the king of diamonds, and found the seven and six on the trick. I led a diamond toward dummy, and West played the eight." Boehm paused here.

"You wondered whether to play dummy's ace or jack," I murmured, glancing at Boehm out of the corner of one eye. Boehm kept his face expressionless.

SHOULD HIT

And then it hit me. "Of course," I agreed. "The Curious Case of the Wise Guys in the Night."

See if it hits you, too, before you read on.

THE STRATEGY

Boehm knew that East would have played 10 from 10-6 on the first diamond trick. East would be trying to look like a man who held the doubleton Q-10. And West would have played 10 from 10-8-7, trying to represent Q-10-7. But neither of the two wise guys had played the ten of diamonds.

There were only two possibilities: East had Q-10-6, in which case nothing could be done; or East had the singleton six. So Boehm finessed with dummy's nine of diamonds and made his contract.

As dealer, you hold:

♦ - A J 9 5 3
♣ - A 6 3.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, on the theory that the doubleton queen of spades is not really worth two points in high cards and one point for a doubleton. The hand would be opened with one diamond if it consisted of two low spades with the diamonds headed by A-Q-J or the clubs by A-Q.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Brain power enabled three of today's four birthday celebrities to earn top university degrees. Can you identify which got a Ph.D. or M.A.?

1. LEW AYRES, Hollywood film actor, is 64 today. His career reached stardom in 1930 when he played a disillusioned German soldier in "All Quiet on the Western Front" but suffered during World War II when he declared himself a conscientious objector. His top college degree was —?

2. SAM LEVENSON, New York television humorist, adds his 61st birthday today. This former school teacher's jokes were so funny in the classroom he decided to make more money telling them where it paid off: on TV shows! What advanced degree did he earn?

3. MORTIMER ADLER, American author and educator, is 70 today. He left his Chicago professorship in 1952 to head the Institute for Philosophical Research in San Francisco, after producing an index to 102 "Great Ideas" of the western world, called the "Syntopicon." His university degrees include an M.A. or Ph.D? Or both?

4. WOODROW WILSON, the 28th President of the United States, was born Dec. 28, 1856. During the 67 years of his lifetime, he was a lawyer, political scientist, and university president as well as governor of New Jersey. He began the presidency by bringing the country domestic reforms but his program was diverted to international problems after war broke out in Europe. His highest university degree was —?

ANSWERS: 1 - Ayres (None); 2 - Levenson (M.A.); - Adler (Ph.D.); 4 - Wilson (Ph.D.).

The Curious Case Of The Two Wise Guys At A Bridge Table

"This hand I call the Curious Case of the Wise Guys in the Night," my friend George Boehm announced as he showed me the North and South hands of the diagram shown today. "You mean that the wise guys did nothing in the night?" I asked, recalling the famous dog in the Sherlock Holmes story, "That is what was so curious," Boehm agreed.

SOME YEARS AGO

"I played this hand some years ago against two of the wisest guys in New York," Boehm related. "They knew all the tricks, traps, snares and stratagems." (He named them, but the two gentlemen wouldn't relish seeing their names in print in this connection. Suffice it to say that his two opponents were crafty enough to satisfy anybody.)

"I played the queen of spades from dummy at the first trick, and East put up the king. I won with the ace of spades, and now I needed the diamonds. Right?"

NO DISAGREEMENT

There could be no disagreeing with this statement.

"I took the king of diamonds, and found the seven and six on the trick. I led a diamond toward dummy, and West played the eight." Boehm paused here.

"You wondered whether to play dummy's ace or jack," I murmured, glancing at Boehm out of the corner of one eye. Boehm kept his face expressionless.

SHOULD HIT

And then it hit me. "Of course," I agreed. "The Curious Case of the Wise Guys in the Night."

See if it hits you, too, before you read on.

THE STRATEGY

Boehm knew that East would have played 10 from 10-6 on the first diamond trick. East would be trying to look like a man who held the doubleton Q-10. And West would have played 10 from 10-8-7, trying to represent Q-10-7. But neither of the two wise guys had played the ten of diamonds.

There were only two possibilities: East had Q-10-6, in which case nothing could be done; or East had the singleton six. So Boehm finessed with dummy's nine of diamonds and made his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - Q 8
♥ - 8 7 4
♦ - A J 9 5 3
♣ - A 6 3.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, on the theory that the doubleton queen of spades is not really worth two points in high cards and one point for a doubleton. The hand would be opened with one diamond if it consisted of two low spades with the diamonds headed by A-Q-J or the clubs by A-Q.

Mars, Venus Will Be Seen New Year's Day

By Dr. T.D. NICHOLSON
Director, the American Museum of Natural History, New York
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Monday — Look for the crescent moon at dawn this New Year's Day, and you will find Mars just above it and Venus well to its left. Venus, of course, is the brighter of the two planets. Don't confuse the reddish Mars with Antares, however, also red and the brightest star in Scorpius. Antares is located between Mars and Venus, below Mars and to the right of Venus.

Tuesday — The earth is at perihelion today, the point in its orbit where it approaches closest to the sun. By this morning, the crescent moon has moved to a position below and a little to the right of Venus. Mars is higher and well to the right of the moon. The two planets, the moon, and the star Antares should still comprise an interesting group to see in the half-hour or so after dawn breaks and before twilight brightens the sky too much.

Jan. 4 — An annular eclipse of the sun occurs today over the Southern Hemisphere. The moon, during this eclipse, is too far from earth and therefore too small to cover the sun completely. At mid-eclipse, a ring of the sun — called an annulus — remains visible even where the moon crosses centrally in front of the sun. The annular eclipse will be visible over only one land area, a narrow strip across southern South America.

A partial eclipse will be visible over most of South America and western Africa. This is the first of four eclipses this year, three solar and one lunar. Only the partial lunar eclipse of Jan. 10 will be visible over any significant part of North America.

Jan. 10 — Jupiter is in conjunction with the sun. The planet now enters the morning sky, but don't expect to see it as a morning star until mid-February.

Jan. 12 — Mars has moved into Scorpius this month, approaching Antares, its brightest star. The planet comes closest to the star this morning and begins moving away to the left.

Jan. 15 — After sundown tonight, you will find the waxing gibbous moon well up in the east. The object visible below and to its right is Saturn. If you follow the two across the sky during the night, you will clearly see the moon separate to the left (east) of the planet.

Jan. 16 — The moon is at perigee, nearest to earth this month.

Jan. 28 — The moon is at apogee, most distant from the earth this month. Mercury is at superior conjunction, in line with the sun and beyond it in our sky. The planet now becomes an evening star.

Jan. 30 — The moon again approaches Mars this month. You will find the planet above the rising crescent moon this morning.

Jan. 31 — Venus and Jupiter are in conjunction, but the two plantes, both in the morning sky, rise too late to be seen.

All month: Saturn is the only planet visible after sundown this month. In Taurus, just east of the Pleiades (Seven Sisters) and Aldebaran, Saturn rises before sunset and is well up in the east by nightfall. It sets in the west just about dawn. Jupiter is technically an evening star until the 10th, Mercury after the 28th, but neither one is in position for viewing during January. In the morning, before dawn, Saturn will be in the west and Mars will be rising with the stars of Scorpius in the southeast. Venus may be seen risig after Mars for about the first two weeks, but it will be rising too late during the last half of the month.

Foul Ball Victim Denied Damages

CINCINNATI (UPI) —An appeals court Tuesday told Mrs. Sharon Stradtner, hit in the face by a foul ball at a Cincinnati Reds baseball game two years ago she could not collect on her $50,000 suit against the club.

The First Ohio District Court of Appeals, in upholding a lower court ruling, said Mrs. Stradtner of Louisville, Ky., "voluntarily exposed herself to the risks incident to the game by taking a seat in the unscreened portion of the ball park."

New Controls On Hamburgers

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If a restaurant says it's hamburger, it had better be at least 90 per cent meat, under a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure by Assemblyman John Briggs, a Fullerton Republican, requires restaurants selling imitation hamburger — less than 90 per cent meat — to post a list of ingredients.

Briggs' bill, signed yesterday, allows a product to be advertised as hamburger if it contains not more than 10 per cent added protein and water. But it cannot contain binders or extenders such as cereals.

The bill is AB 1198.

Consumer's Lot Improved Much In Past Few Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backed by a growing body of laws and rules, the federal government took action in 1972 to protect the consumer in areas ranging from cosmetics to credit rating to cough syrup.

Not that the government has yet provided total protection for the average consumer. Many programs are barely under way and Congress again will wrestle with others, including minimum warranty standards and no-fault auto insurance.

But the consumer has come a long way in the eyes of the law since the passage in the 1960's of regulations governing truth-in-packaging, truth-in-lending, flammable fabrics, child protection and toy safety, and other legislation.

The 92nd Congress in its waning days passed the Consumer Product Safety Act, which President Nixon called "the most significant consumer-protection legislation passed by the 92nd Congress." It allows the government for the first time to set safety standards for all common household products.

Enforcement of this law may cut the toll of household accidents that now kill 30,000 Americans a year and permanently disable 110,000 others.

Senate critics filibustered to death another key bill to create an independent consumer protection agency that could intervene at all levels of government on behalf of aggrieved consumers.

That bill, plus no-fault auto insurance and a bill to take fine print out of warranties, will come up again in the new Congress. Prospects for all three are brighter this time.

At the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, helped encourage two big automakers to set voluntary warranty standards. American Motors has issued a warranty that covers every part of a new vehicle except for tires for one year. Ford is providing a 90-day warranty for labor and parts on used cars at authorized garages.

In its most significant action of 1972, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) banned the use of hexachlorophene in cosmetics. This chemical is absorbed into the blood over a period of time and it is feared, may cause brain damage or even death.

The FDA also persuaded the cosmetics industry to voluntarily provide lists of manufacturers, products and the formulas used in them, and the industry's file of consumer complaints. The agency believes these lists will make it easier to remove from the market dangerous cosmetics, such as an eye shadow or skin lotion that is found to cause rash.

Mrs. Knauer already has persuaded several cosmetic firms to print the ingredients on the labels of their products — an important safeguard for persons with allergies.

The FDA also began a 10-year review of the 100,000 to 500,000 over-the-counter patent medicines. Expert panels were set up for such categories as coughs and colds, analgesics and sleep aids. The first report, on antacids, is expected early in 1973.

This project is a sequel to the FDA's 1962-72 review of all prescription drugs, an effort that led to the removal of 1,500 drugs from the market.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson's Senate monopoly subcommittee began hearings in December on over-the-counter drugs. One doctor acknowledged at the outset that hot chicken soup may be as effective as some highly advertised medicines in fighting colds.

In another action involving the drug and medicinal industry, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) started issuing complaints following its investigation of advertising by three major makers of analgesics. The FTC action calls for "corrective advertising" as well as affirmative disclosure if the analgesics contain caffein and aspirin.

The FTC's most significant 1972 actions for consumers came in the innovative area of corrective advertising. Earlier, it ordered the ITT Continental Baking Co., to spend 25 per cent of the firm's advertising budget for one year to correct ads about Profile Bread.

The FTC also obtained similar consent orders from Ocean Spray Cranberry Inc., to spend 25 per cent of its ad budget for corrective ads about a cranberry juice cocktail, and from Sugar Information, a trade association of refineries, for agreed-upon wording of its ads.

The FTC told 16 makers of cough and cold remedies and 12 manufacturers of television sets to furnish documentation for claims made in their advertising.

The FTC also began enforcing standards for carpets and rugs from legislation that grew out of a rest home fire in Ohio several years ago. The agency laid the groundwork for enforcement of flammability standards for children's sleepwear.

In other actions, the FTC issued: guidelines for private vocation and home study schools, use of the word "free" in advertising, and the decorative wall paneling and feather and down industries; complaints against door-to-door magazine salesmen and the nation's No. 1, 2 and 4 sellers of encyclopedias; and rules for posting the octane content on gasoline pumps at service stations.

The FDA, in effect, is removing all lead-based paint — a source of poison for ghetto children who nibble at peeling paint—by lowering the permitted amount to 0.5 per cent next year and .06 per cent the following year.

The FTC found widespread compliance with the truth-in-lending law, which requires all firms to list the carrying charges expressed as annual rate of interest. So the commission turned to provisions of the New Fair Credit Reporting Act.

It issued rules prohibiting credit bureaus from publishing books about consumers' credit, and requiring that consumers be informed when they are denied credit on the basis of information furnished by loan exchanges.

A committee of state utility regulators found that discounts for paying electric and gas bills early actually is thinly disguised, exhorbitant interest.

Mrs. Knauer's office is encouraging voluntary action on the consumer's behalf in two sources of frequent consumer irritation—furniture and housing.

Consumers have complained that furniture is often delivered late, or a new home is not ready for occupancy on the promised date. Mrs. Knauer is encouraging these two industries to establish independent groups that will deal with individual complaints and also with the cause of complaints that fall into a pattern.

Two years ago, the appliance industry set up a panel that has achieved 75 per cent success in dealing with consumer complaints. Now, appliance complaints have dropped to fourth place among consumers.

After several major food scares of recent years, the General Accounting Office (GAO) made an inspection of the sanitary conditions in the nation's food supply. As a result, FDA has gained greatly expanded inspection capabilities.

The number of FDA inspectors was increased from 230 to more than 500. This means the agency will be able to inspect each of the 60,000 food plants in the nation once every three or four years—instead of once every six years now.

This was the year in which the food labelling program got off the ground. The FDA spokesmen say it will be completed next year.

A proposed Truth in Food Labelling Act got no action by either the House or the Senate this year and is sure to be reintroduced in Congress in 1973. This bill would require the labels to list ingredients, nutrition and perishability standards.

But the FDA said that even without legislation, the pressure of the market place will continue to force firms to do this voluntarily.

'CRASH MEDICINE'

Island Duty Interesting To Mill Valley Doctor

By BETTY FROST

Dr. T. G. Brown of Mill Valley has returned to Marin after four months as a staff physician at Saipan.

Saipan is the capital of Micronesia and medical headquarters for the entire U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and from this headquarters physicians go out to staff clincis throughout the islands and atolls of the Mariana, Caroline and Marshall islands.

"It was crash medicine most of the time. There were always emergencies," Dr. Brown said. However, the pediatrician stated, "I would love to go back, and I am sure I will go back. It was a difficult job medically, and a difficult climate for me, but the people were great. The island people are appealing and there are many excellent Americans, dedicated to doing a good job."

She found the three major medical problems in children throughout Micronesia to be malnutrition, dental decay and parasites. All could be eradicated with "improved general education, sanitary education and the will to do it," the doctor said.

Diabetes is also prevalent, enhanced by the inbreeding of the islanders, who must find their mates within the island community, until "everyone is related to everyone else."

IT WAS Dr. Gavin Southerland, formerly of Ross, an orthopedic surgeon working at the Saipan Hospital and very interested in Micronesia, who persuaded Dr. Brown to go to the islands. Usually physicians go for a two-year period, but the Mill Valley woman did not want to be away from her practice that long. It was agreed that even four months would be helpful to the ever-shorthanded staff.

Besides Dr. Brown's work with the children, she assisted with the training of students at the nursing school in Saipan, nurses in the hospital, corpsmen and medical aides. Micronesian doctors, many trained at Fiji, also needed some help.

The trend in the Trust Territory is to "Micronesianize" all services wherever possible. The medical director for the territory, which has 102,250 inhabitants scattered on 97 separate islands and atolls, is now a Micronesian.

To make this leadership effective, Dr. Brown sees the need to upgrade all education, beginning with the elementary level. Chamorro is the language in the Marianas. Teachers having a high school education themselves instruct children until the last three years of high school. In the lower grades the Chamorro language, which was standardized only 20 years ago, is used for instruction. English is taught as a foreign language in the intermediate grades, and is the sole language used for the final years of high school, she said.

DR. BROWN hopes for a time when Micronesians will send their professional candidates to professional schools of high caliber in the United States or other advanced countries.

Some Micronesians, she found, are well educated and bring meaningful leadership to their people. She cited John Heine, principal of the high school at Majuro in the Marshalls, who has been elected to the Micronesian Congress.

Dr. Brown also noted the development of a sophisticated navigation system by the Marshall islanders. They make stick charts, placing shells on the charts to represent islands. They also use the stars for navigation, accurately estimate speed by putting a hand in the water, and time elapsed by the numbers of times a chant is repeated.

ONE TOUCHING incident for the doctor, whose career is working with children, occurred on Majuro. In this remote spot few Caucasian women are seen. Dr. Brown began to walk the mile from the airport hotel to the town. Soon she was followed by the village children singing. She stopped, waved, and began to walk again. She thought the children would soon scatter for home. The youngsters followed her all the way into town, resuming their songs.

"There was no begging, the doctor stressed. "They didn't want anything of me, only to follow me."

In the Ponape District of the Carolines, she watched the women washing their clothes in the river, beating the clothes in rhythm. The children were nude and the older girls wore a sarong at the hips. When they finished their work, the women washed themselves and dived into the water.

"They were beautiful and it was all so natural," T. G. reminisced. "Later I saw an American girl walking along the road, wearing a bikini, and somehow she looked indecent."

Dr. Brown has been practicing in Mill Valley since 1953. A native of Tennessee, she was graduated from the University of Michigan Medical School, interned in Cleveland, Ohio, and was a resident at Gorh University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich., San Francisco General Hospital and University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. While at U.C., she discovered Marin County, and decided to establish her practice in Mill Valley.

SHE NEVER uses her own given name, but goes by her initials, "T.G.", and is sometimes called the nickname she likes, "Sarah."

"It is more important to be a woman than to be a doctor," she said. "I have never experienced projudice in medical school or in practice. I like medicine, I enjoy my work, I work hard at it, and I think I do a good job. Still it is more important to me to be a woman," Dr. Brown continued.

"I see women as people. We have to understand each other as people and stop thinking who is bigger, beter or smarter. We have to work together as people and not be divided by the sexes."

"It has been said that girls succeed in direct proportion to the support of their fathers," T. G. commented.

Her father was an attorney and a judge and thought girls should have the same opportunity for education as boys. When he realized she was serious about going to medical school he was pleased and encouraged her.

The physician has a golden retriever dog named Recca, who is trained for field trial work, and keeps a horse in Cotati because she enjoys riding in the country. She also likes to ski, and hopes to go to the Sierra soon.

However, Dr. Brown is having a hard time convincing colleagues "that I've been working like a demon for four months and need a vacation."

Why Many Fruits Have Shiny Look

NEW YORK (UPI) — The shine on a lot of fruit and vegetables you buy is edible wax or oil coating applied by shippers to inhibit decay, reduce shrinkage and prevent chafing during the long haul to market.

The Western Growers Association says the coatings also are cosmetic-intended to make the produce prettier.

The trade group adds that carnauba or paraffin waxes or mineral oils are applied to replace natural protective oils removed when produce is washed before packing.

Treated produce includes apples, citrus fruits, cantaloupes, peaches, tomatoes, cucumbers, green peppers, eggplants, rutabagas, sweet potatoes and some other potatoes.

Coatings can be removed by peeling or washing. In the latter case, soak the produce two or three minutes in warm dishwashing detergents suds, wipe with sponge or towel, rinse and wipe again.

A Professional Tailor's Look

A major maker is presenting a line of patterns for men's wear so that the woman who sews for a man gets a professional instead of homemade look.

The trick lies in patterns that require no tailoring or complicated construction. Only the usual finishing touches and construction that a woman uses in making her own clothes are required.

If she can make a blazer pantsuit for herself, she can make a blazer or suit for her man, says the maker.

A LOOK AT 1972

Individual Rights Held Center Stage

Associated Press
By EVE SHARBUTT

Women in America demanded attention in 1972 as individuals, whether they were homemakers, politicians or concerned citizens.

They continued to fight for equal rights on their jobs, at home and in the world of leisure. In April, the Senate approved the equal rights amendment to the Constitution, designed to end discrimination based on sex, and sent the measure to the states for ratification. The action had been blocked since 1923, but was revived by support of 92 national organizations. Rep. Martha Griffiths of Michigan had led the fight.

In California, the Assembly voted that women would not have to declare whether they were Mrs. or Miss when they register to vote.

The United States Treasury Department ended its requirement that women use the title Miss or Mrs. when purchasing savings bonds. Men previously did not have to say whether or not they were married. Now all must give a social security number.

THERE WERE more women in politics in 1972 and one less man — because of a woman. Martha Mitchell got her husband to bow out of politics as chairman of the committee to reelect the President. She called the former attorney general's avocation "a dirty business."

Pat Nixon showed a gracious, friendly face to the world in visits to Africa, China and Russia early in the year. Her personal brand of diplomacy found her donning African headdress and costume, touring Chinese kitchens and shaking hands — or paws — with a bear in a Russian circus.

Among women activists in politics in 1972 was outspoken Congressman Shirley Chisholm. As a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, the New Yorker appealed for votes on behalf of women and blacks as under-represented in the political process. Although Mrs. Chisholm garnered only a small percentage of the primary vote, the campaign seemed to give the congresswoman a national constituency.

ANOTHER POLITICAL loser was admired in the election year — Mrs. George McGovern, wife of the Democratic presidential candidate. Just over 5 feet tall, weighing 93 pounds at the beginning of the campaign and 10 pounds less at its end, Eleanor McGovern campaigned tirelessly across the nation. She spoke out on issues and was not afraid to disagree with her husband's point of view. In the future, she said, people will expect more of a candidate's wife than a sweet smile.

The number of women holding elective office across the United States increased slightly in the November elections.

Five women were elected to Congress for the first time, offsetting three who etired, and two who were defeated. Among the winners were two black women: Barbara Jordan, a Texas Democrat who was the first black in the state senate, and Yvonne Braithwaite Burke, Democrat of California, who has served in the state assembly. Also returning to Congress was the tough-talking feminist from New York, Bella Abzug.

One familiar face will not return to the United States Senate. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith was defeated in her race for a fifth term. The 74-year-old, fresh-rose-a-day senator had for years been the only woman in that body.

A Mexican-American woman, Romona Acosta Banuelos, was named 34th treasurer of the United States by President Nixon. She was a Los Angeles businesswoman. Dr. Marina von Neumann Whitman, an economist at the University of Pittsburgh, was named to the three-member President's Council of Economic Advisors. She had previously served on the price commission. Another Nixon appointee, Maritime Commissioner Helen Bentley, was the first woman to receive the Man of the Year Award from the Freight Forwarder's Association.

AT REPUBLICAN and Democratic party conventions to nominate presidential candidates, women fought for and won support for women's rights and opportunities in the party platforms.

Patricia Roberts Harris served as chairperson of the important Democratic Credentials Committee which seated more women, young people and minority representatives than ever before.

Jean Westwood of Utah was named to chair the Democratic National Committee. After the defeat of George McGovern in November, she came under attack by old-line party regulars and she fought to retain her position. She lost.

The Air Force named its second woman brigadier general during 1972. She was Ann Hoefly, chief of the nurse corps. Alene Durek, director of the Navy Nurse Corps, became the nation's first woman admiral.

Two young women were nominated to the U.S. Naval Academy by their congressmen, were turned down by the secretary of the Navy but offered instead the opportunity to join Naval ROTC.

Bernice Gera won a three-year battle against organized baseball in 1972. She got a contract to umpire in Class A New York-Pennsylvania baseball. After officiating in her first game she quit, saying it was the principle that mattered.

In business, Juanita Kreps, an economics professor at Duke University, was named the first woman director of the New York Stock Exchange. Sally Priesand was graduated from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati and became the first woman rabbi in reform Judaism.

WOMEN TOOK sex discrimination charges to court in 1972. In one such case, the G.C. Murphy Co. was charged with discrimination under the equal rights law but the case was settled for $548,000 in back pay and $97,000 in expenses and attorney fees for employes. In return for the out-of-court settlement, the company was able to avoid admitting any violation of the law. Other cases had similar results.

Shirley Temple Black, child movie star and Republican politician and representative to the United Nations, surprised many by speaking out on a subject about which most women keep quiet. From her hospital bed after radical surgery for breast cancer, she warned American women to be alert for early signs of the disease.

ANGELA DAVIS, the Communist professor who had been accused of murder and conspiracy in the San Rafael courthouse shoot-out which left four dead, was acquitted of the charges and released from pison.

ON THE INTERNATIONAL scene, Queen Elizabeth II of England celebrated the 25th anniversary of her marriage.

India's Indira Gandhi hammered out a peace settlement with Pakistan over the disputed Kashmir border. Prisoners were to be exchanged by both sides. Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir continued to express her nation's self-preservation stance in the troubled Middle East.

1972 was the year of Ms. rather than Mrs. or Miss. More women were using the term. It was even the title of a magazine, which published an introductory issue in January and its first regular issue in July. Circulation has grown to 350,000.

Marriage contracts were highly publicized as providing a division of labor at home and on jobs.

Among well-known women who died in 1972 were actresses Jessie Royce Landis, Marilyn Maxwell, Miriam Hopkins and Janet Munro; opera and concert singer Helen Traubel; Helen Bonfils, chairman of the board of the Denver Post and patron of the theater; Mahalia Jackson, empress of gospel music; Jane Grant, co-founder of the New Yorker magazine and an early feminist; Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, pioneer efficiency expert and the mother character in "Cheaper By The Dozen"; Dame Margaret Rutherford, the muffin-faced British character actress; and American poet and baseball fan Marianne Moore who won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1952.

'CRASH MEDICINE'

Island Duty Interesting To Mill Valley Doctor

By BETTY FROST

Dr. T. G. Brown of Mill Valley has returned to Marin after four months as a staff physician at Saipan.

Saipan is the capital of Micronesia and medical headquarters for the entire U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and from this headquarters physicians go out to staff clincis throughout the islands and atolls of the Mariana, Caroline and Marshall islands.

"It was crash medicine most of the time. There were always emergencies," Dr. Brown said. However, the pediatrician stated, "I would love to go back, and I am sure I will go back. It was a difficult job medically, and a difficult climate for me, but the people were great. The island people are appealing and there are many excellent Americans, dedicated to doing a good job."

She found the three major medical problems in children throughout Micronesia to be malnutrition, dental decay and parasites. All could be eradicated with "improved general education, sanitary education and the will to do it," the doctor said.

Diabetes is also prevalent, enhanced by the inbreeding of the islanders, who must find their mates within the island community, until "everyone is related to everyone else."

IT WAS Dr. Gavin Southerland, formerly of Ross, an orthopedic surgeon working at the Saipan Hospital and very interested in Micronesia, who persuaded Dr. Brown to go to the islands. Usually physicians go for a two-year period, but the Mill Valley woman did not want to be away from her practice that long. It was agreed that even four months would be helpful to the ever-shorthanded staff.

Besides Dr. Brown's work with the children, she assisted with the training of students at the nursing school in Saipan, nurses in the hospital, corpsmen and medical aides. Micronesian doctors, many trained at Fiji, also needed some help.

The trend in the Trust Territory is to "Micronesianize" all services wherever possible. The medical director for the territory, which has 102,250 inhabitants scattered on 97 separate islands and atolls, is now a Micronesian.

To make this leadership effective, Dr. Brown sees the need to upgrade all education, beginning with the elementary level. Chamorro is the language in the Marianas. Teachers having a high school education themselves instruct children until the last three years of high school. In the lower grades the Chamorro language, which was standardized only 20 years ago, is used for instruction. English is taught as a foreign language in the intermediate grades, and is the sole language used for the final years of high school, she said.

DR. BROWN hopes for a time when Micronesians will send their professional candidates to professional schools of high caliber in the United States or other advanced countries.

Some Micronesians, she found, are well educated and bring meaningful leadership to their people. She cited John Heine, principal of the high school at Majuro in the Marshalls, who has been elected to the Micronesian Congress.

Dr. Brown also noted the development of a sophisticated navigation system by the Marshall islanders. They make stick charts, placing shells on the charts to represent islands. They also use the stars for navigation, accurately estimate speed by putting a hand in the water, and time elapsed by the numbers of times a chant is repeated.

ONE TOUCHING incident for the doctor, whose career is working with children, occurred on Majuro. In this remote spot few Caucasian women are seen. Dr. Brown began to walk the mile from the airport hotel to the town. Soon she was followed by the village children singing. She stopped, waved, and began to walk again. She thought the children would soon scatter for home. The youngsters followed her all the way into town, resuming their songs.

"There was no begging, the doctor stressed. "They didn't want anything of me, only to follow me."

In the Ponape District of the Carolines, she watched the women washing their clothes in the river, beating the clothes in rhythm. The children were nude and the older girls wore a sarong at the hips. When they finished their work, the women washed themselves and dived into the water.

"They were beautiful and it was all so natural," T. G. reminisced. "Later I saw an American girl walking along the road, wearing a bikini, and somehow she looked indecent."

Dr. Brown has been practicing in Mill Valley since 1953. A native of Tennessee, she was graduated from the University of Michigan Medical School, interned in Cleveland, Ohio, and was a resident at Gorh University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich., San Francisco General Hospital and University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. While at U.C., she discovered Marin County, and decided to establish her practice in Mill Valley.

SHE NEVER uses her own given name, but goes by her initials, "T.G.", and is sometimes called the nickname she likes, "Sarah."

"It is more important to be a woman than to be a doctor," she said. "I have never experienced projudice in medical school or in practice. I like medicine, I enjoy my work, I work hard at it, and I think I do a good job. Still it is more important to me to be a woman," Dr. Brown continued.

"I see women as people. We have to understand each other as people and stop thinking who is bigger, beter or smarter. We have to work together as people and not be divided by the sexes."

"It has been said that girls succeed in direct proportion to the support of their fathers," T. G. commented.

Her father was an attorney and a judge and thought girls should have the same opportunity for education as boys. When he realized she was serious about going to medical school he was pleased and encouraged her.

The physician has a golden retriever dog named Recca, who is trained for field trial work, and keeps a horse in Cotati because she enjoys riding in the country. She also likes to ski, and hopes to go to the Sierra soon.

However, Dr. Brown is having a hard time convincing colleagues "that I've been working like a demon for four months and need a vacation."

Why Many Fruits Have Shiny Look

NEW YORK (UPI) — The shine on a lot of fruit and vegetables you buy is edible wax or oil coating applied by shippers to inhibit decay, reduce shrinkage and prevent chafing during the long haul to market.

The Western Growers Association says the coatings also are cosmetic-intended to make the produce prettier.

The trade group adds that carnauba or paraffin waxes or mineral oils are applied to replace natural protective oils removed when produce is washed before packing.

Treated produce includes apples, citrus fruits, cantaloupes, peaches, tomatoes, cucumbers, green peppers, eggplants, rutabagas, sweet potatoes and some other potatoes.

Coatings can be removed by peeling or washing. In the latter case, soak the produce two or three minutes in warm dishwashing detergents suds, wipe with sponge or towel, rinse and wipe again.

A Professional Tailor's Look

The trick lies in patterns that require no tailoring or complicated construction. Only the usual finishing touches and construction that a woman uses in making her own clothes are required.

If she can make a blazer pantsuit for herself, she can make a blazer or suit for her man, says the maker.

Innocent Plea To Burglary

A Missouri man reportedly found Saturday in the closed office of the Community Action of Marin (EOC) pleaded innocent yesterday in Municipal Court to a felony burglary charge.

After the plea, Marvin Ellis Otey, 28, was ordered to return to court Jan. 9 for a preliminary hearing.

San Rafael police said they arrested him about 2 a.m. in the office at 1006 Lincoln Avenue. Entrance was gained through an unlocked window, police said.

A white 1972 Volkwagen bug, license number 953EZX, was taken today from 12 Humboldt Avenue, San Anselmo, owner Peter H. G. Witt of San Francisco told police.

Crime Rate Shows Big Drop First Nine Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Serious crime increased 1 per cent in the United States during the first nine months of 1972, the smallest increase since the FBI started issuing quarterly reports in 1960, Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said today.

There was an increase of 6 per cent in serious crime during the same period in 1971, the Justice Department report said.

The department defines serious crimes as those violent offenses directed against persons — murder, forcible rape and aggravated assault — as well as the non-violent crimes of robbery, burglary, larceny over $50 and auto theft.

Kleindienst said 83 major cities recorded actual decreases in serious crime during the January through September period this year, compared with 52 cities during the same period in 1971.

The attorney general said the statistics reflected "the concentrated and cooperative efforts of all levels of government—federal, state and local."

Kleindienst also gave these statistics:

—Violent crime increased 3 per cent during the first nine months of 1972, compared with a 10 per cent increase for the same period in 1971.

—Cities with 100,000 or more inhabitants reported a 3 per cent decrease in serious crime, while crime in suburban areas increased 4 per cent. Suburban areas crime increased 11 per cent during the same period in 1971. Crime in rural areas increased 6 per cent during the first nine months of 1972.

The report said serious crime in the District of Columbia dropped 27 per cent during the nine-month period. Violent crimes in the capital were down 23 per cent.

Kleindienst said cities in California with a decrease in crime included: Berkeley, Glendale, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Francisco and Torrance.

Design Unit Approves Expansion

The three members of the Corte Madera Board of Design last night agreed with a town council recommendation that the board's membership be increased to five.

Town zoning administrator William G. McBride said C. William Thomas, William B. Gilbert and Robert K. Overstreet, also decided to recommend the town council change some of its powers.

At present all design review applications have to proceed from the board to the planning commission, said McBride, with the board possessing only recommendation powers. The board felt it would cut down on the lengthy process if it was enabled to approve designs of comparatively small projects and not have to forward them to the planning commission.

The Corte Madera Board of Design also:

INDUSTRIAL — Agreed to hold a special meeting before the Jan. 8 planning commission meeting for final approval of the design review application from Trans-Marin Properties for its 8-acre industrial and office complex at 200 Tamal Vista; the structures and layouts were acceptable, but members wanted more landscaping.

STORE — Asked for more detailed plans from architect Dennis Burrow for a proposed Seven-Eleven food store to be constructed at 3 El Camino Drive at the entrance to Marin Estates.

PARADISE — Recommended approval of a design review application by J. S. Malott of 2656 Larkin Street, San Francisco, for an eight-unit townhouse complex at 5604 Paradise Drive.

A Needless Worry

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Although many private insurance companies feared a negative impact on their business when a government-operated no-fault auto insurance plan went into effect in Puerto Rico in 1970, private insurers wrote some $51.2 million in premiums that year, a boost of 5 per cent over the previous year.

Second Arrest Made On Burglary Suspect

A Woodacre woman, arrested yesterday by county sheriff's deputies on suspicion of a burglary in Lagunitas and then released, was arrested hours later with a companion on suspicion of burglarizing a Fairfax shop.

Jody Soga, 19, of Woodacre, and Richard William Klaes, 25, of 1902 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, were booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Fairfax police said they found the pair at 5 a.m. today in the Sheba Kiddo, 1828 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, after responding to a silent burglar alarm. Klaes was found at the entrance of the shop's door and Miss Soga was found hiding in a dressing room of the ransacked shop, police said.

It was the second time in as many days that Miss Soga had been arrested on suspicion of burglary.

Sheriff's deputies said they arrested her at 12:05 a.m. yesterday, after Stewart J. Lober, 28, of 110 Mountain View Drive, Lagunitas, reported that his wallet, containing $160, had been stolen. Lober told officers he had given Miss Soga a ride and taken her to his home, later discovering his wallet missing, according to police.

A Marin County Municipal Court judge released the woman after no charge was filed.

Mrs. Gillette Owns Bakery

The bakery, which has offered to supply bread for the ducks at Civic Center Lagoon, has been in Mrs. Gillette's family for more than 60 years.

Valsecchi, who is an employee of the bakery, made the bread offer to the county on behalf of Mrs. Gillette.

Charge Lowered In Assault Case

A 19-year-old Novato youth, caught in his girl friend's bedroom by her father, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of statutory rape.

Sentencing of Gary Charles Johnston was continued to Jan. 26 to obtain a probation report. He was originally charged with felony rape and possession of marijuana.

Johnston was arrested by Novato police after the father, awakened by noise from the room of his 13-year-old daughter, found Johnston, police said.

Antiques Taken

A thief who pried open a window took antiques of undetermined value from San Anselmo Antiques, 721 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, sometime Tuesday or Wednesday, police reported today.

Tentative Redevelopment Accord

By ERIC M. INGRAM

Faced with a deadline just days away, representatives of Marin County and the City of San Rafael yesterday negotiated a tentative five-point program to avert legal action over the city's controversial redevelopment plan to upgrade local business districts.

The five-point program, submitted by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, accedes to the city's intention of floating a $6 million redevelopment bond but limits its use to a seven-year period.

Administrative staffs from the city and county are scheduled to meet tomorrow to hammer the program into a formal agreement that both county supervisors and city councilmen can agree to on Tuesday.

Whether such an agreement will meet with approval from supervisors remains in question since Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste has said he will only agree if the redevelopment bond is reduced to $3 million.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. also oppose redevelopment but Arrigoni sent word yesterday he might go along with the city's plan if limited to the downtown area.

Baptiste, who in the past has joined Roumiguiere in meeting with San Rafael representatives, was not present at yesterday's session due to a previous commitment.

The city's redevelopment desires have been a point of contention since last May when county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell warned supervisors and various school district officials that redevelopment would "siphon off" future tax revenues.

While the San Rafael School District reached agreement with the city for return of some funds, the county — barred legally from making a similar agreement — took a different tack and threatened to sue to stop redevelopment.

There followed a series of negotiating sessions between city and county representatives with yesterday's meeting probably the last.

Supervisors, faced with a legal deadline of Jan. 20 to file suit, have set Tuesday as the day of decision in order to allow time for their legal staff to prepare and file suit if agreement isn't reached with the city.

Other points in Roumiguiere's proposal, agreed to in concept by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, representing the city, were that redevelopment funds should be used only on "those projects which will increase assessed valuation" with excess funds siphoned off to be returned to the county and other affected taxing agencies.

The final point, broader in scope, says the county will not protest redevelopment by any or all 11 cities as long as the amount of money siphoned off does not exceed five cents on the county tax rate during any given year. (This year, five cents on the tax rate equals about $400,000 in revenue.)

Should all 11 cities enter redevelopment, Roumiguiere said, the county's agreed upon loss of revenue would be proportioned to cities on the basis of their total assessed valuation.

San Rafael, with about one-third the total assessed valuation of all the cities, would then be entitled to siphon off one-third the revenues raised by the county's five cents. That amount would be enough to pay off its $6 million bond.

Director's Legal Fees Win Support

By a 3-1 vote, directors of the Marin Municipal Water District tentatively agreed yesterday to pay legal fees for director Ronald T. Stafford resulting from a recent complaint charging Stafford did not have a residence in the district at the time of his election to the board.

With board member John M. MacPhail Jr. dissenting, the board indicated it will pay the legal costs only if the district's counsel finds it would be legal to do so and if Stafford is vindicated in any legal action brought against him.

MacPhail said he did not think the board action would be "a proper expenditure of public funds" and the district's attorney, Robert W. Elliott, said he was not sure either.

The board directed Elliott to investigate the matter and report back at its first meeting in January.

Charles S. Adkins, a resident of Division 5 which Stafford represents, last week filed a complaint seeking permission from the attorney general to sue Stafford to keep him from holding office in the water district.

Adkins contends Stafford, who was elected June 6, did not live in the district until after the election.

The Marin Municipal Water District Board also:

EXTENSION — Postponed action on a pipeline extension to serve the 465-unit Madera Del Presidio subdivision in Corte Madera after Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the developer, asked that no action be taken until he had received copies of all district materials relating to the subdivision, including a recent environmental impact statement.

HOLIDAY — Agreed to let the district's 208 employees off work today in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman.

MORATORIUM — Postponed action on a resolution declaring a threatened water shortage in the district and a moratorium on new connections for large public and private projects. Director Jack R. Felson, who proposed the resolution, asked that the matter be continued until a report by a San Francisco engineering consulting firm on future district water needs is ready.

Darwin-Genesis Debate Revived

By MARY LEYDECKER

The old Darwin vs. Genesis debate was revived today in a modern version which pitted two science-quoting creationists against two evolutionists who said they believe in God.

The occasion was a scrappy discussion on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program, revolving around the question of whether the theory of divine creation should be included in science textbooks for California schoolchildren.

Only one of the speakers, the Rev. C. Julian Bartlett, dean of Grace Cathedral in San Francisco, held that it should not, but even he thought divine theories should be included in other types of textbooks.

Alice M. Vipiano of San Rafael, a mother who has been very interested in seeing the creation theory taught alongside the Darwinian, said she does not practice a formal religion.

Her interest, she said, came about when she began to doubt the Darwinian evolution concept which she "had been brainwashed to accept as fact" during her schooling.

Rev. James Boswell, a chemical engineer who is also pastor of the Christian Disciple Church in Carmichael, also based his arguments on science, saying that tests had shown that the earth is not old enough for evolution to have taken place.

The fourth speaker, Dr. Gordon R. Chan, biologist at College of Marin, said he believes in both evolution and in God.

He added he thinks in time science will substantiate the evolution theory further and that it is impossible to ask God "to measure, test and record" His creation.

Nevertheless, he is in favor of discussing the creation theory in schools and suggested that words like "perhaps" should be used in textbooks to indicate there is not unanimity in belief about how the world began.

Dean Bartlett, an Episcopal priest who said he also has a degree in chemical engineering, called it "incredible, appalling and preposterous" to "put non-scientific material into science textbooks."

Religious beliefs about the creation of the world should be covered in comparative religion courses, he said.

He called the stories related in Genesis "creation myths," not scientific facts, said he viewed God as having created the world but as not interfering with scientific laws.

"I don't believe God sits somewhere and tinkers with the world... if you jump out of a window... God is not going to interfere and save you," the priest said.

A polite shouting match started at the end of the program over whether man is a transitional creature or not.

"There is no evidence to support that," Boswell said and Mrs. Vipiano agreed, saying that though the horse started with five toes and now has one, "he has always been a horse."

Bartlett termed Mrs. Vipiano's views on evolution simplistic, and said Boswell's request that creation theories be taught amounted to "playing games..."

"We are not asking that religion be included in textbooks," Boswell said. "All we are saying is that some acts are better explained by the creation theory than by evolution."

The problem is, Chan added, that "scientists can't test whether God made the world in seven days."

Mrs. Vipriano, who said she had attended all the California Board of Education meetings for the past two years, said she merely wants students to be taught that neither evolution nor creation is a proven fact.

(The state board earlier this month voted 7-1 to instruct a committee of board members and others to rewrite key sections of science texts, which could lead to a downgrading of evolution teaching.)

The debate, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Capron Made The Remark

In a report on the Mill Valley City Council's Dec. 21 meeting, the Independent-Journal the next day erred in attributing to City Councilman Robert E. Burton the remark:

"We should be prepared for some opposition. The public has to hear these proposals and there's nobody out there tonight."

It was actually City Councilman Robert E. Capron who made that comment on proposals to increase some planning fees and impose some new ones, establish a "bedroom" tax on new construction and require that property use reports be furnished to buyers by sellers."

Two Youths Still Missing In Mexico

Attempts to locate two San Rafael youths missing in Mexico have been fruitless, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Missing are Linda Anne Miller, 18, of 60 Marina Court Drive, and a friend, Cary Kristal, 19, of 36 Royal Court, police said.

Police said the pair left for a Mexican vacation on Aug. 18 but failed to return by Sept. 9 as planned. Both planned to register for the fall semester at the College of Marin, according to police.

Detective Ronald M. Averiette said police sent Miss Miller's dental records to Mexican authorities several months ago on the theory she may have died in a rooming house fire in Mexico City, but have yet to receive a reply. "I guess the plates didn't check out," he said.

One theory on the youths' disappearance is that they are being held incommunicado in a Mexican jail, police said.

Agency Hires Bay Sewerage Services Chief

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Paul C. Soltow Jr. has been hired as the $30,000-a-year general manager of the new Bay Area Sewage Services Agency.

The 42-year-old engineer-manager of the San Pablo Sanitary District will take his new post on Jan. 29. He had been with the Contra County Costa County district since 1958.

Soltow was selected by the agency's board of directors from a field of some two dozen applicants.

The agency was created by the Legislature to step into local sanitary districts that fail to meet orders to upgrade their sewage.

Innocent Plea To Burglary

A Missouri man reportedly found Saturday in the closed office of the Community Action of Marin (EOC) pleaded innocent yesterday in Municipal Court to a felony burglary charge.

After the plea, Marvin Ellis Otey, 28, was ordered to return to court Jan. 9 for a preliminary hearing.

San Rafael police said they arrested him about 2 a.m. in the office at 1006 Lincoln Avenue. Entrance was gained through an unlocked window, police said.

Auto Stolen

A white 1972 Volkwagen bug, license number 953EZX, was taken today from 12 Humboldt Avenue, San Anselmo, owner Peter H. G. Witt of San Francisco told police.

Crime Rate Shows Big Drop First Nine Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Serious crime increased 1 per cent in the United States during the first nine months of 1972, the smallest increase since the FBI started issuing quarterly reports in 1960, Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said today.

There was an increase of 6 per cent in serious crime during the same period in 1971, the Justice Department report said.

The department defines serious crimes as those violent offenses directed against persons — murder, forcible rape and aggravated assault — as well as the non-violent crimes of robbery, burglary, larceny over $50 and auto theft.

Kleindienst said 83 major cities recorded actual decreases in serious crime during the January through September period this year, compared with 52 cities during the same period in 1971.

The attorney general said the statistics reflected "the concentrated and cooperative efforts of all levels of government—federal, state and local."

Kleindienst also gave these statistics:

—Violent crime increased 3 per cent during the first nine months of 1972, compared with a 10 per cent increase for the same period in 1971.

—Cities with 100,000 or more inhabitants reported a 3 per cent decrease in serious crime, while crime in suburban areas increased 4 per cent. Suburban areas crime increased 11 per cent during the same period in 1971. Crime in rural areas increased 6 per cent during the first nine months of 1972.

The report said serious crime in the District of Columbia dropped 27 per cent during the nine-month period. Violent crimes in the capital were down 23 per cent.

Kleindienst said cities in California with a decrease in crime included: Berkeley, Glendale, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Francisco and Torrance.

Design Unit Approves Expansion

The three members of the Corte Madera Board of Design last night agreed with a town council recommendation that the board's membership be increased to five.

Town zoning administrator William G. McBride said C. William Thomas, William B. Gilbert and Robert K. Overstreet, also decided to recommend the town council change some of its powers.

At present all design review applications have to proceed from the board to the planning commission, said McBride, with the board possessing only recommendation powers. The board felt it would cut down on the lengthy process if it was enabled to approve designs of comparatively small projects and not have to forward them to the planning commission.

The Corte Madera Board of Design also:

INDUSTRIAL — Agreed to hold a special meeting before the Jan. 8 planning commission meeting for final approval of the design review application from Trans-Marin Properties for its 8-acre industrial and office complex at 200 Tamal Vista; the structures and layouts were acceptable, but members wanted more landscaping.

STORE — Asked for more detailed plans from architect Dennis Burrow for a proposed Seven-Eleven food store to be constructed at 3 El Camino Drive at the entrance to Marin Estates.

PARADISE — Recommended approval of a design review application by J. S. Malott of 2656 Larkin Street, San Francisco, for an eight-unit townhouse complex at 5604 Paradise Drive.

A Needless Worry

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Although many private insurance companies feared a negative impact on their business when a government-operated no-fault auto insurance plan went into effect in Puerto Rico in 1970, private insurers wrote some $51.2 million in premiums that year, a boost of 5 per cent over the previous year.

Second Arrest Made On Burglary Suspect

A Woodacre woman, arrested yesterday by county sheriff's deputies on suspicion of a burglary in Lagunitas and then released, was arrested hours later with a companion on suspicion of burglarizing a Fairfax shop.

Jody Soga, 19, of Woodacre, and Richard William Klaes, 25, of 1902 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, were booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Fairfax police said they found the pair at 5 a.m. today in the Sheba Kiddo, 1828 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, after responding to a silent burglar alarm. Klaes was found at the entrance of the shop's door and Miss Soga was found hiding in a dressing room of the ransacked shop, police said.

It was the second time in as many days that Miss Soga had been arrested on suspicion of burglary.

Sheriff's deputies said they arrested her at 12:05 a.m. yesterday, after Stewart J. Lober, 28, of 110 Mountain View Drive, Lagunitas, reported that his wallet, containing $160, had been stolen. Lober told officers he had given Miss Soga a ride and taken her to his home, later discovering his wallet missing, according to police.

A Marin County Municipal Court judge released the woman after no charge was filed.

Mrs. Gillette Owns Bakery

The bakery, which has offered to supply bread for the ducks at Civic Center Lagoon, has been in Mrs. Gillette's family for more than 60 years.

Valsecchi, who is an employee of the bakery, made the bread offer to the county on behalf of Mrs. Gillette.

Charge Lowered In Assault Case

A 19-year-old Novato youth, caught in his girl friend's bedroom by her father, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of statutory rape.

Sentencing of Gary Charles Johnston was continued to Jan. 26 to obtain a probation report. He was originally charged with felony rape and possession of marijuana.

Johnston was arrested by Novato police after the father, awakened by noise from the room of his 13-year-old daughter, found Johnston, police said.

Antiques Taken

A thief who pried open a window took antiques of undetermined value from San Anselmo Antiques, 721 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, sometime Tuesday or Wednesday, police reported today.

Tentative Redevelopment Accord

By ERIC M. INGRAM

Faced with a deadline just days away, representatives of Marin County and the City of San Rafael yesterday negotiated a tentative five-point program to avert legal action over the city's controversial redevelopment plan to upgrade local business districts.

The five-point program, submitted by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, accedes to the city's intention of floating a $6 million redevelopment bond but limits its use to a seven-year period.

Administrative staffs from the city and county are scheduled to meet tomorrow to hammer the program into a formal agreement that both county supervisors and city councilmen can agree to on Tuesday.

Whether such an agreement will meet with approval from supervisors remains in question since Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste has said he will only agree if the redevelopment bond is reduced to $3 million.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. also oppose redevelopment but Arrigoni sent word yesterday he might go along with the city's plan if limited to the downtown area.

Baptiste, who in the past has joined Roumiguiere in meeting with San Rafael representatives, was not present at yesterday's session due to a previous commitment.

The city's redevelopment desires have been a point of contention since last May when county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell warned supervisors and various school district officials that redevelopment would "siphon off" future tax revenues.

While the San Rafael School District reached agreement with the city for return of some funds, the county — barred legally from making a similar agreement — took a different tack and threatened to sue to stop redevelopment.

There followed a series of negotiating sessions between city and county representatives with yesterday's meeting probably the last.

Supervisors, faced with a legal deadline of Jan. 20 to file suit, have set Tuesday as the day of decision in order to allow time for their legal staff to prepare and file suit if agreement isn't reached with the city.

Other points in Roumiguiere's proposal, agreed to in concept by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, representing the city, were that redevelopment funds should be used only on "those projects which will increase assessed valuation" with excess funds siphoned off to be returned to the county and other affected taxing agencies.

The final point, broader in scope, says the county will not protest redevelopment by any or all 11 cities as long as the amount of money siphoned off does not exceed five cents on the county tax rate during any given year. (This year, five cents on the tax rate equals about $400,000 in revenue.)

Should all 11 cities enter redevelopment, Roumiguiere said, the county's agreed upon loss of revenue would be proportioned to cities on the basis of their total assessed valuation.

San Rafael, with about one-third the total assessed valuation of all the cities, would then be entitled to siphon off one-third the revenues raised by the county's five cents. That amount would be enough to pay off its $6 million bond.

Two Youths Still Missing In Mexico

Attempts to locate two San Rafael youths missing in Mexico have been fruitless, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Missing are Linda Anne Miller, 18, of 60 Marina Court Drive, and a friend, Cary Kristal, 19, of 36 Royal Court, police said.

Police said the pair left for a Mexican vacation on Aug. 18 but failed to return by Sept. 9 as planned. Both planned to register for the fall semester at the College of Marin, according to police.

Detective Ronald M. Averiette said police sent Miss Miller's dental records to Mexican authorities several months ago on the theory she may have died in a rooming house fire in Mexico City, but have yet to receive a reply. "I guess the plates didn't check out," he said.

One theory on the youths' disappearance is that they are being held incommunicado in a Mexican jail, police said.

Agency Hires Bay Sewerage Services Chief

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Paul C. Soltow Jr. has been hired as the $30,000-a-year general manager of the new Bay Area Sewage Services Agency.

The 42-year-old engineer-manager of the San Pablo Sanitary District will take his new post on Jan. 29. He had been with the Contra County Costa County district since 1958.

Soltow was selected by the agency's board of directors from a field of some two dozen applicants.

The agency was created by the Legislature to step into local sanitary districts that fail to meet orders to upgrade their sewage.

Director's Legal Fees Win Support

By a 3-1 vote, directors of the Marin Municipal Water District tentatively agreed yesterday to pay legal fees for director Ronald T. Stafford resulting from a recent complaint charging Stafford did not have a residence in the district at the time of his election to the board.

With board member John M. MacPhail Jr. dissenting, the board indicated it will pay the legal costs only if the district's counsel finds it would be legal to do so and if Stafford is vindicated in any legal action brought against him.

MacPhail said he did not think the board action would be "a proper expenditure of public funds" and the district's attorney, Robert W. Elliott, said he was not sure either.

The board directed Elliott to investigate the matter and report back at its first meeting in January.

Charles S. Adkins, a resident of Division 5 which Stafford represents, last week filed a complaint seeking permission from the attorney general to sue Stafford to keep him from holding office in the water district.

Adkins contends Stafford, who was elected June 6, did not live in the district until after the election.

The Marin Municipal Water District Board also:

EXTENSION — Postponed action on a pipeline extension to serve the 465-unit Madera Del Presidio subdivision in Corte Madera after Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the developer, asked that no action be taken until he had received copies of all district materials relating to the subdivision, including a recent environmental impact statement.

HOLIDAY — Agreed to let the district's 208 employees off work today in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman.

MORATORIUM — Postponed action on a resolution declaring a threatened water shortage in the district and a moratorium on new connections for large public and private projects. Director Jack R. Felson, who proposed the resolution, asked that the matter be continued until a report by a San Francisco engineering consulting firm on future district water needs is ready.

Darwin-Genesis Debate Revived

By MARY LEYDECKER

The old Darwin vs. Genesis debate was revived today in a modern version which pitted two science-quoting creationists against two evolutionists who said they believe in God.

The occasion was a scrappy discussion on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program, revolving around the question of whether the theory of divine creation should be included in science textbooks for California schoolchildren.

Only one of the speakers, the Rev. C. Julian Bartlett, dean of Grace Cathedral in San Francisco, held that it should not, but even he thought divine theories should be included in other types of textbooks.

Alice M. Vipiano of San Rafael, a mother who has been very interested in seeing the creation theory taught alongside the Darwinian, said she does not practice a formal religion.

Her interest, she said, came about when she began to doubt the Darwinian evolution concept which she "had been brainwashed to accept as fact" during her schooling.

Rev. James Boswell, a chemical engineer who is also pastor of the Christian Disciple Church in Carmichael, also based his arguments on science, saying that tests had shown that the earth is not old enough for evolution to have taken place.

The fourth speaker, Dr. Gordon R. Chan, biologist at College of Marin, said he believes in both evolution and in God.

He added he thinks in time science will substantiate the evolution theory further and that it is impossible to ask God "to measure, test and record" His creation.

Nevertheless, he is in favor of discussing the creation theory in schools and suggested that words like "perhaps" should be used in textbooks to indicate there is not unanimity in belief about how the world began.

Dean Bartlett, an Episcopal priest who said he also has a degree in chemical engineering, called it "incredible, appalling and preposterous" to "put non-scientific material into science textbooks."

Religious beliefs about the creation of the world should be covered in comparative religion courses, he said.

He called the stories related in Genesis "creation myths," not scientific facts, said he viewed God as having created the world but as not interfering with scientific laws.

"I don't believe God sits somewhere and tinkers with the world... if you jump out of a window... God is not going to interfere and save you," the priest said.

"There is no evidence to support that," Boswell said and Mrs. Vipiano agreed, saying that though the horse started with five toes and now has one, "he has always been a horse."

Bartlett termed Mrs. Vipiano's views on evolution simplistic, and said Boswell's request that creation theories be taught amounted to "playing games..."

"We are not asking that religion be included in textbooks," Boswell said. "All we are saying is that some acts are better explained by the creation theory than by evolution."

The problem is, Chan added, that "scientists can't test whether God made the world in seven days."

Mrs. Vipriano, who said she had attended all the California Board of Education meetings for the past two years, said she merely wants students to be taught that neither evolution nor creation is a proven fact.

(The state board earlier this month voted 7-1 to instruct a committee of board members and others to rewrite key sections of science texts, which could lead to a downgrading of evolution teaching.)

The debate, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Capron Made The Remark

In a report on the Mill Valley City Council's Dec. 21 meeting, the Independent-Journal the next day erred in attributing to City Councilman Robert E. Burton the remark:

"We should be prepared for some opposition. The public has to hear these proposals and there's nobody out there tonight."

It was actually City Councilman Robert E. Capron who made that comment on proposals to increase some planning fees and impose some new ones, establish a "bedroom" tax on new construction and require that property use reports be furnished to buyers by sellers."

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Dec. 28, the 363rd day of 1972 with three to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States, was born Dec. 28, 1856.

On this day in history:

In 1846, Iowa was admitted to the union as the 28th state.

In 1869, members of the Knights of Labor held the first Labor Day observance in American history. Also that day, chewing gum was patented by William Semple of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

In 1945, Congress officially recognized "the pledge of allegiance" to the American flag.

A thought for the day: Greek biographer Plutarch said: "The whole life of man is but a point of time; let us enjoy it therefore while it lasts, and not spend it to no purpose."

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Research Indicates Influence In Mother Can Affect Unborn

More than two decades ago, we had the first clue that viral infections could have an adverse effect on pregnancy. It was discovered that a woman who developed German measles during the first three months of pregnancy was likely to deliver a baby with defects of the heart, eyes, or ears. Since then, researchers have investigated the possible effects of other viruses on pregnancy. Until recently, they found very little evidence of harm to the fetus.

NOW IT SEEMS that influenza during pregnancy may not be as harmless as has been thought. Dr. Eva Alberman and research epidemiologist Jean Fedrick studied the outcome of 16,750 children born in the first week of March, 1958. While pregnant, the mothers of 1,959 of these infants had influenza. This was in contrast to 14,791 infants born of mothers who did not have the flu.

During the ensuing years, eight from the first group developed cancer, an incidence of 4.1 per 1,000. Among the 14,791 infants whose mothers did not have flu, there were 12 cases of cancer (0.8 per 1,000). In other words, children born of mothers who had influenza during pregnancy had approximately four times as much cancer. The study was conducted 11 years after birth and there is a possibility that a second survey after 16 years may change the statistics.

LEUKEMIA was the type of cancer that these children developed. This research gives credence to the theory that viruses are responsible for leukemia. Beyond this, we only can say that the results add a small piece to the jigsaw puzzle known as cancer. There are many unanswered questions to this type of statistical research.

Certain strains of influenza viruses are capable of crossing the placenta to reach the fetus; others are not. Acute infections, such as influenza, also are capable of producing a profound toxemia. The latter, rather than the virus, could be responsible. Or, perhaps, the effects of the drugs taken for flu caused the cancers.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal).

PROCAINE INJECTIONS

A reader writes: I'm 62 years old and would like to know if procaine injections will revitalize me?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. American and English physicians never have been able to duplicate the results of Prof. Anna Aslan, the Romanian physician. She has a dynamic personality and her good results may have been obtained through suggestion or mesmerism, rather than from the injections of procaine. In addition, I suspect she had a good public relations department.

DISTURBED SLEEP

D.M. writes: What makes me awaken from a sound sleep and sit up with great force? During this time I feel stunned and cannot think clearly.

REPLY

A dream or an oxygen deficiency may awaken anyone. You are stunned and cannot think clearly because you are half asleep. The oxygen deficiency may be of circulatory origin.

COFFEE AND SKIN

M.G. writes: Will drinking lots of coffee darken the skin and drinking lots of milk lighten it?

REPLY

Not if coffe and milk are swallowed. Bathing in coffe might darken the skin.

West Marin Teen Doesn't Fare Well

A 16-year-old Petaluma youth, who admitted robbing the Bank of America in Tomales in March, didn't fare as well on his second attempt Thursday, the Marin sheriff's department disclosed yesterday.

Deputies arrested the youth in a house on Dillon Beach Road shortly after bank manager Harry P. Bonnikson, Jr. refused to give him any money at 1:50 p.m.

The youth admitted the robbery attempt and also admitted robbing Bonnikson of $788 March 9, deputies said. He was booked into Juvenile Hall on suspicion of both robberies.

His name was withheld because of a standing order by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Bonnikson told deputies he was alone in the bank when the 113-pound youth, five feet, three inches tall entered the bank wearing a ski mask over his face.

The youth pretended to have a gun in his pocket and thrust a note at Bonnikson reading, "Put all of the money in the bag or I will kill you."

Bonnikson, according to deputies, told him, "You are not getting anything this time." The manager told the Independent-Journal the masked robber appeared to be the same one who held him up on March 9.

Air-To-Air Missile Practice Is Held

VANDENBERG AFB (UPI)— Navy jets from Point Mugu went into action Wednesday in an air-to-air missile firing operation following the launch of a BOMARC target missile from this aerospace base.

A Navy spokesman said the target missile was launched at 4:18 p.m. and was guided into the Sea Test Area of the Pacific Missile Range for use by the planes.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on the 28th day of June, 1972, the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District of Marin County, California, adopted its Resolution of Intention No. 247, as subsequently amended, wherein it did declare that in its opinion the public interest and convenience required and that it was the intention of said Board to order acquisitions and improvements in and for said District, as follows:

a) The construction of all offtract sanitary sewage transmission facilities necessary to transmit sewage from the area of the proposed assessment district to the existing sewage treatment plant of the San Rafael Sanitation District of Marin County, located at the intersection of the northerly extension of Biscayne Drive and Pt. San Pedro Road, including sanitary sewage pump station, force main, gravity sewer, modification of existing pump station, and all necessary connections.

b) The construction of all facilities and improvements necessary to expand the capacity of said sewage treatment plant from approximately 500 residential connections to approximately 1600 residential connections.

c) The construction of a reclaimed water irrigation system, consisting of lake excavation, pump station, storm drain relocation, transmission mains and potable water and electric power facilities.

d) The acquisition of all lands and easements and the doing of all work auxiliary to any of the above and necessary to complete the same.

All of said work and improvements are to be constructed at the places and in the particular locations, of the forms, sizes, dimensions and materials, and at the lines, grades and elevations shown and delineated on the plans, profiles and specifications preliminarily approved therefor by the Board of Directors of said District and on file for public inspection in the office of the District Secretary.

Notice is hereby given of the fact that in many cases said work and improvements will bring the finished surface of the ground to a grade different from the surface as it now exists, and that to said extent said grades will be changed and that said work will be done to said changed grades.

Said contemplated acquisitions and improvements, in the opinion of said Board, are of more than local or ordinary public benefit, and the costs and expenses thereof are made chargeable upon an assessment district, the exterior boundaries of which are the composite and consolidated area as more particularly shown on a map thereof on file in the office of the District Secretary, to which reference is hereby made for further particulars. Said map indicates by a boundary line the extent of the territory included in the proposed district and shall govern for all details as to the extent of the assessment district.

The estimated cost of said project is $1,179,702.70.

Notice is hereby given that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments and bear interest at the rate of not to exceed 7% per annum, will be issued in the manner provided in the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 (Division 10 of the Streets and Highways Code), the last installment of which bonds shall mature not to exceed fourteen years from the second day of July next succeeding ten months from their date.

The descriptions of the acquisitions and improvements and the termini of the work contained in the Resolution of Intention are general in nature. All items of work do not necessarily extend for the full length of the description thereof. The plans and profiles of the work and maps and descriptions, as contained in the Engineer's report, shall be controlling as to the correct and detailed description thereof.

Except as herein otherwise provided for the issuance of bonds, said work shall be done pursuant to the Municipal Improvement Act of 1913.

Reference is hereby made to proceedings had pursuant to Division 4 of the Streets and Highways Code, all on file in the office of the District Secretary.

Notice is furhter given that the Engineer of Work, pursuant to said Act and said Resolution of Intention adopted pursuant thereto, did on the 6th day of December, 1972, file with the District Secretary his report in writing on said acquisitions and improvements, consisting of plans, profiles, specifications, estimate of costs and incidental expenses, diagram and assessment, and maps and descriptions, and said Board did on said date consider and examine said report and by resolution preliminarily approved and confirmed same and ordered that said report stand as the report for the purpose of all subsequent proceedings had pursuant to said Resolution of Intention.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that Wednesday, the 17th day of January, 1973, at the hour of 5:00 o'clock P.M. of said day, in the regular meeting place of said Board, City Hall, San Rafael, California, are the time and place fixed by said Board when and where it will consider and finally determine whether the public interest and convenience require said acquisitions and improvements, and when it will consider and determine whether the owners of a majority of the area of the property in the proposed assessment district have, at or before the time set for hearing, protested against said acquisitions and improvements or any portion thereof, and when and where it will consider and finally act upon the Engineer's report filed pursuant to said Resolution of Intention, and when and where it will hear all protests in relations to said proposed acquisitions and improvements, or to the grades at which said work will be done, or the extent of the assessment district, or to the Engineer's estimate of the costs and expenses thereof, or to the proposed diagram and assessment, or to the maps and descriptions, and that any person interested may file a written protest with the Secretary at or before the time set for the hearing referred to herein.

Reference is hereby made to said Resolution of Intention and said report, including plans, profiles, specifications, estimate of costs, diagram and assessment, and maps and descriptions, for a more particular description of said acquisitions and improvements to be had and done and for further particulars, all on file in the office of the District.

Court Eyes Prop. 21 Challenge

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Sacramento court took an NAACP challenge to Prop. 21, the anti-busing initiative, under submission yesterday.

Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Babbich gave no indication when he would rule on the case after hearing arguments from Nathaniel Colley, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and John Heinrich, an attorney in the Sacramento County Counsel's office.

Colley's suit contends that Sacramento's Camellia Elementary School, which has a 90 per cent minority enrollment, had formulated a desegregation plan under the Bagley Act, but the plan has been stopped by passage of Prop. 21 on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Wilmer Leon, a consultant for State Department of Education, told the court that schools with a high ratio of minorities produce "low achievers."

He said the only way a school with 90 per cent minorities can be desegregated is by reassignment, and race must be a primary consideration.

"I think it is educationally advantageous to have desegregated schools," he said.

Heinrich said the state Constitution says everyone is entitled to an education withot regard to race, and it does not say each school must be racially balanced.

Colley said Prop. 21 is "no different" than statutes struck down in other states.

"I have news for those who believe California has always been pure" in race issues, Colley said. He quoted a century-old California law which mentioned only "white children."

Case Is Sent To Superior Court

Christopher Steve James Bailey, 22, of San Francisco, was held to answer in Marin Superior Court Tuesday, after preliminary hearing before Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman.

Bailey was charged with auto theft and drunken driving, after his arrest Dec. 14 by the California Highway Patrol.

$435 Million Available To Reagan For Tax Cut

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post reported today that at least $435 million will be available to Gov. Ronald Reagan for an income tax cut, despite enactment of the $1.1 billion property tax relief-school aid bill.

Post said the state will end the current fiscal year June 30 with a $683 million budget surplus. Roughly $248 million of that will be needed during the next three years to help finance the tax shift bill, Post said.

But, he reported the state still will end the 1975-76 fiscal year with a $435 million surplus, assuming spending levels remained the same as they are now and the economy remained prosperous.

That $435 million surplus, Post's office said, would be available to Reagan on a one-time basis this year for the income tax cut he intends to propose to the legislature.

Chief Deputy Finance Director Kenneth Hall said, however, that no decisions had been made on how big the tax cut would be.

Economy Survey Gets Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau has started the survey it takes every five years of the national economy.

Bureau employes on Tuesday began distributing questionnaires to the nation's 2.1 million largest business firms. The survey will gather information on the state of business in 1972, including the number of persons employed, how much was paid in wages, and in what activities businesses were engaged.

Another 2.9 million smaller companies will be interviewed on a selective basis.

1973 Vintage Year For Russ Diplomats

By PETER J. SHAW

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's foreign policy enjoyed a vintage year in 1972: the Nixon summit, a strategic arms limitation pact, falling barriers to Soviet-American trade, tacit acceptance of the Potsdam status quo in Europe, the beginnings of a European Security Conference, and improved links with West Germany and India.

The challenge in 1973 will be the sober task of maintaining what has been won.

Seasoned diplomats and observers predict that talks on European force reductions and the unavoidable frictions of a full-dress European Security Conference will give Soviet diplomacy its severest tests in 1973.

"Achieving agreement on force reductions will be just as difficult, or more difficult, as the strategic arms limitation talks," a veteran Western diplomat said. "If anything is likely to take the gloss off the triumphs of 1972, this will."

Diplomatic betting at the moment is that the Kremlin will do all it can, short of compromising security and internal stability, to make the international parleys a multisided success.

Some diplomats who foresee Soviet flexibility in any talks on reduction of forces in Europe say the Kremlin may wish to extend such dialogues to include nuclear arms as well as troop numbers.

Their reckoning is based on the economic drain of supplying nuclear arsenals for two potential fronts, Europe and China.

Virtually no one expects any change in 1973 in the Sino-Soviet stalemate on border talks and the ideological rift.

The border talks apparently are stalled over Soviet refusal to heed China's demand for at least a partial withdrawal of the 1 million Soviet troops Peking says are massed along the border.

Soviet offers of olive branches in the ideological split were ignored by the Chinese in 1972 and will be, one diplomat said, "as long as Mao Tse-tung is in charge."

The rosy euphoria that accompanied better Soviet-American relations in 1972 may dull somewhat in 1973.

Diplomatic contacts have been warming steadily under a Kremlin directive—confirmed by Russians and Americans alike—to be "freer and easier." But the great trade boom remains distant.

"Both nations have been led to expect too much in the way of mutual economic benefits," a Moscow veteran said. "The hard facts are that the trade balance remains 3-1 in America's favor and is not going to shift in 1973. The big deals for Soviet natural gas that could change things are not feasible until the end of the decade."

One key to a trade upsurge—most favored nation tariff status for the Soviet Union — remained threatened by 75 U.S. senators who vowed to thwart approval if Moscow does not rescind or tone down a "diploma tax" on would-be emigrants. No clear picture of Soviet policy regarding the tax had emerged at year's end.

Moderation in Soviet-American projects for environmental and scientific research is expected in 1973. There will be a smaller, more selective number of projects because the volume of talks up to now has been wearing down the bureaucracies of both nations.

No major new agreements are anticipated when Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party general secretary, visits Washington in April.

Diplomats say Brezhnev and President Nixon will review the progress of the pacts signed in Moscow last May. One predicted Brezhnev "may not be very happy" about the pace of economic cooperation although both sides should "make every effort to smooth things over."

Factually, most diplomats and observers think China will remain the Kremlin's top preoccupation in 1973, largely because of security fears. Others view China as the prime "emotional worry" but see Soviet-American relations as the most important consideration right now.

"The new Soviet-American friendship is a big and major switch," one European diplomat said. "It is not just for tactical purposes, but a permanent change based on a permanent fact—the nuclear arms balance and the need to keep arms at a reasonable economic and military level."

Following a Vietnam ceasefire, the Soviet Union will likely continue to support Hanoi politically but do nothing to provoke a confrontation with the United States should hostilities reignite. Diplomats think the Kremlin will continue to press for the neutralization of Southeast Asia as a step that would curb Chinese influence.

Moscow will probably maintain its tough line against Israel in 1973 and keep the door shut on any possible renewal of major involvement in Egypt, whose ouster of Soviet advisors in 1972 was embarrassing, albeit welcome, for the Kremlin.

The Soviet manned space program, idle since the SZ-11 tragedy in June, 1971, should resume in 1973 with the same goal — establishing the first manned orbital space station. Unmanned flights to Mars and Venus, where the Russians are years ahead of the United States in exploration, should continue. There has been no indication of a manned flight to the moon.

Junior College Signups Slated At Santa Rosa

Registration for evening classes at Santa Rosa Junior College will begin Wednesday, according to John J. Healy, dean of the evening program.

Brochures listing all classes for the spring semester will be mailed this week to more than 60,000 Sonoma County households. A full range of academic and occupational classes will be offered at the Santa Rosa campus and other locations.

Registration may be completed by mail or in person at Bailey Hall beginning Jan. 5. The registration period will close Jan. 26 and classes begin Feb. 5.

Persons needing assistance in planning programs may contact the evening college office for counseling appointments. Classes are open to all high school graduates and to persons over the age of 19 who have been out of school at least one semester. Most classes carry a registration fee of $3.50.

$600,000 Award Given To Family

OAKLAND (UPI) —Alameda County Superior Court Judge F. M. Van Sicklen Tuesday approved a $600,000 out-of-court settlement in a malpractice suit by the wife and children of a senior methods analyst for Varian Associates of Palo Alto.

The attorney for Mrs. Mary E. Nickolai, 38, and her four daughters said Erhard R. Nickolai, 41, was to have undergone routine sinus surgery in 1970 but this was canceled when a skin cleansing preparation containing iodine was used in his mouth and got into his lungs.

Bruce Walkup, the lawyer, said Nickolai died eight days later.

The settlement was approved by the insurance carriers for Drs. Andrew Chen, Arnold Wong and Alan Kinsel of Fremont and Washington Hospital in Fremont.

Law Carries Regulations On Pregnancy Test Kits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation to regulate "do-it-yourself" pregnancy testing kits and vetoed a bill extending peace officer status to Los Angeles dog catchers.

The measures were among dozens the governor signed or vetoed on Wednesday as he rushed to meet a Dec. 31 deadline for acting on legislation before the start of the veto override session Jan. 1.

Reagan rejected a bill by Assemblyman Alex Garcia, D-Los Angeles, which proposed extending peace officer status along with the right to carry a gun to Los Angeles dog catchers, city parking control checkers, public defender investigators and housing authority patrolmen. The governor said he saw no need for the measure.

The governor signed a measure by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, that will require state health certification before "do-it-yourself" pregnancy kits can be sold in California.

Reagan also signed a $590,000 bill to help provide treatment and transplants for children suffering from kidney disease. The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, requires the money to be used either for existing kidney dialysis and transplantation centers or to establish new programs.

The governor also vetoed these bills:

—By Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, to require the state to maintain surplus highway lands in big cities as parks. Reagan said the cost would be "prohibitive" and would require the Department of Public Works to start an "extensive and entirely new parks function."

—By Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, empowering the advisory Health Care Commission to approve any cut back in Medi-Cal services ordered by the state Medi-Cal director. Reagan said he saw no "sufficiently compelling" reason to reduce the director's authority.

—By Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, to grant additional survivors benefits to certain state and retired school employes. Reagan said an investigation is now under way into state employe benefits and no major changes should be made until the study is finished.

—By Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach, to require that a "safety member" of the public employes retirement system would be retired for a disability or reinstated from such retirement when his employer determined his disability has ended. Los Angeles County Marshal Timothy Sperl had complained earlier that a virtually identical bill was aimed at forcing him to retire. Reagan vetoed that measure and said he saw no reason now to reverse that action.

—By Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, to increase the death benefits for retired state workers. Reagan said a study of the entire state employe benefit system was under way and no major revisions should be made until it is completed.

Reagan also signed these bills:

—By Sen. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, providing a 5 per cent pension increase to state employes or local school district employes who retired before Dec. 31, 1970.

—By Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, appropriating $750,000 to pay overtime to California Youth Authority employes which was earned between Jan. 13, 1970, through June 30, 1971.

—By Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, imposing uniform rules of voter registration to clarify Supreme Court rulings. Among other things, the measure permits voters to register until 29 days before an election.

—By Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'Berg, D-Sacramento, and a similar measure by Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego, increasing the limit on Cal-Vet home loans from $20,000 to $25,00.

Teen Contraceptive Legislation Vetoed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A controversial bill allowing sexually active teenage girls to obtain contraceptives without their parents' consent has been vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan as going "too far." "Simply because sexual permissiveness may exist among certain young people does not mean the state should make it any easier for them," Reagan said in a veto message Wednesday.

But the author, Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, charged that Reagan's veto "will result in more teenage abortions, more unwanted babies born to teenage mothers and more teenage girls running away from home."

The measure would have made it legal for a physician to dispense birth control information and prescribe The Pill and other contraceptives for a minor he considered "sexually active." Prior parental consent would not be required.

Currently, teenage boys can purchase contraceptives but most girls cannot. Beilenson said, however, that children of welfare families need no parental consent to obtain contraceptives.

Beilenson, author of the state's liberalized therapeutic abortion law, noted that teenage girls nw can legally have babies or abortions without their parents' approval or they can declare themselves self-supporting and legally obtain The Pill without parental knowledge.

"But the law does not permit them to see their own doctor about birth control without a note from home," he said, noting that the governor twice previously vetoed similar bills.

Reagan said the bill represented an "unwarranted intrusion" into the prerogatives of the parent and said when "government assumes such authority and strips parents of such consent prerogatives, it has gone too far."

Prime Interest Rates On Loans Raised By Banks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting today, the prime interest rate on loans at every major bank in California is one-quarter per cent higher.

The announcement yesterday of the increase from 5¾ to 6 per cent came after eastern banks announced similar plans last week. The prime lending rate is the rate available to the best customers of the banks.

Earlier this year, the prime rate was as low as 4½ per cent.

John F. Holman, executive vice president and senior loan officer of Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco, said, "Loan demand has been strong at Wells Fargo. Our loan volume has been rising each week for more than a month."

One Los Angeles bank official said, "One reason our rates are moving up is the recent tightening of the money system by the Federal Reserve. Interest rates are a thermometer of business activity and as business increases, the government knows rates are going to climb, too."

He said he expected the prime lending rate to increase another one-half of one per cent by the middle of next year.

Bank of America was the first to announce the one-quarter per cent increase. There were similar statements by Wells Fargo Bank, Bank of California, United California Bank, Union Bank and Security Pacific National Bank and Crocker Bank.

Female Inmate Care Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A woman in jail or prison can summon a private physician of her choice to determine if she is pregnant or not and to care for her if she is under a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan also signed yesterday a separate bill forbidding imposition of restrictions on abortions for prisoners other than those contained in the state's Therapeutic Abortion Act.

Both measures were authored by Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles.

The abortion bill is AB 1004; the other is AB 1003.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Dec. 28, the 363rd day of 1972 with three to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States, was born Dec. 28, 1856.

On this day in history:

In 1846, Iowa was admitted to the union as the 29th state.

In 1869, members of the Knights of Labor held the first Labor Day observance in American history. Also that day, chewing gum was patented by William Semple of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

In 1945, Congress officially recognized "the pledge of allegiance" to the American flag.

A thought for the day: Greek biographer Plutarch said: "The whole life of man is but a point of time; let us enjoy it therefore while it lasts, and not spend it to no purpose."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, light air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Research Indicates Influence In Mother Can Affect Unborn

More than two decades ago, we had the first clue that viral infections could have an adverse effect on pregnancy. It was discovered that a woman who developed German measles during the first three months of pregnancy was likely to deliver a baby with defects of the heart, eyes, or ears. Since then, researchers have investigated the possible effects of other viruses on pregnancy. Until recently, they found very little evidence of harm to the fetus.

NOW IT SEEMS that influenza during pregnancy may not be as harmless as has been thought. Dr. Eva Alberman and research epidemiologist Jean Fedrick studied the outcome of 16,750 children born in the first week of March, 1958. While pregnant, the mothers of 1,959 of these infants had influenza. This was in contrast to 14,791 infants born of mothers who did not have the flu.

During the ensuing years, eight from the first group developed cancer, an incidence of 4.1 per 1,000. Among the 14,791 infants whose mothers did not have flu, there were 12 cases of cancer (0.8 per 1,000). In other words, children born of mothers who had influenza during pregnancy had approximately four times as much cancer. The study was conducted 11 years after birth and there is a possibility that a second survey after 16 years may change the statistics.

LEUKEMIA was the type of cancer that these children developed. This research gives credence to the theory that viruses are responsible for leukemia. Beyond this, we only can say that the results add a small piece to the jigsaw puzzle known as cancer. There are many unanswered questions to this type of statistical research.

Certain strains of influenza viruses are capable of crossing the placenta to reach the fetus; others are not. Acute infections, such as influenza, also are capable of producing a profound toxemia. The latter, rather than the virus, could be responsible. Or, perhaps, the effects of the drugs taken for flu caused the cancers.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal).

PROCAINE INJECTIONS

A reader writes: I'm 62 years old and would like to know if procaine injections will revitalize me?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. American and English physicians never have been able to duplicate the results of Prof. Anna Aslan, the Romanian physician. She has a dynamic personality and her good results may have been obtained through suggestion or mesmerism, rather than from the injections of procaine. In addition, I suspect she had a good public relations department.

DISTURBED SLEEP

D.M. writes: What makes me awaken from a sound sleep and sit up with great force? During this time I feel stunned and cannot think clearly.

REPLY

A dream or an oxygen deficiency may awaken anyone. You are stunned and cannot think clearly because you are half asleep. The oxygen deficiency may be of circulatory origin.

COFFEE AND SKIN

M.G. writes: Will drinking lots of coffee darken the skin and drinking lots of milk lighten it?

REPLY

Not if coffe and milk are swallowed. Bathing in coffe might darken the skin.

West Marin Teen Doesn't Fare Well

A 16-year-old Petaluma youth, who admitted robbing the Bank of America in Tomales in March, didn't fare as well on his second attempt Thursday, the Marin sheriff's department disclosed yesterday.

Deputies arrested the youth in a house on Dillon Beach Road shortly after bank manager Harry P. Bonnikson, Jr. refused to give him any money at 1:50 p.m.

The youth admitted the robbery attempt and also admitted robbing Bonnikson of $788 March 9, deputies said. He was booked into Juvenile Hall on suspicion of both robberies.

His name was withheld because of a standing order by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Bonnikson told deputies he was alone in the bank when the 113-pound youth, five feet, three inches tall entered the bank wearing a ski mask over his face.

The youth pretended to have a gun in his pocket and thrust a note at Bonnikson reading, "Put all of the money in the bag or I will kill you."

Bonnikson, according to deputies, told him, "You are not getting anything this time." The manager told the Independent-Journal the masked robber appeared to be the same one who held him up on March 9.

It's A Great Game For Great Cause

With the 49ers and Raiders losing their first playoff games, the Shrine East-West people were left with the only football game in town this weekend. There will be no competition for the sports dollar which gives the Shrine committee a better chance to sell all 61,000 seats at Candlestick Park for Saturday's game.

If the 49ers had made it past Dallas last Saturday, they would be hosting Washington on the same Candlestick Park carpet Sunday and many fans who couldn't afford to shell out enough money for both games would have to make a choice. Unfortunately for the 49ers, that choice has been made or those fans.

FOR THE SAKE of a lot of kids lying in beds at the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, I hope Saturday's 48th annual game is a sellout. That's one time you can sit there and watch good football and know the money you plunked out for the ticket is going to a good cause. You watch strong legs run, that weak legs might walk. It's the motto of the game.

I see that the East has been made four-point favorites but that shouldn't alarm all you Westerners. The East is usually favored, but the West won the last four years.

If you haven't yet bought tickets, you better make your move. Marin County ticket locations include Macy's, Taveggia and Brusati Sport and Saddle Shop, Glass and Sash, Tam Fences in San Rafael, and Dolman Realty in Corte Madera.

THERE ARE STILL tickets left although it was rumored they would all be gobbled up by pro scouts. I'm not saying that there will be 61,000 scouts at the game, but if the guy next to you keeps taking notes and charting plays, find out which pro team he is representing.

The talent is there for you to see. There are 12 players who were named either first or second team consensus All-America. Most of them are on the East squad. First team Easterners who won consensus A-A honors are Paul Seymour, offensive tackle from Michigan; Otis Armstrong, running back from Purdue; Dave Butz, defensive tackle from Purdue; Brad Van Pelt, defensive back from Michigan State, and Randy Logan, defensive back from Michigan. The lone first string A-A players on the West side are both defensive backs, Calvin Jones from Washington and Jackie Wallace of Arizona State.

BUT YOU NEVER know who is going to be the star of the show. Last year, everyone expected Cornell's Ed Marinero, runner-up for the Heisman Trophy, to be the big gun but he had a miserable day, held in check constantly and coughing up the ball on a fumble.

This year the Ivy League is sending Jauron, a young man who holds 10 Yale running records, breaking some held by Calvin Hill, now with the Dallas Cowboys.

It should be some game.

SIX-POINT LANDING — Gray team running back Kenneth Garrett (35) eluded North team defender Michael White and scampered one yard into the end zone for a second quarter touchdown last night. The Gray won, 27-15, in the Blue-Gray football game in Montgomery, Ala.

BASKETBALL

Drake Team Lone Winner

Redwood and Marin Catholic High Schools took on some tough foes yesterday, and both lost valiantly, as the Giants dropped an 80-72 decision to Mills of Millbrae, and the Wildcats lost to Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland, 49-47, in non-league basketball games involving Marin teams.

In other games, Drake was the day's only varsity winner for Marin, beating Lincoln of San Francisco, 55-34, while San Rafael was upset by Washington of San Francisco, 55-54.

Redwood (6-6) lost to one of the peninsula's top teams in its doubleheader at San Francisco State University. Tonight at 8:30, the Giants take on St. Ignatius in the same gym.

The Giants shot well from the floor (49 per cent), but so did Mills (58 per cent). Redwood coach Dick Hart was pleased that all his starters scored in double figures, as Mike Connor led with 16. "We just lost to a better team," said Hart.

Marin Catholic's game was quite similar, as the 'Cats (6-6) lost to inexperienced, but perpetually tough Bishop O'Dowd in the opening round of the O'Dowd tournament. Marin also shot fairly well at 40 per cent, but the Dragons had a hot night, sinking 58 per cent of their outside shots.

Drake (9-3) had an easy time against Lincoln, after its disastrous loss last week to another San Francisco foe, Riordan. The Pirates opened to an 11-point halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way.

Center Byron Stewart led San Rafael (7-4) with 12 points and 10 rebounds in the Bulldogs' surprising loss to Washington. Pete Neuwald led the host scorers with 13.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda High School moved into semi-final action of the Marin Catholic Freshman Basketball Tournament, edging the hosts, 43-42.

Marin County's other representative, San Rafael, lost to Sacred Heart of San Francisco, 46-19, while Bishop O'Dowd emerged a tourney favorite, drubbing Santa Rosa's Cardinal Newman, 56-30. Moreau of Hayward dropped St. Patrick's of Vallejo (score unavailable) in the tourney's other game.

Action resumes today, as Newman plays San Rafael at 3 p.m., and St. Patrick's takes on Marin Catholic at 4:30 in the losers' bracket. O'Dowd plays Sacred Heart at 6 o'clock and Moreau goes against Terra Linda at 7:30 in the winners' bracket.

Terra Linda outscored the hosts 24-14 in the fourth quarter to pull out the close victory. Steve Carli led the Trojans with 12 points, while Wildcat Gary Johnson scored 20. Deke Welch topped San Rafael's scorers with eight in the Bulldogs' loss.

Nickel Defense Is Set By Allen For Dallas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins' coach George Allen has adopted a deflation policy for his defense against the Dallas Cowboys in the National Football Conference championship playoff Sunday. Instead of his "quarter" defense, he's going back to the "Nickel" one.

Allen caught the Green Bay Packers by surprise last Sunday when he removed his middle linebacker on almost every running situation and used a fifth defensive lineman, Manny Sistrunk, to provide added heft.

In the upcoming confrontation with Dallas, Allen will return to the "Nickel" defense used by most pro teams. This consists of removing a linebacker for a speedier defensive back in passing situations.

Allen's strategy worked against the Packers, who went down to defeat by a 16-3 margin.

"You can't use a five-man defensive line against a diverse offense like Dallas has," he explained.

Redskin defensive end Verlon Biggs agreed.

"Dallas has perhaps as good a running attack as Green Bay," he commented, "but they also have a tremendous passing attack.

"The five man line is great if you want to make the other team throw because it's strong with the run and weak with the pass. You can't be weak in any area against the Cowboys. You just about have to play them straight."

If, as Allen predicts, Dallas starts Roger Staubach at quarterback in place of Craig Morton, the scrambling Cowboy passer will create a new defensive problem for the Redskins. Dallas was to name its starting quarterback today.

Pittsburgh Has Specialty Teams Plus Over Miami

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—When opponents are as evenly matched as American Football Conference title contestants Pittsburgh and Miami appear to be, the winning edge is often with the specialty teams.

The edge may be with the Steelers in this case. Placekicker Roy Gerela and punter Bobby Walden both finished second in the AFC at their respective tasks.

As a counterbalance, Sunday's game is the first league title appearance for the 40-yearold Steeler franchise, tipping the pressure indicator towards Pittsburgh.

Gerela, the all-time leading Steeler scorer with 119 points, discounts the intensity of the championship.

"It's been that way all season long—in Dallas, with Minnesota, Kansas City, Cleveland," He said Wednesday, "We've been under pressure in all of those games and came through."

Walden, who averaged 43.8 yards per punt this season, agreed.

"I've been telling myself in tight situations all season long, don't lose the rhythm," he said.

Particularly effective in clutches, Walden kicked the longest punt in the NFL this season, a 72-yarder against Oakland early in the season.

The Dolphins blocked a punt by Don Cockeroft early in their 20-14 playoff victory over the Cleveland Browns last week, but that doesn't concern Walden either.

"Well now, they might block one and they might not," he said. "That's what I've got 10 men in front of me for. But I've had two blocked this year, though."

With Garo Yepremian, the Dolphins do not have to reach mid-field to score. Yepremian has kicked 24 field goals, including boots of 54 and 51 yards, and had an overall point total of 115.

Gerela, who has kicked 28 field goals, including a 49-yarder acknowledges that Yepremian is one of the top longrange kickers. Gerela has been remarkably accurate from inside the 30, however, kicking 17-of-19.

GRAY STARS

Defensive Backs Steal Grid Show

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —The 35th annual Blue-Gray football game featured some of the nation's top offensive performers, but two defensive backs from Mississippi State stole the show as the South took a 27-15 victory.

Ken Phares, a 185-pounder from Clinton, La., put the South ahead on the third play of the game Wednesday night when he stole a pass thrown by quarterback Tony Adams of Utah State and raced 34 yards for the score. The Mississippi State star set up another Gray score with an interception and Frank Dowsing, an All-SEC performer from Mississippi State, stopped a Blue drive with an interception on the two.

The game had been billed as a passing duel between Adams and South quarterback Don Strock of Virginia Tech. Strock was the nation's total offense and forward passing leader. Adams had completed the 1972 collegiate season second in the nation in total offense and third in passing.

Strock hit on 14-of-33 passes for 153 yards. He was denied a touchdown, but key passes of 19 and 21 yards from Strock to Jim Hodge of Arkansas set up a one-yard scoring plunge by Ken Garrett of Wake Forest in the second period. Strock was chosen the game's Most Valuable Player by sportswriters covering the game.

Strock and Phares took the offensive and defensive honors for the South while flanker Tom Forzani of Utah State and defensive end Eddie Sheats of Kansas won the honors for the North.

Bill Sadler of Texas Christian, the game's leading rusher with 69 yards, scored another South touchdown on a one-yard run. The score was set up by Phares' second interception and a pass interference call. Mark Williams of Rice kicked field goals of 21 and 23 yards to complete the Gray scoring.

A's Action: Cepeda, Two Others Axed

OAKLAND (UPI)—Orlando Cepeda, once one of the most feared right-handed hitters in baseball, today finds himself without a team and looking for a job.

The National League's Most Valuable Player with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1967 was one of three players released Wednesday by the Oakland Athletics.

Clearing waivers were Cepeda, infielder Larry Brown and pitcher Joe Horlen. None of the other 23 major league teams was interested in the players.

Cepeda, 35, came to the A's last June 29 from the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Denny McLain and managed only three hitting appearances before going into the hospital for another knee operation.

Cepeda had played previously with the San Francisco Giants and was called the "Baby Bull."

Brown, 32, was purchased from the Cleveland Indians in April 1971 and filled a utility role with the A's. He batted only .183 in 47 games.

Horlen, 35, was signed as a free agent last April 19 after the Chicago White Sox cut him loose. He appeared in 32 games for the A's as a middle inning reliever and spot starter and posted a 3-4 won-lost record and 3.00 earned run average.

The A's also announced the signing of 21-year-old switchhitting third baseman-catcher Jack Bastable of the University of Missouri.

Meanwhile, A's' owner Charles O. Finley won an award of $231,600 in attorney fees from Sportservice Corp. in U.S. District Court in San Francisco. Last August, Finley was awarded $864,504 in antitrust damages from Sportservice in litigation over concession rights at the Oakland Coliseum.

Tom C. Clark, retired U.S. Supreme Court Justice, found that Sportservice had violated antitrust laws by monopolizing concessions at major league ballparks.

PRO SCOUTS PREDICT:

East To Beat West In Shrine Football

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pro scouts watching the two teams in practice this week figure the East will rout the West Saturday in the 48th Shrine East-West Game at Candlestick Park.

While the scouts have been lavish in their praise of the East team, the professional oddsmakers list the East no more than a four-point favorite.

"Every year the East comes out here with all the press notices and the West winds up winning the game," cautioned Andros, an eternal optimist. "They are telling us this year that we won't be able to run against the East defense but I won't believe that until they stop us, if they can."

But as insurance, Andros has worked his two quarterbacks—Ty Paine of Washington State and George Amundson of Iowa State—overtime on play-action formations.

"I want them to be ready to throw on the run if they have to," said Andros, who added he'll pick his starting quarterback at game time.

"I don't see that it makes any difference which one starts," said Andros, "because they'll get equal time in any event."

While Andros pondered over his starting alignment, head East Coach Carmen Cozza seemed all set. Wednesday he named his starting defensive unit and it produced two mild surprises.

Cozza picked Joe Ehrmann of Syracuse to play at defensive tackle ahead of big Dennis Johnson of Delaware when Johnson missed a workout because of illness. He also named Gary Hrivnak of Purdue, normally a tight end, to play at outside linebacker as well.

"The way he (Hrivnak) hits we had to find a place for him on defense," said Cozza.

Gary Huff of Florida State will be the East starting quarterback with Mike Wells of Illinois behind him. Cozza indicated they'll share the job pretty much on a 50-50 basis.

"In a game such as this," said Cozza, "you want to give every boy some playing time. Besides, we have only 28 players on the squad, which means every man does his share."

Game time Saturday is 1 p.m. and the game will be televised nationally. The forecast is for clear weather with the temperature in the high 50s and low 60s. Officials indicated Wednesday that some tickets are available in most locations.

Nostalgia Award To Casey Stengel

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Casey Stengel, who won 10 pennants and seven World Series in 12 years as manager of the New York Yankees, will receive the Nostalgia Award Jan. 21 at the Kansas City baseball dinner.

Stengel, 82, and a native of Kansas City, played 12 years in the major leagues and managed 25 years. He still holds the record for the most world series games as a manager, 63.

The dinner is co-sponsored by the Royal Lancers and the Kansas City chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Last year's award went to Satchel Paige.

Sugar Bowl Bet By 2 Governors

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania will pay a "deer" price if Penn State loses the Sugar Bowl game.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp has wagered a white-tail deer, the official state animal, against an Oklahoma steer offered by Oklahoma Gov. David Hall.

The animal bet by the losing team will be slaughtered and dressed before being sent as payment.

Shapp said Wednesday he chose a deer because its "swift and graceful movements through the broken field have served as a pattern for the running style of Penn State's great football team."

Russian Hockey Team Triumphs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)— Russia's World Cup hockey team nipped the Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western Hockey League 5-4 in an exhibition game before a packed house of 12,104 Wednesday night.

Viacheslav Anisin scored twice for the Russians, his second goal in the third period giving the Russians a two-goal lead.

Murray Heatley, with his second of two goals for the night, cut the margin to a single road with less than four minutes remaining in the game. The Raodrunners had a late power play opportunity to tie the score but were turned aside by goalie Vladislav Tretiak.

BASKETBALL

Tars In Oregon Tourney Tonight

Maybe the influential New York press hasn't found out yet, but College of Marin's basketball fame certainly does extend beyond the confines of California.

"I picked 'em on reputation," said tournament director Art Weston, explaining why Marin will take the floor tonight in the second annual Central Oregon Community College tournament in Bend, Ore.

Marin will play at 6:30 p.m. against Big Bend Community College from Moses Lake, Wash., in an opening-round game. Yuba College of Marysville will face the hosts in the other contest at 8:30. Winners advance to the finals tomorrow night at 8:30.

"I wanted some schools from California," continued Weston, who also coaches Central Oregon's team. "I like a tough schedule. I could pad my own tournament so we could win it, but I don't like to operate that way.

"I played down at Compton (Junior College) a couple of years ago in a tournament, and their coach told me about Marin."

The Tars left by car at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, minus center Neil Traub and forward Jim Forni, who are ill. They went to Marysville where they joined the Yuba team for a bus trip north. Marin (10-1) defeated Yuba last week, 96-61, so it might have been an interesting trek.

Central Oregon's record is only 3-5, but Weston rates his team better than last year's, which was second in the state. "We've played some tough opponents," he said. "We've won three straight.

"But still, I hope Marin is tired from the drive."

The Seals Squander Another Early Lead

OAKLAND (UPI) — For the umpteenth time this season, the California Golden Seals have squandered an early lead.

It cost them a victory Wednesday night as the Philadelphia Flyers stormed from a two-goal deficit with two scores in the middle period to deadlock the Seals 2-2 before 3,610 hardy hockey fans.

The Seals managed only three shots on goal in the opening period and scored on two of them.

But Belhumeur, subbing for regular Doug Favell, then shut off the Seals for the remainder

Court Eyes Prop. 21 Challenge

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Sacramento court took an NAACP challenge to Prop. 21, the anti-busing initiative, under submission yesterday.

Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Babbich gave no indication when he would rule on the case after hearing arguments from Nathaniel Colley, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and John Heinrich, an attorney in the Sacramento County Counsel's office.

Colley's suit contends that Sacramento's Camellia Elementary School, which has a 90 per cent minority enrollment, had formulated a desegregation plan under the Bagley Act, but the plan has been stopped by passage of Prop. 21 on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Wilmer Leon, a consultant for State Department of Education, told the court that schools with a high ratio of minorities produce "low achievers."

He said the only way a school with 90 per cent minorities can be desegregated is by reassignment, and race must be a primary consideration.

"I think it is educationally advantageous to have desegregated schools," he said.

Heinrich said the state Constitution says everyone is entitled to an education withot regard to race, and it does not say each school must be racially balanced.

Colley said Prop. 21 is "no different" than statutes struck down in other states.

"I have news for those who believe California has always been pure" in race issues, Colley said. He quoted a century-old California law which mentioned only "white children."

Case Is Sent To Superior Court

Christopher Steve James Bailey, 22, of San Francisco, was held to answer in Marin Superior Court Tuesday, after preliminary hearing before Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman.

Bailey was charged with auto theft and drunken driving, after his arrest Dec. 14 by the California Highway Patrol.

$435 Million Available To Reagan For Tax Cut

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post reported today that at least $435 million will be available to Gov. Ronald Reagan for an income tax cut, despite enactment of the $1.1 billion property tax relief-school aid bill.

Post said the state will end the current fiscal year June 30 with a $683 million budget surplus. Roughly $248 million of that will be needed during the next three years to help finance the tax shift bill, Post said.

But, he reported the state still will end the 1975-76 fiscal year with a $435 million surplus, assuming spending levels remained the same as they are now and the economy remained prosperous.

That $435 million surplus, Post's office said, would be available to Reagan on a one-time basis this year for the income tax cut he intends to propose to the legislature.

Chief Deputy Finance Director Kenneth Hall said, however, that no decisions had been made on how big the tax cut would be.

Economy Survey Gets Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau has started the survey it takes every five years of the national economy.

Bureau employes on Tuesday began distributing questionnaires to the nation's 2.1 million largest business firms. The survey will gather information on the state of business in 1972, including the number of persons employed, how much was paid in wages, and in what activities businesses were engaged.

Another 2.9 million smaller companies will be interviewed on a selective basis.

1973 Vintage Year For Russ Diplomats

By PETER J. SHAW

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's foreign policy enjoyed a vintage year in 1972: the Nixon summit, a strategic arms limitation pact, falling barriers to Soviet-American trade, tacit acceptance of the Potsdam status quo in Europe, the beginnings of a European Security Conference, and improved links with West Germany and India.

The challenge in 1973 will be the sober task of maintaining what has been won.

Seasoned diplomats and observers predict that talks on European force reductions and the unavoidable frictions of a full-dress European Security Conference will give Soviet diplomacy its severest tests in 1973.

"Achieving agreement on force reductions will be just as difficult, or more difficult, as the strategic arms limitation talks," a veteran Western diplomat said. "If anything is likely to take the gloss off the triumphs of 1972, this will."

Diplomatic betting at the moment is that the Kremlin will do all it can, short of compromising security and internal stability, to make the international parleys a multisided success.

Some diplomats who foresee Soviet flexibility in any talks on reduction of forces in Europe say the Kremlin may wish to extend such dialogues to include nuclear arms as well as troop numbers.

Their reckoning is based on the economic drain of supplying nuclear arsenals for two potential fronts, Europe and China.

Virtually no one expects any change in 1973 in the Sino-Soviet stalemate on border talks and the ideological rift.

The border talks apparently are stalled over Soviet refusal to heed China's demand for at least a partial withdrawal of the 1 million Soviet troops Peking says are massed along the border.

Soviet offers of olive branches in the ideological split were ignored by the Chinese in 1972 and will be, one diplomat said, "as long as Mao Tse-tung is in charge."

The rosy euphoria that accompanied better Soviet-American relations in 1972 may dull somewhat in 1973.

Diplomatic contacts have been warming steadily under a Kremlin directive—confirmed by Russians and Americans alike—to be "freer and easier." But the great trade boom remains distant.

"Both nations have been led to expect too much in the way of mutual economic benefits," a Moscow veteran said. "The hard facts are that the trade balance remains 3-1 in America's favor and is not going to shift in 1973. The big deals for Soviet natural gas that could change things are not feasible until the end of the decade."

One key to a trade upsurge—most favored nation tariff status for the Soviet Union — remained threatened by 75 U.S. senators who vowed to thwart approval if Moscow does not rescind or tone down a "diploma tax" on would-be emigrants. No clear picture of Soviet policy regarding the tax had emerged at year's end.

Moderation in Soviet-American projects for environmental and scientific research is expected in 1973. There will be a smaller, more selective number of projects because the volume of talks up to now has been wearing down the bureaucracies of both nations.

No major new agreements are anticipated when Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party general secretary, visits Washington in April.

Diplomats say Brezhnev and President Nixon will review the progress of the pacts signed in Moscow last May. One predicted Brezhnev "may not be very happy" about the pace of economic cooperation although both sides should "make every effort to smooth things over."

Factually, most diplomats and observers think China will remain the Kremlin's top preoccupation in 1973, largely because of security fears. Others view China as the prime "emotional worry" but see Soviet-American relations as the most important consideration right now.

"The new Soviet-American friendship is a big and major switch," one European diplomat said. "It is not just for tactical purposes, but a permanent change based on a permanent fact—the nuclear arms balance and the need to keep arms at a reasonable economic and military level."

Following a Vietnam ceasefire, the Soviet Union will likely continue to support Hanoi politically but do nothing to provoke a confrontation with the United States should hostilities reignite. Diplomats think the Kremlin will continue to press for the neutralization of Southeast Asia as a step that would curb Chinese influence.

Moscow will probably maintain its tough line against Israel in 1973 and keep the door shut on any possible renewal of major involvement in Egypt, whose ouster of Soviet advisors in 1972 was embarrassing, albeit welcome, for the Kremlin.

The Soviet manned space program, idle since the SZ-11 tragedy in June, 1971, should resume in 1973 with the same goal — establishing the first manned orbital space station. Unmanned flights to Mars and Venus, where the Russians are years ahead of the United States in exploration, should continue. There has been no indication of a manned flight to the moon.

Junior College Signups Slated At Santa Rosa

Registration for evening classes at Santa Rosa Junior College will begin Wednesday, according to John J. Healy, dean of the evening program.

Brochures listing all classes for the spring semester will be mailed this week to more than 60,000 Sonoma County households. A full range of academic and occupational classes will be offered at the Santa Rosa campus and other locations.

Registration may be completed by mail or in person at Bailey Hall beginning Jan. 5. The registration period will close Jan. 26 and classes begin Feb. 5.

Persons needing assistance in planning programs may contact the evening college office for counseling appointments. Classes are open to all high school graduates and to persons over the age of 19 who have been out of school at least one semester. Most classes carry a registration fee of $3.50.

$600,000 Award Given To Family

OAKLAND (UPI) —Alameda County Superior Court Judge F. M. Van Sicklen Tuesday approved a $600,000 out-of-court settlement in a malpractice suit by the wife and children of a senior methods analyst for Varian Associates of Palo Alto.

The attorney for Mrs. Mary E. Nickolai, 38, and her four daughters said Erhard R. Nickolai, 41, was to have undergone routine sinus surgery in 1970 but this was canceled when a skin cleansing preparation containing iodine was used in his mouth and got into his lungs.

Bruce Walkup, the lawyer, said Nickolai died eight days later.

The settlement was approved by the insurance carriers for Drs. Andrew Chen, Arnold Wong and Alan Kinsel of Fremont and Washington Hospital in Fremont.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Scrambling Man

By LEE TREVINO

There's a difference between luck and scrambling. The best scrambler is the player who isn't afraid to use the club that the shot calls for.

I've seen guys roll balls out of bunkers, bounce 'em off of trees, rocks and caddies, and still wind up close to the hole. That's luck. A scrambler turns bad shots into good results — and that takes skill.

Nobody can scramble well with a "pet" club. Show me a man trying to come out of a trap with a seven-iron because it's his favorite club and I'll show you somebody who's gonna scrape the sand in his backswing.

Don't lean on a certain club for small miracles. Okay, so you can hit a five-iron 70 yards into a tea cup. Don't try to chip out of tall grass with it. A good scrambler ain't afraid to use a four-iron, seven, or a wedge — if it's the percentage club.

A dude who takes the same stick into the bushes, trees and bunkers will always be scrambling — for bogeys. You can spot him anywhere. He's the one with the check book in his hand.

Harris Has A Strange Road To Top

In college at Penn State, Harris was in the shadows while Lydell Mitchell was the recipient of all the publicity and glory. Still, when it came to the pro draft, Harris was the first back taken.

He joined the Pittsburgh Steelers and as a rookie, was relegated to a reserve role, also serving as a return specialist. Then it happened. Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson, the regular Steeler running backs, came down with injuries and Harris got his chance. The rest is history.

Harris tore up the National Football League for two months, tying Jim Brown's record for six consecutive games in which he surpassed the 100-yard mark. He tapered off in his final two games when his offensive line was plagued with injuries but still managed to gain 1,056 yards, just short of the rookie record set last year by Green Bay's John Brockington.

Harris was rewarded for his efforts today when he came within one vote of unanimous selction as United Press International's 1972 American Football Conference Rookie of the Year. Harris received 38 of the 39 votes cast by a panel of three pro football writers from each AFC city.

The lone vote not cast for Harris went to Sistrunk, the Oakland Raiders' defensive tackle.

The 6-4, 255-pound Sistrunk, meanwhile, was one of the better bargains of 1972. Signed as a free agent by Los Angeles, he couldn't find a slot with the Rams and Oakland grabbed him up. He immediately moved out veteran Carlton Oats and established himself as one of the toughest performers in the league.

Dick Lotz Working For Goal

The touring pro from Hayward, Calif., fired a five-under-par 67 on Old Delmonte Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead over the field entering today's second round of the $25,000 Laguna Seca-Delmonte Hyatt Pro-Am Invitational.

A dismal 1972 season eliminated Lotz as a automatic qualifier for the 1973 PGA tour. He blamed his poor showing to the fact he had several other side interests and spent too much time as a member of the PGA Tournament Policy Board, a position he no longer holds.

"I'm going into this coming year with an attitude of working hard on my game and I am enthused about it," said Lotz. "Now I'm only going to concentrate on golf."

Eight players shot 68s to deadlock for second place in the new 72-hole tournament. Play opened under warm sunshine Wednesday but finished with a light drizzle falling.

Southern Cal Motivation For Roses

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—For those who claim the Southern California Trojans don't have any motivation for their Rose Bowl game against Ohio State, Coach John McKay says it isn't true.

"A lot of people have been saying we don't have any motivation," he told a telephone news conference Wednesday. "But that isn't true because we would like to be the only team in the country to go 12-0 this year."

The Trojans were named the nation's No. 1 team by the United Press International board of ratings and McKay has said that the outcome of the Rose Bowl will not affect the ranking.

The Trojans practiced for 90 minutes Wednesday and McKay said he will give the players the day off Sunday, the day before the Rose Bowl contest.

The Buckeyes skipped practice Wednesday and instead toured Universal Studios.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes said reserve offensive guard Dick Mack probably will see some action at center in the New Years Day classic.

The 6-foot, 215-pound Bucyrus, Ohio, sophomore was added to the roster of centers who will replace the ailing Steve Meyers. Also seeing action at center will be Steve Luke and possibly Tom Nixon.

Meyers has a virus of the spleen and team doctor Robert Murphy said he will not recover in time for the Rose Bowl game.

PREP CAGE PROSPECTS

Terra Linda Is Improving As League Season Nears

By LEW CODDINGTON

Seventh in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

"At this juncture, I'm not pleased, but I don't think they're doing as poorly as the record makes it seem."

That was coach Bob Corley's assessment of his Terra Linda High School basketball team after the Trojans had lost six of seven games, dropping their season record to 4-7 before Tuesday's victory over the College of Marin freshmen.

"We have profited from our losses," Corley went on. "We are improving, and I've seen a lot of good things."

Corley's Trojans finished seventh in the Marin County Athletic League last year with a 4-10 record, and were 10-15 overall. One authentic star and two other occasional starters return from that team, but otherwise the names are new.

The star is Mark Lowey, a 6-foot-4 senior who has been moved from center to forward. He finished eighth among MCAL scorers last year with a 12.7 average and was honorable mention all-league.

The other forward spot belongs to 6-2 Scott Logan, moved from guard, and one guard post is in the hands of 5-10 Nick Mattos. Both were sometime starters last year.

Brian Morey, a 6-5 junior transfer from Utah, has moved into the center spot, and 5-11 Jeff Leaird is the other guard. When Corley has to go to the bench, he comes up with 6-3 forward Rich Mullin, 6-3 forward Mike Purcell, 6-1 guard Mike Austin and 5-10 guard Bob Buckley, who is the younger brother of last year's star John.

For the Trojans to start winning consistently, Corley says, they must start to control the tempo of the game. "I'm not saying we'll play a real slow game, but we can't run and shoot with some of these clubs," he said. Last week, the Trojans lost wide-open games to Washington of San Francisco (85-73) and Ells of Richmond (107-92).

Another problem has been fouling. Against Ells,7for example, the entire front line fouled out, and against Del Valle of Walnut Creek earlier, the Trojans gave up 33 points on free throws. "We held them to 10 field goals and still lost," lamented Corley.

The Trojans have had trouble passing effectively against a press, Corley added, but he sees this as one area where his team is improving as the season goes on.

And that, after all, is why the non-league season was created — not to run up an impressive record, but to iron out the problems and get the team ready for the league. And this fact is known at Terra Linda.

Any time Corley looks up from his desk he can see Don Lucas, whose Trojan football team lost 'em all during non-league play, but ended up in a post-season bowl.

THE SKI SCENE

Snow Chains: Necessary Evil

By CHARLIE COANE

One of the necessary evils of skiing is usually in a sack or a small rectangular box in the trunk of your car. Chains are something that no one likes to think about, much less learn how to use. But for anyone who is planning on doing much skiing during this or any season in the Sierra, chains will enter into the scene more times than one.

True, you don't have to buy chains and you may not have to learn anything about them. You can also rent them for a few dollars. But, if you're an avid skier, you're just delaying the inevitable. You should buy chains and you should learn how to use them correctly. Chains are more likely to be required during the first two or three months of skiing than during the final half of the ski season. But you cannot afford to take a chance driving around the mountains without at least having those little devils in your car somewhere.

Chains cost between $10-$35, depending upon the size of your tires. Fifteen dollars is pretty close for your basic car. But don't stop with just chains. You also need a pair of rubber tighteners ($1-$2), which can be essential for a tight fit around the tires. Those are the basics: chains and tighteners. And most of the time you can get someone (for $3-$4) to put those items on your car when the "chains required" sign pops up, and take them off when they're not needed. But, you can't always depend upon the official chain "putter-oners" (who are licensed).

Other handy things to have in your trunk include a "chain tool", extra chain strands, links, wire, flashlight, ground cloth and perhaps an old parka and gloves. Sounds like preparations for battle, and in a way it is. You have to expect the worst. The "chain tool" is a device for $1-$2 that allows you to very easily take off a broken strand.

If you're driving along and your chains break — you've got a problem. The easiest solution is to clip off the broken strand, and that's done with a chain tool. If you try it with anything else, you could be in for a real struggle. Remember, it could be snowing heavily and no help available. You can keep driving, but you'll do quite a bit of damage to your car with a broken chain. Don't worry about replacing the strand in the bad weather. You'll have no trouble running minus a few strands. The replacement strands can be put on where it's dry — again, use your chain tool.

The extra links and wire are emergency repair items. The wire could be used to fasten down a loose chain so it won't damage the car. The other preparations are strictly to aid in the comfort of putting on chains.

You can also run into situations where chains are required over a summit, and then not necessary once you've passed over the summit and dropped down 1-to-2,000 feet. But beware. You may need them again to drive on side roads or to reach your lodging.

COLLEGE CAGE

Minnesota Is Tourney Favorite

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Minnesota's Gophers established themselves as the club to beat Wednesday when the 17th Far West Basketball Classic got under way at Portland, Ore.

The Gophers came from behind with a variety of full-court presses and zone defenses to trip Washington State 41-35 after trailing by six points in the early going.

It was the sixth straight victory for fifth-ranked Minnesota which was paced by Dave Winfield's 15 points.

Oregon's Ducks shot at a blistering 64 per cent pace from the floor and trimmed Columbia 81-56 in the classic's other opening night game. Doug Little led the Ducks with 16 points and freshman Mark Barwig contributed 14.

In the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia, Southern Cal's Trojans lost an opening round game by 77-72 to LaSalle. Sophomore Gus Williams led USC with 23 points while Clint Chapman had 18. But Jim Crawford got 20 for LaSalle and Bob Jones and Bill Taylor 16 apiece.

All-America Ed Ratleff threw in 29 points at Oklahoma City while leading Long Beach to its ninth straight victory, by 87-68 over Mississippi in an All-College Tournament opening round tilt. Long Beach hit at 49 per cent from the floor.

Las Vegas' Rebels took a 15-point lead early in the second half and held on for the victory. Bob Florence paced the Rebels with 33 points and Jimmy Baker had 24.

Alaska trimmed Chico State 81-78, Marymount downed Eastern Washington 75-59, MacAlester turned back Whittier 84-79 and Central Washington beat Lewis and Clark 63-52 in the Chico Invitational in California. Al Shoats hit two free throws with nine seconds to go for Alaska.

In non-tournament games, Pacific with a 55 per cent shooting streak beat Illinois State 73-64, Hayward State upset St. Mary's 91-70, Seattle thumped Dayton 92-71, Wichita State got by Los Angeles State 84-67 and Cal State Bakersfield overcame a five-point deficit with 7 1-2 minutes to go and defeated UC Davis 73-68.

NHL PLAY

Rangers, Bruins Are Surprising

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

When the infant World Hockey Association raided the Boston Bruins for four of their key performers this summer, the experts said there was no way the Bruins could repeat as National Hockey League champions.

They also said there was almost no way last season's runner-ups, the New York Rangers, could miss out on the Stanley Cup.

Well, things haven't quite worked out the way the so-called experts figured and after Boston posted its fifth straight triumph Wednesday night, a 3-1 decision over the Atlanta Flames, and the Rangers went down to defeat at the hands of the Buffalo Sabres, the Bruins moved four points ahead of New York in the NHL East and were only one point behind the first-place Montreal Canadiens.

The Rangers dropped a 4-1 decision to Buffalo and in other NHL action, Minnesota edged Montreal 3-2, Toronto and Pittsburgh battled to a 3-3 tie, St. Louis whipped Chicago 5-2, California tied Philadelphia 2-2 and Los Angeles beat the New York Islanders 4-1.

Second period goals by Wayne Cashman, Fred Stanfield and Johnny Bucyk provided the streaking Bruins with their fifth straight win and third straight over Atlanta.

Second period goals by Danny Grant and Barry Gibbs gave Minnesota the lead and Dean Prentice added the decisive goal in the final period as the North Stars upended Montreal.

Green Bay Coach Devine Is Selected 'Man Of The Year'

Combined AP & UPI

DETROIT — Dan Devine, who took the Green Bay Packers from mediocrity to the National Football Conference Central Division title in two years, has been named Man of the Year by the Football News.

The Packers' coach-general manager was cited by the weekly paper over owner Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and coaches George Allen of the Washington Redskins, Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins, Bob Devaney of Nebraska, and Joe Paterno of Penn State.

Devine left his relatively secure job as coach at Missouri in January, 1971 to take over a team which had disintegrated after Vince Lombardi left it. Devine, 48, had a 93-37-7 college record for 13 years and won four of six bowl games.

Green Bay was 4-8-2 in Devine's first season but went 10-4 this past season, including back-to-back clutch wins over challengers Detroit and Minnesota at the end of the season to nail down the title. Washington defeated Green Bay 16-3 last weekend in the divisional playoffs.

Tennis

MELBOURNE — Bottom seed Onny-Parum of New Zealand today pulled an upset, defeating Russian champion Alex Metreveli in five tough sets in the quarter-finals of the Australian Open Tennis Championships at Kooyong, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

With many top seeds in the stands, interest has swung to the women's singles championships dominated by triple Wimbledon champion Margaret Court, 1971 Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong and Great Britain's Virginia Wade.

Miss Court who has trimmed right down since the birth of her son Daniel 10 months ago, blanked Barbara Dart of Australia 6-0, 6-0.

Olympics

TAMPERE, Finland — Tampere's City Council voted 9-2, with one abstention, to ask the International Olympic Committee to consider the city as a possible site for the 1976 Winter Olympics, conditional upon the help of the Finnish government to the tune of $3 million.

A's In Close Games

SPORT SHORTS

Most major Olympic events would be held in the city itself at existing facilities, with the ski jumping held 100 miles to the southeast at Lahti, and alpine events anywhere in central Europe.

Golf

NORFOLK, Conn. — Twenty-three-year-old Lanny Wadkins and 25-year-old Jocelyne Bourassa were named Wednesday as the 1972 Rookies of the Year by Golf Digest magazine. The awards will be made Feb. 19 at the Metropolitan New York Golf Writers Dinner in New York.

Wadkins, a former U.S. amateur champion, set a money-winning mark for first-year professionals, garnering $116,616 for 10th place on this year's money-winning list, including a victory in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational. Miss Bourassa set a money-winning record of $16,098 for first-year women pros and finished in the top 10 in nine tour events, including a second in the Southgate Open.

Hockey

DETROIT — The Detroit Red Wings announced Wednesday that goalie Denis DeJordy, acquired in a trade with the New York Islanders for Arnie Brown, has been demoted to the Fort Worth Wings of the Central Hockey League after clearing waivers. DeJordy had a 5.19 goals-against average this season.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Czechoslovakia upped its record to two victories Wednesday night in a penalty-plagued 5-1 World Hockey Tournament downing of Canada.

Czechoslovakia plays Russia tomorrow night in the final game of the Colorado Springs series. There is no game tonight. Saturday night the round-robin tournament moves to Bloomington, Minn., with Russia playing Canada.

PREP NOTES

Marin Cage Records Poor Vs. Bay Teams

By LEW CODDINGTON

It is axiomatic in high school basketball circles that teams from Marin, while good enough to consistently beat their neighbors from up north, are not good enough to beat teams from around the Bay. Performances this year support the axiom.

Marin's overall record so far (not counting last night's games) is 41-37 against all outside opponents. That's not bad — any time a league as a whole is above .500, it's doing all right.

A significant majority of the victories, however, has come against teams from the North Bay — Sonoma, Solano or Napa counties. Marin has a 23-12 record against this competition.

Against the East Bay, where Northern California's basketball power is said to be concentrated, Marin is 7-10. Against San Francisco and the Peninsula, Marin is 10-15. Against others, Marin is 1-0, Redwood having beaten Vacaville.

The overall record is about the same as last year, but with one significant difference. In 1971, Redwood High School gathered prestige for Marin by winning 13 straight, including a victory over powerful Sacred Heart from the city. (When Redwood later was unable to win the Marin County Athletic League title, it appeared the MCAL was becoming strong.)

This year, no team is undefeated. The most impressive so far, Drake, has lost three times. San Marin has sustained only one defeat, but it was a whopper, 112-59 to awesome St. Elizabeth of Oakland.

In short, the situation is the same as it has been the past few years: Marin is O.K. in basketball, but doesn't rank with the best.

HIS METHOD — Fred Doar, who scored 30 points for San Marin's lone bright spot against St. Elizabeth, has a unique training method which is not recommended for general use. He missed the two practices prior to the game with a cold.

Warriors Host Cavs Tonight In Oakland

The films were of Golden State's 97-95 loss Tuesday night to the Seattle SuperSonics. In that contest, the Warriors shot a miserable 32 per cent from the field.

"What we did at practice, before we loosened up, was to sit and watch the videotape of the Sonics game," said Warriors coach Al Attles Wednesday. "We saw what we did wrong."

But doing something about it is another thing.

"They've got quite a few good ballplayers," added Attles. He said the Warrior defense must shut off Austin Carr and Lenny Wilkens or face the prospect of another Sonics fiasco.

"We should beat Cleveland," noted Attles. "But we should have beaten Seattle. If we don't go out there and do something, we're going to be in trouble. We just got by them last time."

Cleveland lost nine straight before beating Atlanta Tuesday night.

Law Carries Regulations On Pregnancy Test Kits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation to regulate "do-it-yourself" pregnancy testing kits and vetoed a bill extending peace officer status to Los Angeles dog catchers.

The measures were among dozens the governor signed or vetoed on Wednesday as he rushed to meet a Dec. 31 deadline for acting on legislation before the start of the veto override session Jan. 1.

Reagan rejected a bill by Assemblyman Alex Garcia, D-Los Angeles, which proposed extending peace officer status along with the right to carry a gun to Los Angeles dog catchers, city parking control checkers, public defender investigators and housing authority patrolmen. The governor said he saw no need for the measure.

The governor signed a measure by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, that will require state health certification before "do-it-yourself" pregnancy kits can be sold in California.

Reagan also signed a $590,000 bill to help provide treatment and transplants for children suffering from kidney disease. The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, requires the money to be used either for existing kidney dialysis and transplantation centers or to establish new programs.

The governor also vetoed these bills:

—By Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, to require the state to maintain surplus highway lands in big cities as parks. Reagan said the cost would be "prohibitive" and would require the Department of Public Works to start an "extensive and entirely new parks function."

—By Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, empowering the advisory Health Care Commission to approve any cut back in Medi-Cal services ordered by the state Medi-Cal director. Reagan said he saw no "sufficiently compelling" reason to reduce the director's authority.

—By Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, to grant additional survivors benefits to certain state and retired school employes. Reagan said an investigation is now under way into state employe benefits and no major changes should be made until the study is finished.

—By Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach, to require that a "safety member" of the public employes retirement system would be retired for a disability or reinstated from such retirement when his employer determined his disability has ended. Los Angeles County Marshal Timothy Sperl had complained earlier that a virtually identical bill was aimed at forcing him to retire. Reagan vetoed that measure and said he saw no reason now to reverse that action.

—By Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, to increase the death benefits for retired state workers. Reagan said a study of the entire state employe benefit system was under way and no major revisions should be made until it is completed.

Reagan also signed these bills:

—By Sen. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, providing a 5 per cent pension increase to state employes or local school district employes who retired before Dec. 31, 1970.

—By Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, appropriating $750,000 to pay overtime to California Youth Authority employes which was earned between Jan. 13, 1970, through June 30, 1971.

—By Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, imposing uniform rules of voter registration to clarify Supreme Court rulings. Among other things, the measure permits voters to register until 29 days before an election.

—By Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'Berg, D-Sacramento, and a similar measure by Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego, increasing the limit on Cal-Vet home loans from $20,000 to $25,00.

Teen Contraceptive Legislation Vetoed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A controversial bill allowing sexually active teenage girls to obtain contraceptives without their parents' consent has been vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan as going "too far." "Simply because sexual permissiveness may exist among certain young people does not mean the state should make it any easier for them," Reagan said in a veto message Wednesday.

But the author, Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, charged that Reagan's veto "will result in more teenage abortions, more unwanted babies born to teenage mothers and more teenage girls running away from home."

The measure would have made it legal for a physician to dispense birth control information and prescribe The Pill and other contraceptives for a minor he considered "sexually active." Prior parental consent would not be required.

Currently, teenage boys can purchase contraceptives but most girls cannot. Beilenson said, however, that children of welfare families need no parental consent to obtain contraceptives.

Beilenson, author of the state's liberalized therapeutic abortion law, noted that teenage girls nw can legally have babies or abortions without their parents' approval or they can declare themselves self-supporting and legally obtain The Pill without parental knowledge.

"But the law does not permit them to see their own doctor about birth control without a note from home," he said, noting that the governor twice previously vetoed similar bills.

Reagan said the bill represented an "unwarranted intrusion" into the prerogatives of the parent and said when "government assumes such authority and strips parents of such consent prerogatives, it has gone too far."

Prime Interest Rates On Loans Raised By Banks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting today, the prime interest rate on loans at every major bank in California is one-quarter per cent higher.

The announcement yesterday of the increase from 5¾ to 6 per cent came after eastern banks announced similar plans last week. The prime lending rate is the rate available to the best customers of the banks.

Earlier this year, the prime rate was as low as 4½ per cent.

John F. Holman, executive vice president and senior loan officer of Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco, said, "Loan demand has been strong at Wells Fargo. Our loan volume has been rising each week for more than a month."

One Los Angeles bank official said, "One reason our rates are moving up is the recent tightening of the money system by the Federal Reserve. Interest rates are a thermometer of business activity and as business increases, the government knows rates are going to climb, too."

He said he expected the prime lending rate to increase another one-half of one per cent by the middle of next year.

Bank of America was the first to announce the one-quarter per cent increase. There were similar statements by Wells Fargo Bank, Bank of California, United California Bank, Union Bank and Security Pacific National Bank and Crocker Bank.

Female Inmate Care Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A woman in jail or prison can summon a private physician of her choice to determine if she is pregnant or not and to care for her if she is under a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan also signed yesterday a separate bill forbidding imposition of restrictions on abortions for prisoners other than those contained in the state's Therapeutic Abortion Act.

Both measures were authored by Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles.

The abortion bill is AB 1004; the other is AB 1003.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

No Need To Switch Out Of Holiday Inns

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a 56-year-old housewife with a portfolio of common stocks valued at $54,000. About 45 per cent is in utilities, 30 per cent moderate income stocks and 25 per cent in Holiday Inns. In addition, I have an $18,000 income which rises with inflation. Should I sell Holiday Inns (NYSE) and put the proceeds into mutual funds and government bonds? — M.B.

A. Since you apparently do not need to supplement your income, I can see no great advantage in switching out of Holiday Inns. As your portfolio is now constituted, this issue is your major source of potential appreciation, with the balance of your holdings primarily income equities.

A nine-month old strike at Continental Trailways reduced profit contributions from Holiday's Transportation Division in the second and third quarters. However, as a result of strong gains from the hotel supply business and rebounds in food and lodging operations, earnings comparisons were not significantly affected. Full year net should equal or slightly better last year's performance.

The Food and Lodging Division, which has shown outstanding strength this year, with earnings ahead 33 per cent year-to-year through the first nine months, should be an important contributor in 1973. A small increment in occupancy levels, coupled with a 3 per cent increase in room rates, would lift profits in this division by about 20 per cent. Transportation, the company's second largest contributor both to revenues and earnings, should be strike free within the coming quarter. The products division, which provides furnishings, supplies and equipment for the Holiday Inns chain as well as for other customers should extend its above-average growth record.

Longer-term benefits are anticipated from the newer, 25 per cent less costly construction methods now being introduced, an increase in the number of new company-owned units to be opened, plus foreign expansion. European inns are experiencing 70 per cent occupancy rates in older units and 60 per cent usage overall. Three units are under construction in Japan, with four more scheduled. Shares should be held for their above average long term potential.

This is Ford Motor Company's Experimental Safety Vehicle (ESV), which was delivered to the United States Department of Transportation. It was built for the government for the token cost of one dollar. The most noticeable feature is the front bumper, which extends further than conventional bumpers to allow room for a nine-inch stroke of the hydraulic strut linking the bumper to the frame.

Fairchild Makes Comeback At Redwood Highway Plant

By WAT TAKESHITA

Fairchild Semiconductor's diode plant at 4300 Redwood Highway in San Rafael, which came close to economic failure only 18 months ago, is making a strong comeback, with 1973 prospects the best in recent years.

Manager George D. Wells, who took over the San Rafael plant in August of 1971, said the plant was in serious trouble that year.

"But now the tough times are behind us," said Wells. "We face the brightest year in five years. The backlog of orders has never been higher, and the chief limitation to production is the supply of raw materials like silicon."

Prospects are so bright that expensive new modern equipment is being installed to increase and upgrade production.

GEORGE WELLS
Fairchild manager

Wells, 37, a nuclear physicist who came from Scotland 12 years ago, said the economic decline at the Fairchild plant in the mid 1960's resulted from a decline in the diode market. He said the company was able to reverse that trend by opening up new markets and producing integrated circuits which are more in demand than the old diodes.

Wells gave the following account of the rise, fall and recovery of the first major industrial plant in the Northgate area of San Rafael:

Fairchild's diode plant originally opened on Jordan Street in San Rafael in 1960, with a staff of about 10 girls. In 1962, when the 80,000-square-foot plant was built at Northgate, it was the only major structure in the area.

During the peak of its production in the mid 1960's, 1,100 persons were employed at the plant, more than half of them Marin residents.

The plant's main product is the diode, a tiny device that allows passage of electric current in one direction but not the other. The diode also controls the amount of current flow. The primary use of the diodes were in computers, although some were used in radios.

As electronic technology improved, the diode was replaced by the integrated circuit (where diodes and transistors are made of one piece of material). This, together with the drop in computer sales and cutbacks in the space program, threw the diode market into a tailspin during the recession of 1968 to 1971. Plant employment dropped from a peak of 1,100 to 245 in February this year.

Wells decided that the only way to save the diode plant was to (1) go into the production of integrated circuits and new kinds of diodes, and (2) develop new customers, particularly in the consumer market, instead of relying almost completely on the computer industry.

Wells succeeded in developing new products and found new markets in the automotive, camera, and radio-TV field.

Some examples of his new products:

The Zener diode, used in conjunction with the automobile seat belt, will prevent the car from being started unless the seat belt is fastened in front.

Linear circuits used in computers, desk calculators, missile control systems, Polaroid cameras, television and radios.

New products and a broadened market brought employment up to 300, with another 100 expected to be added next year.

Whereas at one time, a majority of the work force lived in Marin, the picture has changed. Today, 40 per cent live in Marin and the remaining 60 per cent is divided just about evenly between the Sonoma-Vallejo area and the East Bay.

Minority hiring ranks high in the priorities set by Wells. The minority population of the employees is 35 per cent, much higher than the average in the Bay Area, said Wells. "I'm proud of that figure. Among our toals for 1973, one of the top priorities is in hiring and promoting minorities."

Wells is the sixth manager at the San Rafael plant. After receiving his master's degree in nuclear physics at Glasgow University, he came to the United States in 1960 and went to work for Transitron Corporation in Wakefield, Mass. He then went to Sylvania in Woburn, Mass., in 1961 and to Fairchild's Mountain View plant in August of 1969. He became manager of the faltering San Rafael plant in August of 1971.

Bright Idea Turned Into A Bond Bundle

PALO ALTO (BW) — James M. Benham is a 36-year-old Californian who got an idea while he was a star salesman at the San Jose branch of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith a year and a half ago and now is a rebel against a very important system.

The system against which he is firing is the one which pays a mere 4 or 5 per cent interest on savings accounts when, he contends, the investment should yield savers 6½ or 7 per cent.

Benham said he isn't really a revolutionary but rather an "evolutionary." He foresees "a natural evolution of the capitalistic system" to correct the situation.

Bond funds are increasing but Benham contended his capital preservation fund is the first no-load fund to offer a straight debt portfolio of government securities and AA or AAA rated corporate bonds. The annual management fee is ½ per cent.

Born in Joliet, Ill., Benham studied money under Andrew F. Brimmer, when the federal reserve board member was a professor at Michigan State University, where Benham obtained a master's degree in economics.

Then, for two years, Benham was an examiner for the 12th Federal Reserve District (San Francisco) where, he said, he got a look at bank portfolios. He joined Merrill Lynch in 1963.

His idea came in June, 1971, as a result of observing in the securities industry "the hardships of small investors in buying bonds in small amounts," he said. He began reading on the subject and "picking brains."

He hired a doctor of philosophy degree candidate at Stanford University to find out how long ago a no-load bond fund could have been presented successfully and got back data indicating the answer was 25 years ago.

"Why don't big securities houses (he mentioned several by name) open no-load bond funds?" he asked. "Because their commercial bank friends wouldn't like it. There'd be disintermediation like you've never seen before."

Disintermediation is a word generally used to mean taking money out of a bank or savings and loan association and buying bonds with it.

He has prepared a booklet stating that his fund offers more safety, liquidity and yield than the savings institutions.

The booklet states that the fund will always have at least half of its portfolio in government securities and the rating on the rest of its bonds will be at least AA. A typical bank or savings and loan has less than 50 per cent of its assets in comparable quality investments, the booklet states.

Benham is chairman and president of the fund. There is a vice president, Paul K. Robertson, a lawyer who "contributes legal advice." They have secretaries — and that's the organization.

"That's all we need," said Benham. "I don't have to go out and study a company to see if the stock is going up. Moody's and Standard & Poor's ratings tell me what bonds we can buy. Outside services handle our accounting."

With assets of $100,000 Benham made the fund's first investment — $95,000 of Federal Home Loan Bank notes maturing Jan. 25, 1974, and yielding more than 8 per cent.

If the fund were a thousand times as big, three zeros could have been added to the purchase without the need of additional staff, he remarked.

The fund has a minimum initial share purchase of $1,000 and a minimum subsequent investment of $10. A redemption fee of 1 per cent is imposed on investors of $100,000 or more who pull out within 90 days of entering.

Benham said this is designed to keep out disruptive "hot money" from big corporations that might be tempted to cash their bank certificates of deposit.

Benham thinks the management company, of which he owns 70 per cent and Robertson 30 per cent, should break even when assets reach $6 million. He then can start taking out a salary, he said, and at $20 million he would hire a portfolio manager.

He said he has invested $60,000 in the project. His plan is that it will eventually pay him a good salary and also accumulate capital for him that will reach $1 million at the age of 63.

He's not aiming at more than $1 million, he said. He thinks that by the time he's 63, the way things are going, no one will be permitted to own much more than a million bucks.

Small Furniture Stores Said Facing Hard Years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The large furniture warehouse showrooms will capture a fat 15 per cent of the furniture market by 1975 at the expense of the small home furnishings retailer, says the Bank of America's Small Business Reporter.

The report Tuesday said the small retailer must learn to strengthen his operations and develop competitive innovations to create his own niche in the nation's $38 billion annual home furnishings marketplace.

Although the warehouse concept is sound, the bank said, it doesn't cover all consumers since many don't desire self-service for major purchases like home furnishings.

The store in the strongest position to compete with the warehouse concept is the small specialty store that offers services, wide choices of fabrics and custom-designed goods, said the report.

"The small general furnishings store will disappear from big metropolitan areas within a short time," states the bank. "The only avenue left for a small merchant will be in specializing — having the best selection of modern and traditional furniture or in having a top-end store with talented decorators and fine quality merchandise."

The report predicted an overall upward surge in the home furnishings industry during the coming decade. "To survive this highly competitive and hazardous field requires a tenacious and aggressive merchant, who is flexible and will offer personalized service and an appealing store image," it said.

Rental Demand Will Continue

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — There will be a continued and strong demand for rental housing throughout the 1970s according to L. B. (Les) Nelson, president of the National Apartment Association.

"Contrary to some current forecasts that rental housing soon will become a thing of the past, the market for rental apartments will continue for a long time to come," said Nelson, whose association represents more than 25,000 builders, developers, owners and managers of apartments throughout the U.S.

"There always will be a segment of our population that will demand apartment living and that demand can't be satisfied by housing built for sale, whether it is single-family detached, condominiums or other forms of sales housing," said Nelson. "Many people cannot or will not assume the responsibilities of home ownership."

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

Crockett's Van And Storage To Begin 76th Year In '73

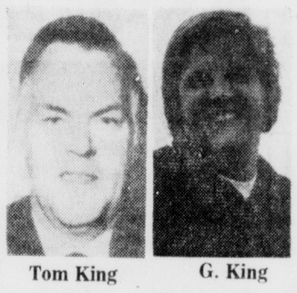
Crockett's Van and Storage Inc. is completing its 75th year of operation in San Rafael and will start its 76th year in 1973.

The company, located at 522 B Street, is operated by the third and fourth generation of the Crockett family, Thomas W. and Lavonne Keyes King and their son, Gerald King.

It was back in 1897 that the express business was launched at the same 522 B Street location by a man named Berkhart, who hauled everything from dead bodies to household goods.

In 1910, Henry and Dora Crockett opened their van and storage firm on B Street where the Independent-Journal building is now located. The Crocketts later bought the old Berkhart express business at 522 B Street.

When Henry Crockett died in 1917, the ownership passed to his stepson, Marshall Keyes, who ran the business until his death in 1963. Marshall Keyes' widow, Marie, lives at The Tamalpais in Greenbrae and is president of Crockett's Van and Storage Inc., although she is no longer active in the business.



Tom King G. King

Her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. King of San Rafael operate the business, with warehouses in San Rafael and in Hamilton Industrial Park. They are also Marin agents of the Aero-Mayflower Transit Co. of Indianapolis.

Their son Gerald, who graduated from the University of Oregon last year with a degree in economics, joined the firm this year as the fourth generation of the Crockett family to be associated in the business.

LAUREN (LARRY) LARSON, formerly with Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies, is now associated with the financial planning firm of Capital Planning Associates, Inc. of 97 San Marin Drive, Novato.

Larson, a resident of San Francisco, worked for Liberty Mutual for more than 20 years before joining Capital Planning Associates.

CONTEMPORARY HANDCRAFTS, which has been operating for two and one-half years at 1313 Fourth Street in San Rafael, will move next February to San Anselmo.

Owners Kenneth N. and Linda Ingber of San Anselmo said they will move to 635 San Anselmo Avenue where the H. P. Morphis Antique Store is now located.

Contemporary Handcrafts sells gold and silver contemporary jewelry, handblown glass, leather goods, hand-made furniture, weavings and other gift items.

The new location will be directly across the street from Flash Jewelry Supply Co., which the Ingbers operate at 638 San Anselmo Avenue. Flash Jewelry Supply specializes in a complete line of American Indian turquoise jewelry. Flash also supplies raw gold and silver, stones, and tools for the silversmiths and goldsmiths in Marin.

The Ingbers established Flash at 1 Bolinas Avenue in Fairfax in November of 1971 and moved it last September to larger quarters at 638 San Anselmo Avenue.

Ingber said he is moving Contemporary Handcrafts to San Anselmo because it is a better business location, and his two shops will be close together for a more efficient operation.

S & S MACHINE and Engineering Co. moved last week from Woodland Avenue to its new location at 767 Lincoln Avenue, suite 12, in San Rafael. The company's telephone number remains unchanged.

S & S Machine and Engineering, founded in September of 1969 at 66 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael, is owned by John P. Suacci of Greenbrae and his son, John Douglas Suacci of Novato. It is an industrial manufacturing firm that produces machinery for various industries.

DENNIS GAMBLE of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president at the Marsh & McLennan Inc. insurance broker in San Francisco.

Gamble began his career as a Lloyd's broker in London, joined Marsh & McLennan in 1968, and is currently responsible for the property, boiler and machinery marketing department.

JOE WITTENMEIER of Mill Valley, charter life underwriter, has been elected president of the Marin County Estate Planning Council.

Marin County Estate Planning Council is a group that assists mutual clients in all of the various needs for accountants, attorneys, trust officers and life underwriters in solving their business and personal problems.

New Light For Repairing Eye

I-J Special Report

PALO ALTO — A newly developed lamp — slightly larger than a Christmas tree light yet producing 200,000 peak beam candlepower — has opened the way to a low-cost device for surgical "light welding" repairs of the human eye.

Developed by a division of Varian Associates, the high-intensity 150-watt lamp measures only one and one-fourth inches in diameter by one and one-eighth inches long. It is called a xenon short arc lamp after the gas which pressurizes the sealed, self-contained unit.

The lamps' first medical application, the portable xenon light coagulator, was developed by Patrick O'Malley, M.D., of South Bend, Ind., and is being manufactured by Clinitex, Inc., of Danvers, Mass.

It's A Great Game For Great Cause

With the 49ers and Raiders losing their first playoff games, the Shrine East-West people were left with the only football game in town this weekend. There will be no competition for the sports dollar which gives the Shrine committee a better chance to sell all 61,000 seats at Candlestick Park for Saturday's game.

If the 49ers had made it past Dallas last Saturday, they would be hosting Washington on the same Candlestick Park carpet Sunday and many fans who couldn't afford to shell out enough money for both games would have to make a choice. Unfortunately for the 49ers, that choice has been made or those fans.

FOR THE SAKE of a lot of kids lying in beds at the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, I hope Saturday's 48th annual game is a sellout. That's one time you can sit there and watch good football and know the money you plunked out for the ticket is going to a good cause. You watch strong legs run, that weak legs might walk. It's the motto of the game.

I see that the East has been made four-point favorites but that shouldn't alarm all you Westerners. The East is usually favored, but the West won the last four years.

If you haven't yet bought tickets, you better make your move. Marin County ticket locations include Macy's, Taveggia and Brusati Sport and Saddle Shop, Glass and Sash, Tam Fences in San Rafael, and Dolman Realty in Corte Madera.

THERE ARE STILL tickets left although it was rumored they would all be gobbled up by pro scouts. I'm not saying that there will be 61,000 scouts at the game, but if the guy next to you keeps taking notes and charting plays, find out which pro team he is representing.

The talent is there for you to see. There are 12 players who were named either first or second team consensus All-America. Most of them are on the East squad. First team Easterners who won consensus A-A honors are Paul Seymour, offensive tackle from Michigan; Otis Armstrong, running back from Purdue; Dave Butz, defensive tackle from Purdue; Brad Van Pelt, defensive back from Michigan State, and Randy Logan, defensive back from Michigan. The lone first string A-A players on the West side are both defensive backs, Calvin Jones from Washington and Jackie Wallace of Arizona State.

BUT YOU NEVER know who is going to be the star of the show. Last year, everyone expected Cornell's Ed Marinero, runner-up for the Heisman Trophy, to be the big gun but he had a miserable day, held in check constantly and coughing up the ball on a fumble.

This year the Ivy League is sending Jauron, a young man who holds 10 Yale running records, breaking some held by Calvin Hill, now with the Dallas Cowboys.

It should be some game.

SIX-POINT LANDING — Gray team running back Kenneth Garrett (35) eluded North team defender Michael White and scampered one yard into the end zone for a second quarter touchdown last night. The Gray won, 27-15, in the Blue-Gray football game in Montgomery, Ala.

Redskins Adopt Deflation Plan; Steelers Have Edge

Nickel Defense Is Set By Allen For Dallas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins' coach George Allen has adopted a deflation policy for his defense against the Dallas Cowboys in the National Football Conference championship playoff Sunday. Instead of his "quarter" defense, he's going back to the "Nickel" one.

Allen caught the Green Bay Packers by surprise last Sunday when he removed his middle linebacker on almost every running situation and used a fifth defensive lineman, Manny Sistrunk, to provide added heft.

In the upcoming confrontation with Dallas, Allen will return to the "Nickel" defense used by most pro teams. This consists of removing a linebacker for a speedier defensive back in passing situations.

Allen's strategy worked against the Packers, who went down to defeat by a 16-3 margin.

"You can't use a five-man defensive line against a diverse offense like Dallas has," he explained.

Redskin defensive end Verlon Biggs agreed.

"Dallas has perhaps as good a running attack as Green Bay," he commented, "but they also have a tremendous passing attack.

"The five man line is great if you want to make the other team throw because it's strong with the run and weak with the pass. You can't be weak in any area against the Cowboys. You just about have to play them straight."

If, as Allen predicts, Dallas starts Roger Staubach at quarterback in place of Craig Morton, the scrambling Cowboy passer will create a new defensive problem for the Redskins. Dallas was to name its starting quarterback today.

"The lineman linemen commit themselves too soon," defensive coordinator Torgy Torgenson said.

A's Action: Cepeda, Two Others Axed

OAKLAND (UPI)—Orlando Cepeda, once one of the most feared right-handed hitters in baseball, today finds himself without a team and looking for a job.

The National League's Most Valuable Player with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1967 was one of three players released Wednesday by the Oakland Athletics.

Clearing waivers were Cepeda, infielder Larry Brown and pitcher Joe Horlen. None of the other 23 major league teams was interested in the players.

Cepeda, 35, came to the A's last June 29 from the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Denny McLain and managed only three hitting appearances before going into the hospital for another knee operation.

Cepeda had played previously with the San Francisco Giants and was called the "Baby Bull."

Brown, 32, was purchased from the Cleveland Indians in April 1971 and filled a utility role with the A's. He batted only .183 in 47 games.

Horlen, 35, was signed as a free agent last April 19 after the Chicago White Sox cut him loose. He appeared in 32 games for the A's as a middle inning reliever and spot starter and posted a 3-4 won-lost record and 3.00 earned run average.

The A's also announced the signing of 21-year-old switchhitting third baseman-catcher Jack Bastable of the University of Missouri.

Meanwhile, A's' owner Charles O. Finley won an award of $231,600 in attorney fees from Sportservice Corp. in U.S. District Court in San Francisco. Last August, Finley was awarded $864,504 in antitrust damages from Sportservice in litigation over concession rights at the Oakland Coliseum.

Tom C. Clark, retired U.S. Supreme Court Justice, found that Sportservice had violated antitrust laws by monopolizing concessions at major league ballparks.

Pittsburgh Has Specialty Teams Plus Over Miami

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—When opponents are as evenly matched as American Football Conference title contestants Pittsburgh and Miami appear to be, the winning edge is often with the specialty teams.

The edge may be with the Steelers in this case. Placekicker Roy Gerela and punter Bobby Walden both finished second in the AFC at their respective tasks.

As a counterbalance, Sunday's game is the first league title appearance for the 40-yearold Steeler franchise, tipping the pressure indicator towards Pittsburgh.

Gerela, the all-time leading Steeler scorer with 119 points, discounts the intensity of the championship.

"It's been that way all season long—in Dallas, with Minnesota, Kansas City, Cleveland," He said Wednesday, "We've been under pressure in all of those games and came through."

Walden, who averaged 43.8 yards per punt this season, agreed.

"I've been telling myself in tight situations all season long, don't lose the rhythm," he said.

Particularly effective in clutches, Walden kicked the longest punt in the NFL this season, a 72-yarder against Oakland early in the season.

The Dolphins blocked a punt by Don Cockcroft early in their 20-14 playoff victory over the Cleveland Browns last week, but that doesn't concern Walden either.

"Well now, they might block one and they might not," he said. "That's what I've got 10 men in front of me for. But I've had two blocked this year, though."

With Garo Yepremian, the Dolphins do not have to reach mid-field to score. Yepremian has kicked 24 field goals, including boots of 54 and 51 yards, and had an overall point total of 115.

Gerela, who has kicked 28 field goals, including a 49-yarder acknowledges that Yepremian is one of the top longrange kickers. Gerela has been remarkably accurate from inside the 30, however, kicking 17-of-19.

Russian Hockey Team Triumphs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)— Russia's World Cup hockey team nipped the Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western Hockey League 5-4 in an exhibition game before a packed house of 12,104 Wednesday night.

Viacheslav Anisin scored twice for the Russians, his second goal in the third period giving the Russians a two-goal lead.

Murray Heatley, with his second of two goals for the night, cut the margin to a single road with less than four minutes remaining in the game. The Raodrunners had a late power play opportunity to tie the score but were turned aside by goalie Vladislav Tretiak.

GRAY STARS

Defensive Backs Steal Grid Show

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —The 35th annual Blue-Gray football game featured some of the nation's top offensive performers, but two defensive backs from Mississippi State stole the show as the South took a 27-15 victory.

Ken Phares, a 185-pounder from Clinton, La., put the South ahead on the third play of the game Wednesday night when he stole a pass thrown by quarterback Tony Adams of Utah State and raced 34 yards for the score. The Mississippi State star set up another Gray score with an interception and Frank Dowsing, an All-SEC performer from Mississippi State, stopped a Blue drive with an interception on the two.

The game had been billed as a passing duel between Adams and South quarterback Don Strock of Virginia Tech. Strock was the nation's total offense and forward passing leader. Adams had completed the 1972 collegiate season second in the nation in total offense and third in passing.

Strock hit on 14-of-33 passes for 153 yards. He was denied a touchdown, but key passes of 19 and 21 yards from Strock to Jim Hodge of Arkansas set up a one-yard scoring plunge by Ken Garrett of Wake Forest in the second period. Strock was chosen the game's Most Valuable Player by sportswriters covering the game.

Strock and Phares took the offensive and defensive honors for the South while flanker Tom Forzani of Utah State and defensive end Eddie Sheats of Kansas won the honors for the North.

Bill Sadler of Texas Christian, the game's leading rusher with 69 yards, scored another South touchdown on a one-yard run. The score was set up by Phares' second interception and a pass interference call. Mark Williams of Rice kicked field goals of 21 and 23 yards to complete the Gray scoring.

BASKETBALL

Drake Team Lone Winner

Redwood and Marin Catholic High Schools took on some tough foes yesterday, and both lost valiantly, as the Giants dropped an 80-72 decision to Mills of Millbrae, and the Wildcats lost to Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland, 49-47, in non-league basketball games involving Marin teams.

In other games, Drake was the day's only varsity winner for Marin, beating Lincoln of San Francisco, 55-34, while San Rafael was upset by Washington of San Francisco, 55-54.

Redwood (6-6) lost to one of the peninsula's top teams in its doubleheader at San Francisco State University. Tonight at 8:30, the Giants take on St. Ignatius in the same gym.

The Giants shot well from the floor (49 per cent), but so did Mills (58 per cent). Redwood coach Dick Hart was pleased that all his starters scored in double figures, as Mike Connor led with 16. "We just lost to a better team," said Hart.

Marin Catholic's game was quite similar, as the 'Cats (6-6) lost to inexperienced, but perpetually tough Bishop O'Dowd in the opening round of the O'Dowd tournament. Marin also shot fairly well at 40 per cent, but the Dragons had a hot night, sinking 58 per cent of their outside shots.

Sophomore Mike Mahoney took up the slack of his absent brother, high scoring Dan (out with illness), scoring 22 points. The Wildcats resume tournament action tomorrow at 2 p.m. against San Leandro.

Drake (9-3) had an easy time against Lincoln, after its disastrous loss last week to another San Francisco foe, Riordan. The Pirates opened to an 11-point halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way.

Center Byron Stewart led San Rafael (7-4) with 12 points and 10 rebounds in the Bulldogs' surprising loss to Washington. Pete Neuwald led the host scorers with 13.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda High School moved into semi-final action of the Marin Catholic Freshman Basketball Tournament, edging the hosts, 43-42.

Marin County's other representative, San Rafael, lost to Sacred Heart of San Francisco, 46-19, while Bishop O'Dowd emerged a tourney favorite, drubbing Santa Rosa's Cardinal Newman, 56-30. Moreau of Hayward dropped St. Patrick's of Vallejo (score unavailable) in the tourney's other game.

Action resumes today, as Newman plays San Rafael at 3 p.m., and St. Patrick's takes on Marin Catholic at 4:30 in the losers' bracket. O'Dowd plays Sacred Heart at 6 o'clock and Moreau goes against Terra Linda at 7:30 in the winners' bracket.

Terra Linda outscored the hosts 24-14 in the fourth quarter to pull out the close victory. Steve Carli led the Trojans with 12 points, while Wildcat Gary Johnson scored 20. Deke Welch topped San Rafael's scorers with eight in the Bulldogs' loss.

Tars In Oregon Tourney Tonight

Maybe the influential New York press hasn't found out yet, but College of Marin's basketball fame certainly does extend beyond the confines of California.

"I picked 'em on reputation," said tournament director Art Weston, explaining why Marin will take the floor tonight in the second annual Central Oregon Community College tournament in Bend, Ore.

Marin will play at 6:30 p.m. against Big Bend Community College from Moses Lake, Wash., in an opening-round game. Yuba College of Marysville will face the hosts in the other contest at 8:30. Winners advance to the finals tomorrow night at 8:30.

"I wanted some schools from California," continued Weston, who also coaches Central Oregon's team. "I like a tough schedule. I could pad my own tournament so we could win it, but I don't like to operate that way.

"I played down at Compton (Junior College) a couple of years ago in a tournament, and their coach told me about Marin."

The Tars left by car at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, minus center Neil Traub and forward Jim Forni, who are ill. They went to Marysville where they joined the Yuba team for a bus trip north. Marin (10-1) defeated Yuba last week, 96-61, so it might have been an interesting trek.

Central Oregon's record is only 3-5, but Weston rates his team better than last year's, which was second in the state. "We've played some tough opponents," he said. "We've won three straight.

"But still, I hope Marin is tired from the drive."

The Seals Squander Another Early Lead

OAKLAND (UPI) — For the umpteenth time this season, the California Golden Seals have squandered an early lead.

It cost them a victory Wednesday night as the Philadelphia Flyers stormed from a two-goal deficit with two scores in the middle period to deadlock the Seals 2-2 before 3,610 hardy hockey fans.

The Seals managed only three shots on goal in the opening period and scored on two of them.

But Belhumeur, subbing for regular Doug Favell, then shut off the Seals for the remainder

PRO SCOUTS PREDICT:

East To Beat West In Shrine Football

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Pro scouts watching the two teams in practice this week figure the East will rout the West Saturday in the 48th Shrine East-West Game at Candlestick Park.

While the scouts have been lavish in their praise of the East team, the professional oddsmakers list the East no more than a four-point favorite.

"Every year the East comes out here with all the press notices and the West winds up winning the game," cautioned Andros, an eternal optimist. "They are telling us this year that we won't be able to run against the East defense but I won't believe that until they stop us, if they can."

But as insurance, Andros has worked his two quarterbacks—Ty Paine of Washington State and George Amundson of Iowa State—overtime on play-action formations.

"I want them to be ready to throw on the run if they have to," said Andros, who added he'll pick his starting quarterback at game time.

"I don't see that it makes any difference which one starts," said Andros, "because they'll get equal time in any event."

While Andros pondered over his starting alignment, head East Coach Carmen Cozza seemed all set. Wednesday he named his starting defensive unit and it produced two mild surprises.

Cozza picked Joe Ehrmann of Syracuse to play at defensive tackle ahead of big Dennis Johnson of Delaware when Johnson missed a workout because of illness. He also named Gary Hrivnak of Purdue, normally a tight end, to play at outside linebacker as well.

"The way he (Hrivnak) hits we had to find a place for him on defense," said Cozza.

Gary Huff of Florida State will be the East starting quarterback with Mike Wells of Illinois behind him. Cozza indicated they'll share the job pretty much on a 50-50 basis.

"In a game such as this," said Cozza, "you want to give every boy some playing time. Besides, we have only 28 players on the squad, which means every man does his share."

Game time Saturday is 1 p.m. and the game will be televised nationally. The forecast is for clear weather with the temperature in the high 50s and low 60s. Officials indicated Wednesday that some tickets are available in most locations.

Nostalgia Award To Casey Stengel

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)— Casey Stengel, who won 10 pennants and seven World Series in 12 years as manager of the New York Yankees, will receive the Nostalgia Award Jan. 21 at the Kansas City baseball dinner.

Stengel, 82, and a native of Kansas City, played 12 years in the major leagues and managed 25 years. He still holds the record for the most world series games as a manager, 63.

The dinner is co-sponsored by the Royal Lancers and the Kansas City chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Last year's award went to Satchel Paige.

Sugar Bowl Bet By 2 Governors

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania will pay a "deer" price if Penn State loses the Sugar Bowl game.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp has wagered a white-tail deer, the official state animal, against an Oklahoma steer offered by Oklahoma Gov. David Hall.

The animal bet by the losing team will be slaughtered and dressed before being sent as payment.

Shapp said Wednesday he chose a deer because its "swift and graceful movements through the broken field have served as a pattern for the running style of Penn State's great football team."

San Pedro Ridge Plan Presented

A handful of Las Gallinas Valley residents listened favorably last night as Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere presented his proposal for "do it yourself" acquisition of 407.65 acres of San Pedro Ridge to preserve as open space.

The 10 persons in the audience agreed the idea needed wider public airing. They decided it should be included on the agenda for the Santa Venetia Improvement Association public meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 8 in the Santa Venetia Middle School library. Roumiguiere agreed to repeat his presentation.

All residents of Gallinas Valley east of Highway 101 and the Los Ranchitos area west of the freeway will be invited, according to Mrs. A. J. Whittle, association president.

Roumiguiere's presentation last night was essentially the same as reported in Tuesday's Independent-Journal, that the 1,212 homes in the area could form a local service area and hold an election on a $500,000 bond issue to buy the land.

The supervisor stressed that he could not speak for other board members, but he indicated the county might be willing to share 10 or 15 per cent of the cost, since the Marin County Civic Center could be included in the service area.

This would lower his earlier estimate of the monthly cost per home, Roumiguiere pointed out. He had predicted that a 20-year bond issue would cost each home between $1.95 and $2.75 a month.

The supervisor estimated the fair market value of homes in the proposed county service area at $40 million, and the market value of the civic center holdings at $15 million.

He said the first step, if valley residents were favorable, would be a hearing by the supervisors, followed by formation of the service area and a bond election — which might take a year in all.

Roumiguiere pointed out that the largest of the six parcels in the suggested open space package, the 257-acre Fierman holdings, has already been proposed for development of 1,100 townhouses.

A last-minute unannounced relocation of last night's meeting deprived Roumiguiere of a third of his audience. The talk originally was scheduled for the Santa Venetia Middle School, but was shifted to the Civic Center to coincide with a weekly meeting of the Las Gallinas Valley master plan committee. Five residents of Santa Venetia and the San Pedro Peninsula waited half an hour at the school, then went home unaware of the meeting change.

Vote Percentage Is Low Despite Record Number

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Final voter turnout figures show a record 8.6 million Californians cast ballots in the November election but the state's voting percentage was the lowest since 1948.

In reporting the official statistics Wednesday, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said the unusually low 82.1 per cent voter turnout was caused primarily by "a definite apathy on the part of voters toward the presidential election."

He said the record number of Californians voting was due to the record 10.4 million registration, almost two million more than were eligible to vote in the 1968 presidential election.

Registration was boosted by the lowering of the voting age to 18 and permitting people to register until 30 days before the election instead of 54 days, Brown said.

Sanitary Board Decides To Reapir Leaky Sewers

The Corte Madera Sanitary Commission has decided to spend up to $16,000 to reapir leaky sewers on Granada Drive and the Marin estates area after repeated complaints from the Ross Valley Sanitary District about increased wet weather flow from Corte Madera.

According to Town Public Works Director Arthur N. Morrison, the commission voted Tuesday night to spend an initial $4,000 in sealing sewer joints beneath Granada Drive.

If the work appears successful after the next rainstorm, said Morrison, similar repairs will be done in the Marin Estates area at an estimated cost of $12,000.

Corte Madera's sewage is treated by the Ross Valley District at its San Quentin peninsula plant under a contract. In recent months Corte Madera's wet weather flow has been double that permitted, the Ross Valley district has charged.

Morrison said the problem is caused by infiltration from rain and ground water. Preliminary tests had shown that Granada Drive and Marin Estates are included in problem areas.

The commission — which is in fact the Corte Madera Town council — also authorized Morrison to get bids for a chlorinator to be installed in its own system.

Morrison said the commission added the proviso that the Corte Madera District won't pay for any pre-chlorination apparatus that might later be installed at the Ross Valley plant.

Hitler's Parade Car To Go On Auction Block

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Adolph Hitler's $2 million parade car will be auctioned Jan. 6 at a sale here.

The German dictator's Mercedes-Benz model 770-K, owned by Tom Barrett of nearby Paradise Valley, will be one of 50 classic vehicles sold. Included will be the staff car used by German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, "The Desert Fox."

Hitler's car was built under his special supervision in Stuttgart, Germany, costing $2 million for engineering and $60,000 for materials. It is armor-plated and has two-inch thick bullet-proof windows.

The car was capable of speeds to 150 miles per hour. It has a 56-gallon gas tank and gets 3 to 4 miles to the gallon. Hitler had raised a platform built into the car to make him appear taller to parade audiences.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Scrambling Man

By LEE TREVINO

There's a difference between luck and scrambling. The best scrambler is the player who isn't afraid to use the club that the shot calls for.

I've seen guys roll balls out of bunkers, bounce 'em off of trees, rocks and caddies, and still wind up close to the hole. That's luck. A scrambler turns bad shots into good results — and that takes skill.

Nobody can scramble well with a "pet" club. Show me a man trying to come out of a trap with a seven-iron because it's his favorite club and I'll show you somebody who's gonna scrape the sand in his backswing.

Don't lean on a certain club for small miracles. Okay, so you can hit a five-iron 70 yards into a tea cup. Don't try to chip out of tall grass with it. A good scrambler ain't afraid to use a four-iron, seven, or a wedge — if it's the percentage club.

A dude who takes the same stick into the bushes, trees and bunkers will always be scrambling — for bogeys. You can spot him anywhere. He's the one with the check book in his hand.

THE SKI SCENE

Snow Chains: Necessary Evil

By CHARLIE COANE

One of the necessary evils of skiing is usually in a sack or a small rectangular box in the trunk of your car. Chains are something that no one likes to think about, much less learn how to use. But for anyone who is planning on doing much skiing during this or any season in the Sierra, chains will enter into the scene more times than one.

True, you don't have to buy chains and you may not have to learn anything about them. You can also rent them for a few dollars. But, if you're an avid skier, you're just delaying the inevitable. You should buy chains and you should learn how to use them correctly. Chains are more likely to be required during the first two or three months of skiing than during the final half of the ski season. But you cannot afford to take a chance driving around the mountains without at least having those little devils in your car somewhere.

Chains cost between $10-$35, depending upon the size of your tires. Fifteen dollars is pretty close for your basic car. But don't stop with just chains. You also need a pair of rubber tighteners ($1-$2), which can be essential for a tight fit around the tires. Those are the basics: chains and tighteners. And most of the time you can get someone (for $3-$4) to put those items on your car when the "chains required" sign pops up, and take them off when they're not needed. But, you can't always depend upon the official chain "putter-oners" (who are licensed).

Other handy things to have in your trunk include a "chain tool", extra chain strands, links, wire, flashlight, ground cloth and perhaps an old parka and gloves. Sounds like preparations for battle, and in a way it is. You have to expect the worst. The "chain tool" is a device for $1-$2 that allows you to very easily take off a broken strand.

If you're driving along and your chains break — you've got a problem. The easiest solution is to clip off the broken strand, and that's done with a chain tool. If you try it with anything else, you could be in for a real struggle. Remember, it could be snowing heavily and no help available. You can keep driving, but you'll do quite a bit of damage to your car with a broken chain. Don't worry about replacing the strand in the bad weather. You'll have no trouble running minus a few strands. The replacement strands can be put on where it's dry — again, use your chain tool.

The extra links and wire are emergency repair items. The wire could be used to fasten down a loose chain so it won't damage the car. The other preparations are strictly to aid in the comfort of putting on chains.

You can also run into situations where chains are required over a summit, and then not necessary once you've passed over the summit and dropped down 1-to-2,000 feet. But beware. You may need them again to drive on side roads or to reach your lodging.

Warriors Host Cavs Tonight In Oakland

The films were of Golden State's 97-95 loss Tuesday night to the Seattle SuperSonics. In that contest, the Warriors shot a miserable 32 per cent from the field.

"What we did at practice, before we loosened up, was to sit and watch the videotape of the Sonics game," said Warriors coach Al Attles Wednesday. "We saw what we did wrong."

But doing something about it is another thing.

"They've got quite a few good ballplayers," added Attles. He said the Warrior defense must shut off Austin Carr and Lenny Wilkens or face the prospect of another Sonics fiasco.

"We should beat Cleveland," noted Attles. "But we should have beaten Seattle. If we don't go out there and do something, we're going to be in trouble. We just got by them last time."

Cleveland lost nine straight before beating Atlanta Tuesday night.

Harris Has A Strange Road To Top

In college at Penn State, Harris was in the shadows while Lydell Mitchell was the recipient of all the publicity and glory. Still, when it came to the pro draft, Harris was the first back taken.

He joined the Pittsburgh Steelers and as a rookie, was relegated to a reserve role, also serving as a return specialist. Then it happened. Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson, the regular Steeler running backs, came down with injuries and Harris got his chance. The rest is history.

Harris tore up the National Football League for two months, tying Jim Brown's record for six consecutive games in which he surpassed the 100-yard mark. He tapered off in his final two games when his offensive line was plagued with injuries but still managed to gain 1,056 yards, just short of the rookie record set last year by Green Bay's John Brockington.

Harris was rewarded for his efforts today when he came within one vote of unanimous selction as United Press International's 1972 American Football Conference Rookie of the Year. Harris received 38 of the 39 votes cast by a panel of three pro football writers from each AFC city.

The lone vote not cast for Harris went to Sistrunk, the Oakland Raiders' defensive tackle.

The 6-4, 255-pound Sistrunk, meanwhile, was one of the better bargains of 1972. Signed as a free agent by Los Angeles, he couldn't find a slot with the Rams and Oakland grabbed him up. He immediately moved out veteran Carlton Oats and established himself as one of the toughest performers in the league.

Minnesota Is Tourney Favorite

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Minnesota's Gophers established themselves as the club to beat Wednesday when the 17th Far West Basketball Classic got under way at Portland, Ore.

The Gophers came from behind with a variety of full-court presses and zone defenses to trip Washington State 41-35 after trailing by six points in the early going.

It was the sixth straight victory for fifth-ranked Minnesota which was paced by Dave Winfield's 15 points.

Oregon's Ducks shot at a blistering 64 per cent pace from the floor and trimmed Columbia 81-56 in the classic's other opening night game. Doug Little led the Ducks with 16 points and freshman Mark Barwig contributed 14.

In the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia, Southern Cal's Trojans lost an opening round game by 77-72 to LaSalle. Sophomore Gus Williams led USC with 23 points while Clint Chapman had 18. But Jim Crawford got 20 for LaSalle and Bob Jones and Bill Taylor 16 apiece.

All-America Ed Ratleff threw in 29 points at Oklahoma City while leading Long Beach to its ninth straight victory, by 87-68 over Mississippi in an All-College Tournament opening round tilt. Long Beach hit at 49 per cent from the floor.

Las Vegas' Rebels took a 15-point lead early in the second half and held on for the victory. Bob Florence paced the Rebels with 33 points and Jimmy Baker had 24.

Alaska trimmed Chico State 81-78, Marymount downed Eastern Washington 75-59, MacAlester turned back Whittier 84-79 and Central Washington beat Lewis and Clark 63-52 in the Chico Invitational in California. Al Shoats hit two free throws with nine seconds to go for Alaska.

In non-tournament games, Pacific with a 55 per cent shooting streak beat Illinois State 73-64, Hayward State upset St. Mary's 91-70, Seattle thumped Dayton 92-71, Wichita State got by Los Angeles State 84-67 and Cal State Bakersfield overcame a five-point deficit with 7 1-2 minutes to go and defeated UC Davis 73-68.

Dick Lotz Working For Goal

The touring pro from Hayward, Calif., fired a five-under-par 67 on Old Delmonte Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead over the field entering today's second round of the $25,000 Laguna Seca-Delmonte Hyatt Pro-Am Invitational.

A dismal 1972 season eliminated Lotz as a automatic qualifier for the 1973 PGA tour. He blamed his poor showing to the fact he had several other side interests and spent too much time as a member of the PGA Tournament Policy Board, a position he no longer holds.

"I'm going into this coming year with an attitude of working hard on my game and I am enthused about it," said Lotz. "Now I'm only going to concentrate on golf."

Eight players shot 68s to deadlock for second place in the new 72-hole tournament. Play opened under warm sunshine Wednesday but finished with a light drizzle falling.

NHL PLAY

Rangers, Bruins Are Surprising

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

When the infant World Hockey Association raided the Boston Bruins for four of their key performers this summer, the experts said there was no way the Bruins could repeat as National Hockey League champions.

They also said there was almost no way last season's runner-ups, the New York Rangers, could miss out on the Stanley Cup.

Well, things haven't quite worked out the way the so-called experts figured and after Boston posted its fifth straight triumph Wednesday night, a 3-1 decision over the Atlanta Flames, and the Rangers went down to defeat at the hands of the Buffalo Sabres, the Bruins moved four points ahead of New York in the NHL East and were only one point behind the first-place Montreal Canadiens.

The Rangers dropped a 4-1 decision to Buffalo and in other NHL action, Minnesota edged Montreal 3-2, Toronto and Pittsburgh battled to a 3-3 tie, St. Louis whipped Chicago 5-2, California tied Philadelphia 2-2 and Los Angeles beat the New York Islanders 4-1.

Second period goals by Wayne Cashman, Fred Stanfield and Johnny Bucyk provided the streaking Bruins with their fifth straight win and third straight over Atlanta.

The injury-plagued Rangers, who have regained the services of defensemen Brad Park and Jim Neilson plus left winger Steve Vickers were unable to threaten the Sabres' goalie Dave Dryden who lost his shutout when Bruce MacGregor tallied for New York with five minutes left in the game and Buffalo leading 4-0.

Second period goals by Danny Grant and Barry Gibbs gave Minnesota the lead and Dean Prentice added the decisive goal in the final period as the North Stars upended Montreal.

Southern Cal Motivation For Roses

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—For those who claim the Southern California Trojans don't have any motivation for their Rose Bowl game against Ohio State, Coach John McKay says it isn't true.

"A lot of people have been saying we don't have any motivation," he told a telephone news conference Wednesday. "But that isn't true because we would like to be the only team in the country to go 12-0 this year."

The Trojans were named the nation's No. 1 team by the United Press International board of ratings and McKay has said that the outcome of the Rose Bowl will not affect the ranking.

The Trojans practiced for 90 minutes Wednesday and McKay said he will give the players the day off Sunday, the day before the Rose Bowl contest.

The Buckeyes skipped practice Wednesday and instead toured Universal Studios.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes said reserve offensive guard Dick Mack probably will see some action at center in the New Years Day classic.

The 6-foot, 215-pound Bucyrus, Ohio, sophomore was added to the roster of centers who will replace the ailing Steve Meyers. Also seeing action at center will be Steve Luke and possibly Tom Nixon.

Meyers has a virus of the spleen and team doctor Robert Murphy said he will not recover in time for the Rose Bowl game.

PREP CAGE PROSPECTS

Terra Linda Is Improving As League Season Nears

By LEW CODDINGTON

Seventh in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

"At this juncture, I'm not pleased, but I don't think they're doing as poorly as the record makes it seem."

That was coach Bob Corley's assessment of his Terra Linda High School basketball team after the Trojans had lost six of seven games, dropping their season record to 4-7 before Tuesday's victory over the College of Marin freshmen.

"We have profited from our losses," Corley went on. "We are improving, and I've seen a lot of good things."

Corley's Trojans finished seventh in the Marin County Athletic League last year with a 4-10 record, and were 10-15 overall. One authentic star and two other occasional starters return from that team, but otherwise the names are new.

The star is Mark Lowey, a 6-foot-4 senior who has been moved from center to forward. He finished eighth among MCAL scorers last year with a 12.7 average and was honorable mention all-league.

The other forward spot belongs to 6-2 Scott Logan, moved from guard, and one guard post is in the hands of 5-10 Nick Mattos. Both were sometime starters last year.

Brian Morey, a 6-5 junior transfer from Utah, has moved into the center spot, and 5-11 Jeff Leaird is the other guard. When Corley has to go to the bench, he comes up with 6-3 forward Rich Mullin, 6-3 forward Mike Purcell, 6-1 guard Mike Austin and 5-10 guard Bob Buckley, who is the younger brother of last year's star John.

For the Trojans to start winning consistently, Corley says, they must start to control the tempo of the game. "I'm not saying we'll play a real slow game, but we can't run and shoot with some of these clubs," he said. Last week, the Trojans lost wide-open games to Washington of San Francisco (85-73) and Ells of Richmond (107-92).

Another problem has been fouling. Against Ells,7for example, the entire front line fouled out, and against Del Valle of Walnut Creek earlier, the Trojans gave up 33 points on free throws. "We held them to 10 field goals and still lost," lamented Corley.

The Trojans have had trouble passing effectively against a press, Corley added, but he sees this as one area where his team is improving as the season goes on.

And that, after all, is why the non-league season was created — not to run up an impressive record, but to iron out the problems and get the team ready for the league. And this fact is known at Terra Linda.

Any time Corley looks up from his desk he can see Don Lucas, whose Trojan football team lost 'em all during non-league play, but ended up in a post-season bowl.

Combined AP & UPI

DETROIT — Dan Devine, who took the Green Bay Packers from mediocrity to the National Football Conference Central Division title in two years, has been named Man of the Year by the Football News.

The Packers' coach-general manager was cited by the weekly paper over owner Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and coaches George Allen of the Washington Redskins, Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins, Bob Devaney of Nebraska, and Joe Paterno of Penn State.

Devine left his relatively secure job as coach at Missouri in January, 1971 to take over a team which had disintegrated after Vince Lombardi left it. Devine, 48, had a 93-37-7 college record for 13 years and won four of six bowl games.

Green Bay was 4-8-2 in Devine's first season but went 10-4 this past season, including back-to-back clutch wins over challengers Detroit and Minnesota at the end of the season to nail down the title. Washington defeated Green Bay 16-3 last weekend in the divisional playoffs.

Tennis

MELBOURNE — Bottom seed Onny-Parum of New Zealand today pulled an upset, defeating Russian champion Alex Metreveli in five tough sets in the quarter-finals of the Australian Open Tennis Championships at Kooyong, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

With many top seeds in the stands, interest has swung to the women's singles championships dominated by triple Wimbledon champion Margaret Court, 1971 Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong and Great Britain's Virginia Wade.

Miss Court who has trimmed right down since the birth of her son Daniel 10 months ago, blanked Barbara Dart of Australia 6-0, 6-0.

NORFOLK, Conn. — Twenty-three-year-old Lanny Wadkins and 25-year-old Jocelyne Bourassa were named Wednesday as the 1972 Rookies of the Year by Golf Digest magazine. The awards will be made Feb. 19 at the Metropolitan New York Golf Writers Dinner in New York.

Wadkins, a former U.S. amateur champion, set a money-winning mark for first-year professionals, garnering $116,616 for 10th place on this year's money-winning list, including a victory in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational. Miss Bourassa set a money-winning record of $16,098 for first-year women pros and finished in the top 10 in nine tour events, including a second in the Southgate Open.

Hockey

DETROIT — The Detroit Red Wings announced Wednesday that goalie Denis DeJordy, acquired in a trade with the New York Islanders for Arnie Brown, has been demoted to the Fort Worth Wings of the Central Hockey League after clearing waivers. DeJordy had a 5.19 goals-against average this season.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Czechoslovakia upped its record to two victories Wednesday night in a penalty-plagued 5-1 World Hockey Tournament downing of Canada.

Czechoslovakia plays Russia tomorrow night in the final game of the Colorado Springs series. There is no game tonight. Saturday night the round-robin tournament moves to Bloomington, Minn., with Russia playing Canada.

PREP NOTES

Marin Cage Records Poor Vs. Bay Teams

By LEW CODDINGTON

It is axiomatic in high school basketball circles that teams from Marin, while good enough to consistently beat their neighbors from up north, are not good enough to beat teams from around the Bay. Performances this year support the axiom.

Marin's overall record so far (not counting last night's games) is 41-37 against all outside opponents. That's not bad — any time a league as a whole is above .500, it's doing all right.

A significant majority of the victories, however, has come against teams from the North Bay — Sonoma, Solano or Napa counties. Marin has a 23-12 record against this competition.

Against the East Bay, where Northern California's basketball power is said to be concentrated, Marin is 7-10. Against San Francisco and the Peninsula, Marin is 10-15. Against others, Marin is 1-0, Redwood having beaten Vacaville.

The overall record is about the same as last year, but with one significant difference. In 1971, Redwood High School gathered prestige for Marin by winning 13 straight, including a victory over powerful Sacred Heart from the city. (When Redwood later was unable to win the Marin County Athletic League title, it appeared the MCAL was becoming strong.)

This year, no team is undefeated. The most impressive so far, Drake, has lost three times. San Marin has sustained only one defeat, but it was a whopper, 112-59 to awesome St. Elizabeth of Oakland.

In short, the situation is the same as it has been the past few years: Marin is O.K. in basketball, but doesn't rank with the best.

HIS METHOD — Fred Doar, who scored 30 points for San Marin's lone bright spot against St. Elizabeth, has a unique training method which is not recommended for general use. He missed the two practices prior to the game with a cold.

Embassy Of Israel In Bangkok Seized

Palestinian Guerrillas Seek Prisoner Release

BANGKOK (UPI) — Four Palestinian guerrillas seized the Israeli embassy today and threatened to blow it up along with six hostages unless Israel released 36 Palestinian prisoners. But tonight they agreed to free the hostages in return for safe conduct from Thailand.

Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chulasapya announced the guerrilla decision to accept safe conduct and a police official said that in return the guerrillas had agreed to release the six Israelis held inside the embassy building for more than 10 hours under a threat of death.

Dawee made no mention of the hostages when he emerged with Egyptian ambassador Mustaffa El Tawi from the embassy after a face-to-face meeting with the guerrillas but the police official said the hostages would be freed.

Dawee, a ranking member of the military controlled government, entered the Embassy with Egyptian Ambassador Mustaffa el Tawi and won the guerrilla promise to leave the country. He said he and Deputy Foreign Minister Chartchai Chunahawan would accompany the guerrillas when they left Thailand. Other officials said that El Tawi would also make the trip, and that the guerrillas would be allowed to keep their weapons.

The Israeli National Radio reported from Bangkok tonight the guerrillas would be flown to Cairo aboard a Scandinavian Airlines plane.

Dawee made the announcement in the floodlit street in front of the Embassy and then after further consultations in a temporary command post across the street, he, Chartchai and the Egyptian ambassador returned to the embassy building. With them they carried two bottles of liquor.

The guerrillas identified themselves as the Black September Organization which carried out the massacre of Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics and said it was responsible for the massacre at the Lod International airport in Tel Aviv in which Japanese gunmen shot and killed a score of persons.

Dawee emerged from the embassy at 10:35 p.m. , more than 10 hours after the four guerrillas, armed with automatic weapons, took it over. They threatened death to the Israelis inside if their demands for release of guerrillas held prisoner in Israel were not met by 8 a.m. Friday (8 p.m. EST today).

"For the sake of the king and Thailand they have agreed to leave the country," said Dawee who is agriculture minister and an influential member of the military controlled government.

'Heaviest' Hanoi Raid Reported

SAIGON (UPI) — Swedish diplomatic reports said American B52s and fighter-bombers hit Hanoi at noon today in the heaviest daylight bombardment of the war, and the Soviet news agency Tass reported that parts of the North Vietnamese capital had been "erased from the face of the earth."

There were hints in the government-controlled press in Saigon that the North Vietnamese might have had enough and that the raids might be halted above the 20th Parallel in the next few days in order to resume the peace talks in Paris. But the Communist Vietnamese in Paris were still issuing defiant statements.

The U.S. Command reported growing American losses of planes and men in the massive aerial assault but had no word on today's bombing activities. U.S. military sources said strikes against the Hanoi-Haiphong industrial heartland continued today and Communists reports said there were three Hanoi raids today.

The command reported the loss of two more B52s and the shooting down of a Jolly Green Giant rescue helicopter over North Vietnam, bringing to 14 the number of the $8 million strategic bombers lost in the air war that began on Dec. 18.

Hanoi Radio said a North Vietnamese air force plane, presumably a MIG, shot down a B52 some 70 miles southwest of Hanoi on Wednesday. A Hungarian report said three B52s were shot down by fighter-planes.

The North Vietnamese delegation in Paris issued a special statement today saying the American attacks have ravaged areas of Hanoi and Haiphong with the force of an earthquake, killing "thousands" of people. It said North Vietnamese gunners had shot down 71 U.S. aircraft, including 31 B52s, in nine days.

The U.S. Command and the Pentagon gave no reports of any damage to civilian areas and insisted that the planes dropped their bombs only on military targets. The only reports of what actually was happening in the greatest aerial assault of the war came from Communist news agencies and neutral diplomats in Hanoi.

The Hungarian news agency MTI reported today that a blazing B52 shot down over Hanoi Wednesday crashed near the presidential palace and that several crewmen died in the flames. It said the wreckage demolished a few buildings but no Vietnamese were killed.

Final Goodbye To Truman Is Said In Simple Funeral

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) —In a simple funeral fitting for the common man he was, America said goodbye today to Harry S Truman.

After the 20-minute last rites, the nation's 33rd President was buried in the ground he loved, near the rose garden in the courtyard of the Truman Library.

Bess Truman, his aging widow and helpmate for more than half a century, was there to say a final farewell to her beloved Harry. And about 220 relatives and close friends who knew and loved him as companion and neighbor, said goodbye, too, at the plain, private service.

There was no pomp because Truman disdained it. There were no eulogies. There was only prayer.

"Most merciful Father, who has been pleased to take unto Thyself the soul of Thy servant, Harry, grant to us who are still in our pilgrimage, and who walk as yet by faith, that having served thee with constancy on earth, we may be joined hereafter with Thy blessed saints in glory everlasting," said the Rev. H. Lembcke Jr., pastor of the Independence Trinity Episcopal Church.

In death, as in life, Truman's desire for simplicity prevailed. He believed that man provided his own dignity and that pageantry was not needed.

His state funeral, embellished only with military flourishes, taps and a 21-gun salute, still was a modest tribute from a grateful nation to a courageous leader. A memorial service is planned next week in Washington's National Cathedral as a final gesture to the tough, little Missourian.

Some of the old doughboys who served under "Captain Harry" in Battery D during World War I were at the funeral. They stood with the stiffest military posture that age would allow.

The casket was covered with red carnations — Truman's favorite flower. He was buried in his favorite blue pin-striped suit and wore his famed wire-rimmed glasses.

This was the chosen prayer for the funeral: "I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die."

Truman himself selected the burial spot in the grassy courtyard. He looked out on it often from the glass wall of his library office where he spent his last years happily surrounded by his White House mementos.

"I want to be buried out there so I can get up and walk into my office if I want to," he once told Army funeral planners.

Truman's mahogany casket was brought to the library, high on a knoll, and placed in the lobby on a black velvet-draped catafalque to lie in state Wednesday until noon EST today.

President Nixon, Truman's old political foe, and former President Lyndon B. Johnson, Truman's close friend and ally, came separately, placed wreaths and left. Neither returned today for the private funeral for Truman, who died Tuesday at the age of 88 after a three-week illness.

Tighter Controls On Surplus Planes Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government safety investigators called today for tighter restrictions on the use of surplus military airplanes, such as the one that crashed into a California shopping center in September killing 22 persons.

In a series of recommendations based on its preliminary investigation of the crash the National Transportation Safety Board urged the Federal Aviation Administration to:

Establish stricter experience and proficiency standards for private pilots who fly surplus military planes.

Tighten flight rules to provide greater separation between air show planes, spectators and nearby residential areas.

Limit the use of surplus military planes by tightening requirements for FAA certificates needed to fly them.

"The establishment of reasonable minimum standards in this area would serve to promote aviation, rather than inhibit it," the board said.

It also said the "built up area around the Sacramento Executive Airport raises serious questions with regard to the suitability for airshows at this and similar airports."

TWO ESCAPE FAIRFAX INFERNO

The Fred Jens home at 95 Forrest Avenue, Fairfax, is a charred ruin today, totally destroyed by a roaring fire at 2 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Jens fled in their nightclothes after being awakened by a family dog. Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger — who saw the blaze while returning from a trip to Santa Rosa — and a neighbor, Wilton L. Dyer of 97 Forrest Avenue, helped rescue the pair and called firemen. Firemen still were seeking the cause of the fire, which did more than $30,000 damage, according to preliminary estimates.

Heerdt Marsh Development Is Given Setback By BCDC Staff

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The staff of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday recommended denial of a permit to develop virtually all of the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera.

The controversial $5.5 million plan by San Rafael developer Frank M. Burke and property owner William J. Heerdt will be voted upon by the commission at 2 p.m. on Jan. 4 in Room 1194 of the State Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue.

Staff recommendations almost always are sustained by the commission. Five previous development plans for the marsh failed to get commission permits.

Burke's plan calls for dredging 21.3 acres for a 335-berth marina and filling 47 acres for commercial recreation and marine industrial uses. Only five acres of marsh would be left undeveloped.

The commission's staff recommended denial on the grounds that the application was not properly before the commission, the project was not necessary to the health, safety or welfare of the public in the Bay Area, and it was inconsistent with the commission's bay plan.

State law requires applicants for commission permits first to seek required permits from the local government having jurisdiction. The applicants, however, only sought approval "in concept" by the Town of Corte Madera — which the town council refused to grant.

The staff recommendation stressed that the commission's law requires that a substantial portion of such projects be built on existing land, while the proposal would put all of its bay-oriented commercial recreation on new fill.

As for the proposed industrial and commercial uses, the staff said, the applicants had not shown there was no alternative upland site.

The staff's four-page report concluded that "the project will cause substantial harm to the bay."

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

No Need To Switch Out Of Holiday Inns

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a 56-year-old housewife with a portfolio of common stocks valued at $54,000. About 45 per cent is in utilities, 30 per cent moderate income stocks and 25 per cent in Holiday Inns. In addition, I have an $18,000 income which rises with inflation. Should I sell Holiday Inns (NYSE) and put the proceeds into mutual funds and government bonds? — M.B.

A. Since you apparently do not need to supplement your income, I can see no great advantage in switching out of Holiday Inns. As your portfolio is now constituted, this issue is your major source of potential appreciation, with the balance of your holdings primarily income equities.

A nine-month old strike at Continental Trailways reduced profit contributions from Holiday's Transportation Division in the second and third quarters. However, as a result of strong gains from the hotel supply business and rebounds in food and lodging operations, earnings comparisons were not significantly affected. Full year net should equal or slightly better last year's performance.

The Food and Lodging Division, which has shown outstanding strength this year, with earnings ahead 33 per cent year-to-year through the first nine months, should be an important contributor in 1973. A small increment in occupancy levels, coupled with a 3 per cent increase in room rates, would lift profits in this division by about 20 per cent. Transportation, the company's second largest contributor both to revenues and earnings, should be strike free within the coming quarter. The products division, which provides furnishings, supplies and equipment for the Holiday Inns chain as well as for other customers should extend its above-average growth record.

Longer-term benefits are anticipated from the newer, 25 per cent less costly construction methods now being introduced, an increase in the number of new company-owned units to be opened, plus foreign expansion. European inns are experiencing 70 per cent occupancy rates in older units and 60 per cent usage overall. Three units are under construction in Japan, with four more scheduled. Shares should be held for their above average long term potential.

SAFETY VEHICLE

This is Ford Motor Company's Experimental Safety Vehicle (ESV), which was delivered to the United States Department of Transportation. It was built for the government for the token cost of one dollar. The most noticeable feature is the front bumper, which extends further than conventional bumpers to allow room for a nine-inch stroke of the hydraulic strut linking the bumper to the frame.

Fairchild Makes Comeback At Redwood Highway Plant

By WAT TAKESHITA

Fairchild Semiconductor's diode plant at 4300 Redwood Highway in San Rafael, which came close to economic failure only 18 months ago, is making a strong comeback, with 1973 prospects the best in recent years.

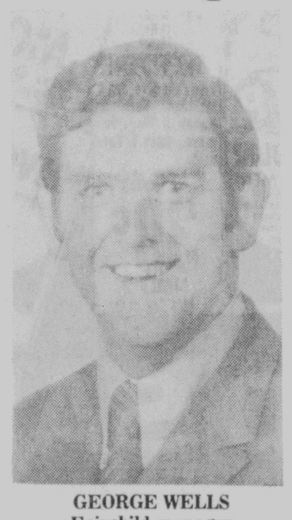
Manager George D. Wells, who took over the San Rafael plant in August of 1971, said the plant was in serious trouble that year.

"But now the tough times are behind us," said Wells. "We face the brightest year in five years. The backlog of orders has never been higher, and the chief limitation to production is the supply of raw materials like silicon."

Prospects are so bright that expensive new modern equipment is being installed to increase and upgrade production.

Wells, 37, a nuclear physicist who came from Scotland 12 years ago, said the economic decline at the Fairchild plant in the mid 1960's resulted from a decline in the diode market. He said the company was able to reverse that trend by opening up new markets and producing integrated circuits which are more in demand than the old diodes.

Wells gave the following account of the rise, fall and recovery of the first major industrial plant in the Northgate area of San Rafael:



GEORGE WELLS
Fairchild manager

Fairchild's diode plant originally opened on Jordan Street in San Rafael in 1960, with a staff of about 10 girls. In 1962, when the 80,000-square-foot plant was built at Northgate, it was the only major structure in the area.

During the peak of its production in the mid 1960's, 1,100 persons were employed at the plant, more than half of them Marin residents.

The plant's main product is the diode, a tiny device that allows passage of electric current in one direction but not the other. The diode also controls the amount of current flow. The primary use of the diodes were in computers, although some were used in radios.

As electronic technology improved, the diode was replaced by the integrated circuit (where diodes and transistors are made of one piece of material). This, together with the drop in computer sales and cutbacks in the space program, threw the diode market into a tailspin during the recession of 1968 to 1971. Plant employment dropped from a peak of 1,100 to 245 in February this year.

Wells decided that the only way to save the diode plant was to (1) go into the production of integrated circuits and new kinds of diodes, and (2) develop new customers, particularly in the consumer market, instead of relying almost completely on the computer industry.

Wells succeeded in developing new products and found new markets in the automotive, camera, and radio-TV field.

Some examples of his new products:

The Zener diode, used in conjunction with the automobile seat belt, will prevent the car from being started unless the seat belt is fastened in front.

Linear circuits used in computers, desk calculators, missile control systems, Polaroid cameras, television and radios.

New products and a broadened market brought employment up to 300, with another 100 expected to be added next year.

Whereas at one time, a majority of the work force lived in Marin, the picture has changed. Today, 40 per cent live in Marin and the remaining 60 per cent is divided just about evenly between the Sonoma-Vallejo area and the East Bay.

Minority hiring ranks high in the priorities set by Wells. The minority population of the employees is 35 per cent, much higher than the average in the Bay Area, said Wells. "I'm proud of that figure. Among our toals for 1973, one of the top priorities is in hiring and promoting minorities."

Wells is the sixth manager at the San Rafael plant. After receiving his master's degree in nuclear physics at Glasgow University, he came to the United States in 1960 and went to work for Transitron Corporation in Wakefield, Mass. He then went to Sylvania in Woburn, Mass., in 1961 and to Fairchild's Mountain View plant in August of 1969. He became manager of the faltering San Rafael plant in August of 1971.

Bright Idea Turned Into A Bond Bundle

PALO ALTO (BW) — James M. Benham is a 36-year-old Californian who got an idea while he was a star salesman at the San Jose branch of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith a year and a half ago and now is a rebel against a very important system.

The system against which he is firing is the one which pays a mere 4 or 5 per cent interest on savings accounts when, he contends, the investment should yield savers 6½ or 7 per cent.

Benham said he isn't really a revolutionary but rather an "evolutionary." He foresees "a natural evolution of the capitalistic system" to correct the situation.

Bond funds are increasing but Benham contended his capital preservation fund is the first no-load fund to offer a straight debt portfolio of government securities and AA or AAA rated corporate bonds. The annual management fee is ½ per cent.

Born in Joliet, Ill., Benham studied money under Andrew F. Brimmer, when the federal reserve board member was a professor at Michigan State University, where Benham obtained a master's degree in economics.

Then, for two years, Benham was an examiner for the 12th Federal Reserve District (San Francisco) where, he said, he got a look at bank portfolios. He joined Merrill Lynch in 1963.

His idea came in June, 1971, as a result of observing in the securities industry "the hardships of small investors in buying bonds in small amounts," he said. He began reading on the subject and "picking brains."

He hired a doctor of philosophy degree candidate at Stanford University to find out how long ago a no-load bond fund could have been presented successfully and got back data indicating the answer was 25 years ago.

"Why don't big securities houses (he mentioned several by name) open no-load bond funds?" he asked. "Because their commercial bank friends wouldn't like it. There'd be disintermediation like you've never seen before."

Disintermediation is a word generally used to mean taking money out of a bank or savings and loan association and buying bonds with it.

He has prepared a booklet stating that his fund offers more safety, liquidity and yield than the savings institutions.

The booklet states that the fund will always have at least half of its portfolio in government securities and the rating on the rest of its bonds will be at least AA. A typical bank or savings and loan has less than 50 per cent of its assets in comparable quality investments, the booklet states.

Benham is chairman and president of the fund. There is a vice president, Paul K. Robertson, a lawyer who "contributes legal advice." They have secretaries — and that's the organization.

"That's all we need," said Benham. "I don't have to go out and study a company to see if the stock is going up. Moody's and Standard & Poor's ratings tell me what bonds we can buy. Outside services handle our accounting."

With assets of $100,000 Benham made the fund's first investment — $95,000 of Federal Home Loan Bank notes maturing Jan. 25, 1974, and yielding more than 8 per cent.

If the fund were a thousand times as big, three zeros could have been added to the purchase without the need of additional staff, he remarked.

The fund has a minimum initial share purchase of $1,000 and a minimum subsequent investment of $10. A redemption fee of 1 per cent is imposed on investors of $100,000 or more who pull out within 90 days of entering.

Benham said this is designed to keep out disruptive "hot money" from big corporations that might be tempted to cash their bank certificates of deposit.

Benham thinks the management company, of which he owns 70 per cent and Robertson 30 per cent, should break even when assets reach $6 million. He then can start taking out a salary, he said, and at $20 million he would hire a portfolio manager.

He said he has invested $60,000 in the project. His plan is that it will eventually pay him a good salary and also accumulate capital for him that will reach $1 million at the age of 63.

He's not aiming at more than $1 million, he said. He thinks that by the time he's 63, the way things are going, no one will be permitted to own much more than a million bucks.

Small Furniture Stores Said Facing Hard Years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The large furniture warehouse showrooms will capture a fat 15 per cent of the furniture market by 1975 at the expense of the small home furnishings retailer, says the Bank of America's Small Business Reporter.

The report Tuesday said the small retailer must learn to strengthen his operations and develop competitive innovations to create his own niche in the nation's $38 billion annual home furnishings marketplace.

Although the warehouse concept is sound, the bank said, it doesn't cover all consumers since many don't desire self-service for major purchases like home furnishings.

The store in the strongest position to compete with the warehouse concept is the small specialty store that offers services, wide choices of fabrics and custom-designed goods, said the report.

"The small general furnishings store will disappear from big metropolitan areas within a short time," states the bank. "The only avenue left for a small merchant will be in specializing — having the best selection of modern and traditional furniture or in having a top-end store with talented decorators and fine quality merchandise."

The report predicted an overall upward surge in the home furnishings industry during the coming decade. "To survive this highly competitive and hazardous field requires a tenacious and aggressive merchant, who is flexible and will offer personalized service and an appealing store image," it said.

Rental Demand Will Continue

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — There will be a continued and strong demand for rental housing throughout the 1970s according to L. B. (Les) Nelson, president of the National Apartment Association.

"Contrary to some current forecasts that rental housing soon will become a thing of the past, the market for rental apartments will continue for a long time to come," said Nelson, whose association represents more than 25,000 builders, developers, owners and managers of apartments throughout the U.S.

"There always will be a segment of our population that will demand apartment living and that demand can't be satisfied by housing built for sale, whether it is single-family detached, condominiums or other forms of sales housing," said Nelson. "Many people cannot or will not assume the responsibilities of home ownership."

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

Crockett's Van And Storage To Begin 76th Year In '73

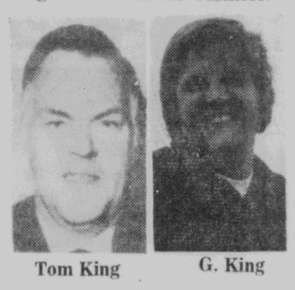
Crockett's Van and Storage Inc. is completing its 75th year of operation in San Rafael and will start its 76th year in 1973.

The company, located at 522 B Street, is operated by the third and fourth generation of the Crockett family, Thomas W. and Lavonne Keyes King and their son, Gerald King.

It was back in 1897 that the express business was launched at the same 522 B Street location by a man named Berkhart, who hauled everything from dead bodies to household goods.

In 1910, Henry and Dora Crockett opened their van and storage firm on B Street where the Independent-Journal building is now located. The Crocketts later bought the old Berkhart express business at 522 B Street.

When Henry Crockett died in 1917, the ownership passed to his stepson, Marshall Keyes, who ran the business until his death in 1963. Marshall Keyes' widow, Marie, lives at The Tamalpais in Greenbrae and is president of Crockett's Van and Storage Inc., although she is no longer active in the business.



Tom King G. King

Her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. King of San Rafael operate the business, with warehouses in San Rafael and in Hamilton Industrial Park. They are also Marin agents of the Aero-Mayflower Transit Co. of Indianapolis.

Their son Gerald, who graduated from the University of Oregon last year with a degree in economics, joined the firm this year as the fourth generation of the Crockett family to be associated in the business.

LAUREN (LARRY) LARSON, formerly with Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies, is now associated with the financial planning firm of Capital Planning Associates, Inc. of 97 San Marin Drive, Novato.

Larson, a resident of San Francisco, worked for Liberty Mutual for more than 20 years before joining Capital Planning Associates.

CONTEMPORARY HANDCRAFTS, which has been operating for two and one-half years at 1313 Fourth Street in San Rafael, will move next February to San Anselmo.

Owners Kenneth N. and Linda Ingber of San Anselmo said they will move to 635 San Anselmo Avenue where the H. P. Morphis Antique Store is now located.

Contemporary Handcrafts sells gold and silver contemporary jewelry, handblown glass, leather goods, hand-made furniture, weavings and other gift items.

The new location will be directly across the street from Flash Jewelry Supply Co., which the Ingbers operate at 638 San Anselmo Avenue. Flash Jewelry Supply specializes in a complete line of American Indian turquoise jewelry. Flash also supplies raw gold and silver, stones, and tools for the silversmiths and goldsmiths in Marin.

The Ingbers established Flash at 1 Bolinas Avenue in Fairfax in November of 1971 and moved it last September to larger quarters at 638 San Anselmo Avenue.

Ingber said he is moving Contemporary Handcrafts to San Anselmo because it is a better business location, and his two shops will be close together for a more efficient operation.

S & S MACHINE and Engineering Co. moved last week from Woodland Avenue to its new location at 767 Lincoln Avenue, suite 12, in San Rafael. The company's telephone number remains unchanged.

S & S Machine and Engineering, founded in September of 1969 at 66 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael, is owned by John P. Suacci of Greenbrae and his son, John Douglas Suacci of Novato. It is an industrial manufacturing firm that produces machinery for various industries.

DENNIS GAMBLE of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president at the Marsh & McLennan Inc. insurance broker in San Francisco.

Gamble began his career as a Lloyd's broker in London, joined Marsh & McLennan in 1968, and is currently responsible for the property, boiler and machinery marketing department.

JOE WITTENMEIER of Mill Valley, charter life underwriter, has been elected president of the Marin County Estate Planning Council.

Marin County Estate Planning Council is a group that assists mutual clients in all of the various needs for accountants, attorneys, trust officers and life underwriters in solving their business and personal problems.

New Light For Repairing Eye

I-J Special Report

PALO ALTO — A newly developed lamp — slightly larger than a Christmas tree light yet producing 200,000 peak beam candlepower — has opened the way to a low-cost device for surgical "light welding" repairs of the human eye.

Developed by a division of Varian Associates, the high-intensity 150-watt lamp measures only one and one-fourth inches in diameter by one and one-eighth inches long. It is called a xenon short arc lamp after the gas which pressurizes the sealed, self-contained unit.

The lamps' first medical application, the portable xenon light coagulator, was developed by Patrick O'Malley, M.D., of South Bend, Ind., and is being manufactured by Clinitex, Inc., of Danvers, Mass.

Lester Pearson Dies In Canada

OTTAWA (UPI) — Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian prime minister who won the Nobel Peace Prize for helping arrange a cease-fire in the 1956 Suez crisis, died Wednesday at the age of 75.

Dr. P. M. Burton, Pearson's private physician, earlier in the day had confirmed that Pearson had cancer of the liver. Time of death was 11:40 p.m. EST.

Pearson's health had been uncertain since the summer of 1970 when he had a cancerous eye removed. He had been in Florida on vacation but was rushed home Christmas Eve. He lapsed into a coma Wednesday morning.

At his bedside when he died were his widow, Maryon, and his son and daughter, Geoffrey and Pat.

Pearson will lie in state in the rotunda in the center block of Canada's parliament building. A full state funeral was planned, but final arrangements were not immediately announced. He was to be interred in a $10 plot he purchased in the late 1940s in Quebec's Gatineau Hills.

"The loss of the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson is a great one, for men like him appear rarely," said Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau. "He was a man of ability and good will who worked the greater part of his life to make the world a better place for others."

In 1956, Pearson personally directed a successful move to obtain a cease-fire in the Suez crisis in which France and Britain had intervened in the Israeli-Egyptian conflict and a major world conflict threatened to explode.

On Nov. 1, 1956, Pearson went before the U.N. General Assembly and proposed a cease-fire in the Middle East to be followed by a supervised police force in the area.

LESTER B. PEARSON
Former prime minister dies

Following his speech, Pearson got support from the United States, which had been considering a resolution of its own calling for the withdrawal of the British and French from the Suez. The resolution was passed 57-0 by the United Nations and within two week U.N. troops with Canadian contigents were in the Suez.

The cease-fire did not end the hostilities but it did buy cooling off time, and when Gunnar Jahn, chairman of the Nobel Prize Committee, presented Pearson's peace award, he told Pearson he had "saved the world."

Pearson served as prime minister from 1963 until 1968, when he was replaced by the current Canadian leader, Pierre Trudeau.

New Reform Planned In Hot Dog Labeling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Surrendering to consumer pressure and a court order, the Agriculture Department has announced plans for a second major round of labeling and content reform for hot dogs.

The first step in response to rising complaints over one of the nation's favorite foods came three years ago. In 1969, officials ended a long dispute by ordering a 30 per cent fat content limit on hot dogs and other cooked sausage products.

Now, officials say new proposals which may take effect early next year will junk current rules under which a hot dog containing water, sweeteners and curing agents can still be labeled "all meat." A federal court had ruled the "all meat" wording was misleading to consumers.

Also repealed would be rules allowing a hot dog containing up to 3.5 per cent nonfat dry milk to be labeled simply "frankfurter."

In a companion step, which had been disclosed earlier, the department said its new hot dog reform plan would also ban the use of meat and poultry byproducts such as lips, snouts and spleens in frankfurters and other cooked sausages bearing ordinary labeling. If byproducts are used in something that looks like a hot dog, the product would have to be labeled "imitation" in letters as large as those used for the word "frankfurter."

The new plan would set up two name categories for frankfurters, bologna and other similar cooked sausage:

—Category One would contain only "skeletal muscle meat," including up to 15 per cent poultry, plus necessary processing ingredients such as water, sweeteners and curing agents. Such products, which currently can be labeled "all meat frankfurter" or "all beef," depending on content, could in the future use only the traditional product name such as "frankfurter."

—Category Two could contain the same ingredients as the first group, but also could contain limited amounts of binders such as nonfat dry milk or soy protein. Under present rules such products are labeled "frankfurter," but in the future they would have to bear a more descriptive title such as, for example, "frankfurter, nonfat dry milk added."

Nixon Team Gives Hints On Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials indicate "Phase III" of President Nixon's economic program may see the dropping of rent controls next year and changes in the profit margin rule disliked by business.

They also indicate food price regulations will escape major tampering when the administration's economic stabilization program is redesigned.

Hints of what government economic controllers have in mind for 1973 emerged in briefings for newsmen by leading federal economic policy makers Wednesday.

President Nixon already has said he wants some form of continued stabilization authority when the present Economic Stabilization Act expires April 30, and officials emphasized that Nixon will have the final word on the shape of the redesigned wage-price controls.

The administration has been gathering suggestions from business, labor, consumers, congressmen and its own stabilization officials for the past two weeks. A sense of the thinking of most participants was revealed by the briefers.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said prolonged rent controls have a "negative effect" on tenants as well as landlords.

"We ought to be on the way out of the rent control business," Stein said.

Stein and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz also suggested that reducing coverage of the controls would improve the efficiency of the government stabilization program and eliminate essentially nonproductive paper work for many businesses.

A senior official of the Cost of Living Council, who asked not to be identified, said the business profit margin rule "has got to change."

This regulation, widely criticized in the business community, limits profit margins (profits as a percentage of sales) for companies who boost prices to the average of the best two of the last three fiscal years.

Businessmen have argued that this base period is no longer realistic. More important, most observers concede that the rule encourages wasteful spending by companies who are bumping against their profit margin ceilings.

With a sigh and a shake of his head Donald Rumsfeld, executive director of the Cost of Living Council, told reporters there were three problems to be faced during the next phase of controls: "Food, food and food."

The stubborn rise in food prices, spurred by heavy consumer demand and the fact that prices at the farm level are uncontrolled, has been the biggest headache for the economic controllers.

The administration has consistently argued that controlling raw agricultural products would inevitably lead to rationing and black markets since farmers would cut back their output substantially.

Search For Ship Survivors Continues

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — The search for survivors of the 13,000-ton Pacrover, missing since Sunday with its Korean crew of 33 and load of coal 800 miles south of Kodiak Island has entered its sixth day.

Eight Coast Guard, Navy and Air Force aircraft were participating in the search, along with Canadian and U.S. Coast Guard cutters.

40 Killed

MANILA (AP) — Government troops assaulted a Moslem training camp in southern Zamboanga del Norte Province today, killing 40 insurgents, the department of information announced.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Penalty Lifted

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday that it is lifting the death penalty more than two years after it was made law. It was never used.

Suspension of the death penalty was decreed after a cabinet meeting presided over by President Alejandro Lanusse. One of his predecessors, Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, invoked the death penalty on June 2, 1970, the day after extremists claimed they had assassinated former president Gen. Pedro Aramburu.

Aramburu was kidnaped in May, 1970, and his body found six weeks later.

Mars Boiling

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The planet Mars is beginning to "boil" inside — the result of heating from radioactive decay — which may well lead to the production of an atmosphere similar to that of Earth, a professor of planetary science said Wednesday.

Dr. Bruce Murray of the California Institute of Technology told the annual winter meeting of the American Physical Society that findings of the Mariner 9 space probe show that Mars is just coming alive.

He said the decay of radioactive heat has started a boiling process within the planet which creates volcanoes and fracturing of the crust.

Murray said the process may well produce the carbon dioxide and water that make up an atmosphere.

San Francisco To Aid Managua

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — City officials decided today to send nearly one-third of San Francisco's own earthquake emergency relief supplies to Managua.

Mayor Joseph Alioto said steps would be taken to get the 10,000 cases of high-protein food en route to Nicaragua immediately.

City departments were also cooperating in a massive food collection program for the stricken Latin American city. Fire Departments were helping collect goods.

Harvard Begins A Smoking Study

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Harvard Medical School began Tuesday a five-year, $2.8 million study of the relationship between smoking and heart and lung disease.

Eight tobacco companies are funding the project. Dr. Gary L. Huber of Boston City Hospital said there may be "many other factors, not so well publicized" involved in heart and lung disease, such as heredity, air pollution and other environmental factors.

"A direct causal relationship for any of these or other environmental factors has not been clearly demonstrated," Huber said.

2,500 Arrested On Drunken Driving

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The California Highway Patrol made an all-time high total of drunken driven arrests during the Christmas holiday, but CHP Commissioner Walter Pudinski says the record for a 72-hour holiday period may fall during New Year's weekend.

Pudinski reported Wednesday that 2,500 drunken driving arrests were made during the Christmas weekend. The total was more than double the number arrested during a normal 72-hour period.

Heights Sealed

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops sealed off the Golan Heights to civilian traffic early today in the wake of air strikes Wednesday against three targets in Syria. But military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the situation along the border was calm.

Military authorities closed the Heights to everything except military traffic and vehicles driven by local residents — as they usually do as a precautionany measure when there is a flareup on the Syrian frontier.

No Peace Talks

PARIS (UPI) — Because of Communist protests about the full-scale bombing of North Vietnam and an American request for a holiday break, the four parties at the Paris peace talks scheduled no meeting today. It was the first miss in the talks in two months.

The meeting is usually held every Thursday and so far there have been 171 sessions since the talks began in 1969.

The last break in the talks came Oct. 19 when the four delegations skipped a week while leaders of the European Common Market used the Kleber Avenue hall where peace delegates meet.

Coffee Study

BOSTON (UPI) — A team of researchers has found that coffee may be a factor in causing heart attacks.

"The team found that people who drink more than five cups of coffee a day are twice as likely to suffer heart attacks as people who drink no coffee at all," a spokesman for Boston University Medical Center said last night.

The researchers, headed by Drs. Hershell Jick and Dennis Slone, studied records of 276 heart patients at hospitals in the United States and other countries. They compared them to a control group of 1,100 hospital patients with similar backgrounds who suffered from other ailments.

"They found that all of them varied very little in their medical history — a number of both groups smoked, for instance — but when they additionally compared their coffee consumption, that's where there was a really substantial difference," the spokesman said. "All of the heart attack victim consumed much greater quantities of coffee."

Shoot Order

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Gen. Anastasio Somoza ordered troops to shoot to kill today in enforcing a dusk-to-dawn curfew in the earthquake-destroyed center city in an effort to "restore Nicaragua's honor, our only salvation."

Officials said National Guardsmen bullets killed at least two persons, including a 4-year-old boy, after Somoza warned over an emergency radio broadcast that his troops had been ordered to kill looters. Martial law was declared Saturday but not enforced until Wednesday.

Somoza said the toughened measures were taken "to help protect the people in the area and restore Nicaragua's honor, our only salvation."

Nicaraguan officials said at least 3,000 persons were killed in the three major tremors early Saturday.

Irish Killing

BELFAST (UPI) — British army troops shot a gunman dead Wednesday night in the first killing in Northern Ireland since a Christmas cease-fire by political and religious extremists involved in the province's 3½ year conflict.

Fourteen other persons were wounded in bombings and shootings during a 48-hour period which followed the resumption of hostilities.

British spokesmen said troops shot and killed Eugene M. Devlin, 22, in the town of Strabane on the border with the Irish republic. Another man with him was wounded when an army patrol opened fire after challenging the two men to stop.

No Pay Hike

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The bankrupt Penn Central Railroad will not have to give 44,000 union employes wage increases next Monday as scheduled.

Trustees of the ailing carrier Wednesday told U.S. District Court Judge John P. Fullam they faced a "difficult cash position" and asked for a three-month delay of the pay increases.

Fullam, who is overseeing reorganization of the railroad, agreed. He allowed the trustees to put off until April paying increases totaling about $5.1 million to members of six unions.

Moral Right Of SST Questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of a conservation organization said today that no country has the moral right to create a supersonic transport (SST) that would deplete the world's supply of oil and pollute its environment.

"Oil will have too many far more important uses throughout all the future we can envisage," said David R. Brower, president of Friends of the Earth. "This generation does not have the moral right, and should not have the gall to waste its oil on SST's, whoever builds them."

Brower testified before a joint economic subcommittee hearing, called by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to investigate reports that the administration plans to revive the SST, which was killed by the last Congress.

Administration witnesses refused to testify, although Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe has said publicly that no SST money will be included in the upcoming budget.

However, numerous opponents appeared to testify.

"We deplore the indications that the administration now wishes to try mouth-to-mouth resuscitation of an albatross that should be given a decent burial and forgotten," said Brower. "Organizations devoted to the protection of the environment here and abroad have a heavy enough burden without having to refight battles, properly won at substantial cost, with such frequency."

"As we have tried to make clear before, the supersonic transport is economically unsound. It produces an intolerable level of noise, whether flying supersonically or subsonically.

"It adds to atmospheric pollution, unacceptably at lower elevations and possibly catastrophically at its higher altitudes. It threatens an unconscionable drain on the world's vanishing stores of fossil fuels, oil in particular."

Brower urged Congress to ban all SST takeoffs and landings in the United States and its possessions.

He said that the 500 SSTs that the Boeing Company proposed to build before the program was killed would use up an extra 2 million barrels of jet fuel per day to maintain its extra speed over the same number of passenger miles produced by the Boeing 747.

"That happens to equal the predicted drain on North Slope oil that the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline would carry," Brower said, adding that if all that oil were refined into jet fuel," then the convenience of the jet set would cost the world the entire Alaska discovery "in less than two decades."

Lack Of Period In Truman's Name Explained

INDEPENDENCE, Mo, (UPI) — There always have been questions why no period follows former President Harry S Truman's middle initial.

The answer: his parents wanted no punctuation there and in later years Truman himself asked that none be used. The "S" is in honor of his two grandfathers, named Shipp and Solomon.

The recently published Truman biography by his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Truman Daniel, is titled "Harry S. Truman." The publishers offered no explanation for use of the period.

San Pedro Ridge Plan Presented

A handful of Las Gallinas Valley residents listened favorably last night as Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere presented his proposal for "do it yourself" acquisition of 407.65 acres of San Pedro Ridge to preserve as open space.

The 10 persons in the audience agreed the idea needed wider public airing. They decided it should be included on the agenda for the Santa Venetia Improvement Association public meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 8 in the Santa Venetia Middle School library. Roumiguiere agreed to repeat his presentation.

All residents of Gallinas Valley east of Highway 101 and the Los Ranchitos area west of the freeway will be invited, according to Mrs. A. J. Whittle, association president.

Roumiguiere's presentation last night was essentially the same as reported in Tuesday's Independent-Journal, that the 1,212 homes in the area could form a local service area and hold an election on a $500,000 bond issue to buy the land.

The supervisor stressed that he could not speak for other board members, but he indicated the county might be willing to share 10 or 15 per cent of the cost, since the Marin County Civic Center could be included in the service area.

This would lower his earlier estimate of the monthly cost per home, Roumiguiere pointed out. He had predicted that a 20-year bond issue would cost each home between $1.95 and $2.75 a month.

The supervisor estimated the fair market value of homes in the proposed county service area at $40 million, and the market value of the civic center holdings at $15 million.

He said the first step, if valley residents were favorable, would be a hearing by the supervisors, followed by formation of the service area and a bond election — which might take a year in all.

Roumiguiere pointed out that the largest of the six parcels in the suggested open space package, the 257-acre Fierman holdings, has already been proposed for development of 1,100 townhouses.

A last-minute unannounced relocation of last night's meeting deprived Roumiguiere of a third of his audience. The talk originally was scheduled for the Santa Venetia Middle School, but was shifted to the Civic Center to coincide with a weekly meeting of the Las Gallinas Valley master plan committee. Five residents of Santa Venetia and the San Pedro Peninsula waited half an hour at the school, then went home unaware of the meeting change.

Vote Percentage Is Low Despite Record Number

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Final voter turnout figures show a record 8.6 million Californians cast ballots in the November election but the state's voting percentage was the lowest since 1948.

In reporting the official statistics Wednesday, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said the unusually low 82.1 per cent voter turnout was caused primarily by "a definite apathy on the part of voters toward the presidential election."

He said the record number of Californians voting was due to the record 10.4 million registration, almost two million more than were eligible to vote in the 1968 presidential election.

Registration was boosted by the lowering of the voting age to 18 and permitting people to register until 30 days before the election instead of 54 days, Brown said.

Sanitary Board Decides To Reapir Leaky Sewers

The Corte Madera Sanitary Commission has decided to spend up to $16,000 to reapir leaky sewers on Granada Drive and the Marin estates area after repeated complaints from the Ross Valley Sanitary District about increased wet weather flow from Corte Madera.

According to Town Public Works Director Arthur N. Morrison, the commission voted Tuesday night to spend an initial $4,000 in sealing sewer joints beneath Granada Drive.

If the work appears successful after the next rainstorm, said Morrison, similar repairs will be done in the Marin Estates area at an estimated cost of $12,000.

Corte Madera's sewage is treated by the Ross Valley District at its San Quentin peninsula plant under a contract. In recent months Corte Madera's wet weather flow has been double that permitted, the Ross Valley district has charged.

Morrison said the problem is caused by infiltration from rain and ground water. Preliminary tests had shown that Granada Drive and Marin Estates are included in problem areas.

The commission — which is in fact the Corte Madera Town council — also authorized Morrison to get bids for a chlorinator to be installed in its own system.

Morrison said the commission added the proviso that the Corte Madera District won't pay for any pre-chlorination apparatus that might later be installed at the Ross Valley plant.

Hitler's Parade Car To Go On Auction Block

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Adolph Hitler's $2 million parade car will be auctioned Jan. 6 at a sale here.

The German dictator's Mercedes-Benz model 770-K, owned by Tom Barrett of nearby Paradise Valley, will be one of 50 classic vehicles sold. Included will be the staff car used by German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, "The Desert Fox."

Hitler's car was built under his special supervision in Stuttgart, Germany, costing $2 million for engineering and $60,000 for materials. It is armor-plated and has two-inch thick bullet-proof windows.

The car was capable of speeds to 150 miles per hour. It has a 56-gallon gas tank and gets 3 to 4 miles to the gallon. Hitler had raised a platform built into the car to make him appear taller to parade audiences.

LEAD-FREE GOALS — William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, briefs newsmen on a proposed gradual ban on leaded gasoline. His remarks yesterday were greeted by a lawsuit and congressional criticism. (UPI Telephoto)

Agency's Goal: Lead-Free Fuel At Every Gas Station By 1978

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government has proposed a gradual ban on leaded gasoline that would make lead-free fuel available at every filling station by mid-1974 and in every pump by 1978.

The announcement Wednesday by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was greeted by a lawsuit and congressional criticism.

EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus told newsmen he first proposed the action a year ago, but ran into opposition from other government officials about whether automobile exhaust fumes are the cause for increases in the level of lead in American's blood.

The double-barreled plan proposed by Ruckelshaus would require:

—That at least one grade of gas at every station contain no more than one-20th of a gram of lead per gallon by July 1, 1974. On the average, gasoline has 2.34 grams of lead per gallon, Ruckelshaus said.

—That the leaded grades of gasoline be reduced in lead content starting in 1975, and be virtually lead-free by Jan. 1, 1978.

Ruckelshaus said all interested groups would have 60 days to comment on the proposals before the final regulations would go into effect.

The cost to consumers of gradually shifting to unleaded gas would be about a penny a gallon, he estimated.

At the same time Ruckelshaus was announcing the proposals, a coalition of environmental groups was filing suit in the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to force EPA to move faster.

David Schoenbrod, attorney for the 13 environmental groups, said the suit contended that gasoline could be made lead-free within two years at little additional cost.

"This thing has been dragging on for three years now," Schoenbrod said. "We want the court to force the EPA to put the regulations into effect in 30 days or so, and to clear lead out of gasoline quickly."

Detroit Shootout Takes Life Of One Policeman

DETROIT (UPI) —One plainclothes policeman was killed and another critically wounded Wednesday evening in a shooting linked to one earlier this month in which four officers—members of the same controversial undercover unit— were wounded.

Police named two men wanted in the earlier incident as suspects in Wednesday's shootout.

The shooting occurred on Detroit's Northwest Side in a neighborhood where they were investigating a tip involving a robbery and shooting suspect, police spokesmen said. They spotted their assailants lurking in a shadow between two homes.

Gunfire started as they approached the two men and the officers got off one shot themselves before falling, police said.

On Dec. 4, four STRESS officers were shot and wounded by gunmen believed to be riding shotgun for a narcotics runner. Two of the men charged in that shooting—John P. Boyd Jr., 23, and Haywood Brown, 18, both of Detroit—also were sought in the latest incident.

Killed Wednesday was patrolman Robert Bradford Jr., 25, a 4-1-2-year police veteran. He was the sixth policeman killed in Detroit this year and the second STRESS officer. Bradford's partner, patrolman Robert Dooley, 28, another 4½year veteran, was hospitalized in critical condition.

"The police department is using all available resources," said Mayor Roman S. Gribbs, "and its cool approach will ferret out the guilty and present the case to the courts."

STRESS has been involved in numerous controversies—some of which went to court—since it was formed nearly two years ago. One involved a shootout between STRESS officers and off-duty Wayne County sheriff's deputies in which one deputy was killed.

The other STRESS officer killed this year was shot while attempting to stop a bank holdup in early December. He was off duty at the time.

Actress-Dancer Seeks Divorce

The Champions, both 53, married in Los Angeles in 1947, and have two children, Gregg, 16, and Blake, 11.

Mrs. Champion said irreconcilable differences brought their marriage to an end last Aug. 5.

Orange Soil From Moon Looks Less Bright Now

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — The first scientist to land on the moon studied the most fantastic collection of rocks gathered by Apollo astronauts Wednesday and said the orange soil did not look as bright as it did when he kicked it around on the moon.

"It doesn't look the same," Apollo 17 astronaut Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt said. "The only real orange was the stuff I kicked up."

Schmitt and fellow moonwalker Eugene A. Cernan were taking samples around Shorty Crater during the second lunar excursion when Schmitt, a geologist and the first scientist to fly to the moon, kicked the orange soil from just below the surface. The color was easily distinguishable on television and in pictures taken by the astronauts.

But the volcanic type soil, studied closely for the first time Wednesday, appeared to have a darker, duller tint. Geologists said it was probably because the orange soil was mixed with the other gray soil which Cernan and Schmitt scooped up.

"It is not the perfectly grey or nearly black we've seen before," said Dr. William R. Muehlberger, head of the Apollo 17 surface geology investigating team. "But, this is the most fantastic collection we've ever had."

Dr. Christopher C. Kraft, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the soil looked brown or tan. But Schmitt confirmed that the sample being examined contained the orange soil which indicates there was volcanic activity on the moon.

Board Hikes Water Use For Cotati

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Water Agency has tentatively agreed to allow Cotati to draw more water from the county system.

Agency engineer Gordon Miller advised the agency board to approve additional water sales to Cotati because additional wells on the Russian River have made more water available. A similar request by Cotati last year was rejected because of a potential water shortage.

The supervisors, sitting Tuesday as the water board, told Cotati City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen that they would expect the city to become a prime water purchaser once the system is fully expanded. Prime contractors such as Petaluma and the North Marin Water District are those which helped build the system and are guaranteed a certain supply of water. Secondary users must depend on surplus water being available.

The additional water hook-up on East Cotati Avenue was requested when test wells drilled in Cotati showed a high mineral content would make the water unsafe to drink.

widow who did not leave the century-old home on Delaware Street where she and Truman lived during 53 years of marriage.

But the greatest tribute to Truman was not the fleeting visits of past and present presidents. It was long lines of plain folk who stood waiting for hours Wednesday and today to file by his bier.

From the time the doors opened at 3 p.m. Wednesday for the public viewing, thousands passed the flag-draped coffin, some solemn, some stopping to pray silently, men in uniform saluting sharply.

Eight pallbearers carried the casket into the Truman Library lobby. The casket was sealed permanently Tuesday, a few hours after Truman's battle against failing heart, kidneys and lungs ended.

Mrs. Truman, who made daily trips to Research Hospital during her husband's last three weeks, stayed at home and greeted Nixon and Johnson Wednesday. But as the cortege passed by the Truman home, a 17-room Victorian mansion built more than 100 years ago, she pulled open a single window shade and watched the casket of her husband pass.

President Nixon invited Mrs. Truman, the Truman's only daughter Margaret Daniel, and Mrs. Daniel's family to stay in the Blair House for the Jan. 5 services at Washington's National Cathedral. The Trumans lived for a time in the Blair House while the White house was being remodeled in 1950.

Truman, who began his political career as a county commissioner in Kansas City during the 1920s and was elected to the Senate in 1934, became president April 12, 1945, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt daied.

Truman won re-election in 1948, defeating Thomas E. Dewey in what most historians call the biggest political upset in the nation's history.

As president, Truman gave the order to drop the atomic bomb on Japan, ending World War II, sent U.S. troops to Korea in a "peace keeping" mission, ordered the Berlin airlift to overcome Russia's blockade of the isolated city, created the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and established the "Truman Doctrine" to limit Russian expansion in Europe.

today with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the American commander in Vietnam, presumably to discuss the U.S. bombing operations against North Vietnam.

Tin Song, the daily newspaper closest to Thieu, said that Thieu, Bunker and Weyand met "amid rumors that the U.S. will stop bombing areas above the 20th Parallel in the next few days in order to resume the talks in Paris."

The newspaper, quoting a "reliable source," said that "the meeting took place after the Communists in Paris demanded that the bombing above the 20th Parallel be stopped and the talks resumed."

The Swedish Foreign Ministry in Stockholm reported that U.S. warplanes carried out their heaviest daylight bombings to date against Hanoi at noon today. It said B52s and fighter-bombers took part but gave no results of the raid.

The U.S. Command in its weekly casualty report reflecting losses in the bombings of the Hanoi-Haiphong area said seven Americans were killed last week in Indochina, including four fliers in Laos. It reported 29 wounded and 73 missing. In addition, the command said today at least six more fliers were missing in the loss of a B52 over Hanoi.

Marin's Seventh Rabies Case Found In Skunk

Marin County's seventh case of animal rabies for the year has been diagnosed in a skunk found near Fawn Drive in Sleepy Hollow, county health officer Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht reported today.

She said the skunk got into a pen containing two dogs on Saturday, and one of the dogs killed the intruder. County laboratory technicians reported that tests showed the skunk to be "very rabid," Dr. Albrecht said.

Both the dogs had current rabies vaccinations, and were ordered quarantined for 30 days. Dr. Albrecht noted that had the dogs lacked vaccinations, they would have had to be either destroyed or quarantined for six months

Cotati Yule Committee Is Formed

Hoping to avoid future controversy over Christmas displays, the Cotati Parks and Recreation Commission named a committee last night to plan decorations for 1973.

Commission Chairman Lorraine Leivas said the group hopes to avoid the hard feelings created this year when residents split in opinion on a plastic Noel sign built in Plaza Park.

Mayor Annette Lombardi and Councilman Stephen Laughlin drew strong criticism from long-time residents when they removed the sign to the Cotati fire station lawn.

Mrs. Leivas said Janet Nelson, a lifelong resident of Cotati, was named to head the 1973 Christmas Decoration Committee. Committee plans will be presented to the commission and passed on to the city council for approval.

In other business, the commission appointed Norma Fassio to head a committee to plan the dedication of the new bandstand in Plaza Park. The ceremony is scheduled for early spring.

Investigation Of Burglary Is Continuing

No charge has been filed against a 32-year-old Novato man arrested on Christmas Day on suspicion of burglary, but a deputy district attorney said yesterday that investigation is continuing.

The deputy, Jerry R. Herman, said he didn't have enough evidence to prosecute Freddy Morris Sullins on a charge of burglarizing the Sub Hut in San Rafael.

However, he said, an effort is being made to match a screwdriver Sullins carried to pry marks on vending machines at the establishment.

San Rafael police arrested Sullins at 2 a.m. after a burglar, who looted a coin box in a cigarette machine, touched off the burglar alarm.

Sullins was released Tuesday because the district attorney declined to charge him.

Texan Arrested In Drugs Case

Miss Kingsbury was arrested at the Shoreline Drugstore, 205 Flamingo Road, at 12:20 p.m. after the druggist became suspicious of the signature on a prescription and called deputies, according to the sheriff's report.

Equipment Stolen

A HOLIDAY TRAGEDY

The front and driver's seat of this bus is an unrecognizable tangle of metal. The bus collided with a loaded cattle truck on a narrow bridge in eastern New Mexico Tuesday. At least 19 members of a group of young people bound for a church-sponsored retreat were killed. The accident occurred near Fort Sumner, N.M.

Magee Trial Speedup Is Ordered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge has ordered attorneys to speed up the trial of Ruchell Magee, who faces murder-kidnap charges in the 1970 Marin County courtroom escape attempt in which a judge was killed.

Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin told lawyers for both sides Wednesday that they "have been repetitious and unduly time-consuming."

Colvin observed that the attorneys have been questioning prospective jurors for a month and asked that each side limit itself to 20 minutes in questioning each prospective juror.

"If they do not proceed expeditiously, the court will lay down further guidelines," he said.

Magee is charged in the shotgun death of Judge Harold J. Haley, 65, who was killed after he, three women jurors and an assistant district attorney were kidnaped in an escape attempt by prisoners who had been testifying in his courtroom.

Chlorine Contract To Georgia Pacific Corp.

Georgia Pacific Corp. of Richmond, lowest of three bidders, was awarded a contract to supply chlorine during next year to the Novato Sanitary District.

The contract, paying $124.95 per ton, passed by a 4-0 vote Tuesday night with Commissioner Thomas D. Hardcastle absent, according to Bill L. Bayles, assistant district engineer.

The same firm had the contract last year at $119.80 per ton, so the cost has gone up almost 5 per cent, Bayles said.

The board ratified the appointment of Shirley Furno as administrative secretary. She has worked for the district since Sept. 26.

It set 6 p.m. Jan. 8 and 22 at the North Marin County Water District office for its meetings next month.

Pistol Case To Superior Court

A 28-year-old San Rafael man arrested at his home during a search for drugs has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of being a felon in possession of a pistol.

Johnson was arrested in his fortified home at 1 a.m. Dec. 12 after a state drug agent and a Marin inspector with a search warrant made a frustrated search for drugs.

Arresting officers said Johnson was flushing a toilet when they entered his house, protected by bars on doors and windows.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's new prime minister, Kakuei Tanaka, has become a best-selling author on his book, "The Revamping of the Japanese Islands." It outlines his plans for the relocation of highly centralized industrial complexes and population centres.

Suit Is Filed In Loss Of Cow

A Petaluma Dairy has filed a $25,000 lawsuit against the state and the Cotati Veterinary Hospital for the loss of a registered Holstein cow.

The suit filed by Sleepy Hollow Dairy, 7689 Lakeville Highway, through attorney Max Mikelsen of Petaluma, charges that Frank A. Mongini of the veterinary hospital incorrectly told the dairymen to destroy the cow because it had a contagious disease.

The suit claims the animal was destroyed March 27 and was later found not to be infected. Also named in the suit was C. B. Christensen of the California Department of Agriculture Livestock and Poultry Laboratory, where tests were made and Dr. Frederick Groverman, a partner of Mongini's.

Garage Looted

Four fire extinguishers valued at $160 were taken from a garage area of the Park Tower Apartments, 108 Professional Center Parkway, San Rafael, on Monday or Tuesday, police reported today.

Bearded Men Sought In Two Sex Offenses

San Rafael police today were looking for two bearded men — one fat, the other thin — in connection with sex offenses involving two 14-year-old San Rafael girls and a 30-year-old San Francisco woman over the past two days.

The two girls told police they were hitchhiking near Las Gallinas Avenue and Lucas Valley Road at about 2:50 p.m. Tuesday and were picked up by a chubby man with a full beard and mustache and wearing greasy grey trousers and a pin striped shirt. The man exposed himself and offered the girls $2 apiece to fondle him, whereupon they jumped out of the vehicle on Lincoln Avenue, police said.

The San Francisco woman said she was accosted by a slender man with a full beard wearing a dark coat shortly after she left work at about 7 p.m. yesterday at the Northgate shopping center. The man jumped in her car, pulled her onto his lap and drove to a country road where he threw her to the ground and fondled her, police said. The man burst into tears when the woman began talking about religion, and drove her to a Terra Linda service station, according to police.

Cover For Hillsides Suggested

Planting trees on the naked, scarred hillsides of Corte Madera east of Highway 101 could be the most significant improvement in the town's appearance, Mayor Holmes S. (Pete) Norville suggested to the town's park and recreation commission last night.

Commission secretary Nancy Urbani said the mayor asked commissioners, in a memo, to find out the cost of digging pockets in the rock and placing soil to support trees.

Mrs. Urbani said the commissioners liked the idea too, commenting that much of the rock faces are held in place only by tufts of grass, wtih constant danger of rock falls. An experimental program might be begun, they thought, with annual plantings thereafter.

A subcommittee of three members — Juliette Kraeger, William M. Ford and chairman Robert W. Riboli — was appointed to meet Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to work on the project.

Case Goes To Superior Court

A Fairfax man, charged with forcing a 9-year-old girl to copulate orally with him, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on the felony count.

Municipal Court Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered Frank Clifford Seewester, 22, to appear Jan. 10 after hearing the evidence against him.

San Anselmo police arrested him Nov. 18 after linking him to the girl's story by a license number supplied by a witness.

Police said the young girl was on her way home from school Nov. 14 when she was forced into a car at knifepoint and ordered to commit the sex act.

An Anniversary

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It was 85 years ago that Alexander Graham Bell's claim to invention of the telephone was settled following two years of hearings before the U.S. Patent Office. This occurred nine years after Bell, a resident of Salem, Mass., received Patent number 174,465 in 1876 on what then was called "telegraphy."

Parkinson's Law At Work Again

Representatives of states, counties and cities pleaded with the federal government to enenact revenue-sharing to give them back some of the money that goes to Washington. The program was enacted, and the first checks have now gone out.

Of course, the federal government doesn't have any revenue to share — except borrowed revenue. It is $250 billion in the red, so any money it distributes has to be borrowed, then collected from the taxpayers — with interest. But anyhow, the checks are arriving.

SO WHAT HAPPENS? Are the states, counties and cities using the money to reduce the local taxes that they told Washington were becoming too heavy for their citizens to bear? Are they using them to save essential services for which they couldn't pay?

Well, not always, it seems. Somehow the state, county and city budgets took care of those essential services (plus some others) — no matter how big that made the tax bite.

So we have Parkinson's Law at work: Government expenditures will rise to meet revenues. And we have city and county officials looking for ways to spend the "windfall" from Uncle Sam — the money that they said they couldn't do without.

FOR EXAMPLE, Marin County received $550,054 as its first six-month installment of the new largesse. And before the check even arrived, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste was suggesting to the Marin County Youth Commission that the money might be used to buy 300 acres north of Novato for a motorcycle range. Later, he raised the ante to 600 acres.

Mill Valley got $37,051, while Novato received $63,489. Both cities have called on city department heads to suggest ways to spend the money. One gets you 10 there are plenty of suggestions — and not all essential services.

Belvedere and Ross, Marin's two smallest cities, have use of their federal revenue more-or-less planned. Belvedere, which got $4,812 in the first installment, is considering putting it toward a needed storm drain project. Ross, which received $5,077, has pledged $1,500 to the town recreation program and plans to use he rest — or most of it — to improve the fire alarm system. Belvedere and Ross seem to be thinking of essential services.

OVER IN San Francisco, Mayor Joseph Alioto (who seldom is at a loss as to how to spend money) called for suggestions on what the city-county should do with some $26 million in revenue sharing. His call brought a response from the Downtown Association that three-fourths of it should be put in the general fund to reduce the property tax and the rest spent for police, street improvements, and other essentials.

We like that idea. But one gets you 10. . .

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Officials Face No Penalty For Withholding Records

By EARL G. WATERS

The tendency of those in public office to "protect" their image by withholding from public view such records as they choose is constant and ever-present.

On the federal level, the bureaucrats take recourse in a system of "classification" of documents for "security" reasons. The instances where such treatment of records has been made with no justification of national security are widespread.

On the state and local levels, the opportunity for such flimsy refuge is not present. Nevertheless the frequency of incidents wherein citizens experience difficulty inspecting records of public agencies makes it crystal clear that bureaucrats are not burdened with any necessity to justify capricious denials of access to records.

BUT IF A DEMOCRACY is to work, the public must have the ability to keep informed. For public business is the public's business. Citizens of a self-governing society must have the legal right to examine and investigate the conduct of its affairs. Without that the citizens of a democracy have only changed kings.

A real newspaperman is a soldier of freedom. The freedom which he wants is not a privilege for reporters but the right of all men to get information and share opinions.

Newsmen are knowledgeable and experienced in getting information. They are familiar with the records maintained by the various public agencies and the laws governing those records.

So when a reporter is denied or encounters difficulties in viewing public records, it is an easy leap to imagine what barriers must be overcome by the citizen who does not have the implied "power" of the press.

This, of course, is what incenses the reporter. He is confident he will achieve his objective. But he thinks of the sometimes-impossible position in which a citizen is placed who, unsure of the law, seeks to exercise his right to inspect public records.

CALIFORNIA'S LAWS have been written to guarantee the right of all citizens to inspect public records. There is no special privilege for newspapermen. It is just the nature of a newsman's work, to keep the public fully informed, that cuases him to be in the forefront in controversies involving accessibility of records.

And despite the continuing efforts of legislators, such as the late Ralph Brown and now Assemblyman William Bagley and Sen. Milton Marks, to strengthen these laws and keep them up to date, denials or attempts to withhold public records occur regularly.

This makes it obvious that teeth are lacking in the present laws. When one is denied access to public records, he must seek redress through the courts at his own expense.

The only penalty imposed upon the public official whose flouting of the law has caused the trouble is the necessity of doing that which he was obligated to do without a court order, that of producing the record.

IN ALL FAIRNESS there should be relief for the citizen. His legal expense should be reimbursed. He should be awarded triple damages to compensate him for the time and trouble.

But even that may not deter the determined bureaucrat who knows that his legal expenses and other costs will be borne by the public agency he serves.

The real insurance against willful denials of public records would be a penalty for such malfeasance, misfeasance or nonfeasance upon the public officer committing the act.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

The country finally has achieved a zero population growth rate. Just in time to save us old guys from being outvoted by 18-year-olds.

The population explosion has fizzled out with just 2.1 children per family. What puzzles us is that one-tenth of a child.

Does this mean we'll have to wait 65 years before there's a decrease in the number of citizens drawing Social Security benefits?

Options For Future In Population Control

Your Dec. 21 editorial, "In Static Society . . .", presents a future with compulsory birth control and "a strange nomadic population outside the controls" due to rigid planning.

The future which faces our children or grandchildren largely will be determined by our attitudes and actions now. We as citizens, parents and prospective parents collectively are making this choice for our descendants. In addition to the sort of future which you outlined, we have the following options:

(1) Successful voluntary birth control, higher living standards and the solution or amelioration of many major problems, with no loss of freedom.

(2) Successful compulsory birth control with the preceding advantages, except for restrictions on the freedom to breed.

(3) Unsuccessful birth control, leading to famine and disease and to increased regimentation followed by a breakdown of civilization.

Full Candidate Field For School Board Seen

With the San Anselmo Elemetary School District getting into gear for the April, 1973, trustee election, I should react to an editorial of last October in which you chided San Anselmans for a lack of interest in school affairs because only one person filed for a vacancy occurring at that time.

Please be advised that at least four persons were considering to run for that seat but the prospect of doing it again five months later was just too much. Professor Morgan had the courage and was seated without opposition.

For April, I predict between five and eight candidates for three seats. The issues will range from the board's alleged efforts to stifle public participation during board meetings to preoccupation with non-educational matters, lack of fiscal responsibility, disregard for teachers, and the role of the superintendent.

Tax Land Rather Than Improvements

The recent call by Anne Ellinwood, former chairman of CCPC, for a blue ribbon committee to develop ways of reducing land costs, serves to point out how important this factor is both in the high cost of housing and the problems of implementing a county-wide master plan.

One of the most effective ways of reaching this and other goals would be a constitutional change allowing a higher tax rate on the land other than on the improvements. This is now being done in Pennsylvania where several cities have taken advantage of this, as well as in Hawaii. It is an effective tool in slowing the spiraling cost of land or actually reducing land costs, since, unlike all other land taxes, it cannot be passed on to the consumer. Thus, when it is coupled with lower improvement taxes, the result is a significant lowering in the average homeowners' property taxes, lowering the costs of land, and an automatic stimulus in the refurbishing or replacement of old units. The latter effect is often the most important since it prevents the development of slums and often the need for "redevelopment."

Miss Ellinwood is to be complimented on focusing attention to this problem since obviously subsidized housing simply increases everyone's costs and does not solve the problem.

Heritage Group Grateful For City Assistance

Marin Heritage (formerly the San Rafael Historic Preservation Committee) would like to publicly thank the mayor and city council of San Rafael for their generosity and cooperation as demonstrated in their decision to help in the study of the feasibility of purchase and preservation of the Dollar Estate. Our plans for the Dollar Estate as a community cultural center are admittedly ambitious, but similar projects have worked in other areas and we applaud the council for giving us the opportunity to find out if it can work here.

We look forward to the challenge of further developing a positive and economically workable plan for adaptive use of the estate that would not only preserve the historic site but also establish an exciting community complex for the people of San Rafael.

Giacomini Breaks Campaign Promise

It would appear that Mr. Giacomini is exercising his prerogative as a politician by failing to keep his campaign promises. His promise to keep his office open and to become a "full-time" supervisor has fallen by the wayside. His excuse being that the job doesn't pay enough. Didn't he know what the job paid when he ran for office? Or is this the first step in bulldozing a pay raise down the taxpayers throats?

Now that he has broken the first promise, do the other promises get broken as well? Aren't they easier to break after the first one? What do you say Mr. Giacomini? Are you speaking with a forked tongue? Are you going to make us regret we elected you?

Dog Control Law Enforcement Unfair

May I bring the following to your attention:

Once in two years my dog has accidentally been out of our yard. He was cited "at large" by the Humane Society Patrol. $160 later — for 300 feet of 5-foot fence — he is out again. My neighbor saw him and secured him in our yard while two Humane Society trucks followed close behind. The drivers saw our dog in our yard, came up to our home and wrote us a citation, "at large." What is the solution to unfair dog law enforcement? Why are gentle, licensed dogs harassed — because they are easy to apprehend, because they wag their tail and wander home where their owner is nabbed with a $15 "at large" ticket!

Fairfax gives the Humane Society over $4,000 every year as an answer to keeping the streets of Fairfax free from packs of unlicensed, roaming, potentially dangerous dogs. Well folks, the dangerous, roaming unlicensed dogs are still roaming because they are not caught!

At present, enforcement of our dog laws mean that cared for dogs who occasionally and accidently get out of their yards are cited and their owners, like me, are furious. I'm mad because dog law enforcement is harassing owners of gentle family pets while packs of half-wild animals run free because they're harder to catch!

Acupuncture One Benefit From Opening To China

WASHINGTON — One of the great events of 1972, with consequences far into the future, was the opening to China. Out of that opening benefits are only just beginning to flow. Some, such as the sale of American planes, are obvious. With a continuing exchange we could in the long run learn much from the practice and philosophy of an ancient people.

The National Institutes of Health are about to authorize a serious study of the pros and cons of acupuncture, the medical practice used throughout China for many centuries. Those at NIH who have taken a preliminary look are convinced that acupuncture, the use of needles as nerve blocks, deserves thorough and impartial examination since it could become an asset in the American medicine chest.

As is customary, NIH will commission outside specialists to do the research and provide the answers. Proposals now being reviewed have already come from eight different groups. Reports to NIH tell of sufferers from the extreme pain of advanced arthritis given relief by acupuncture. Visitors to China during the year now ending have brought back reports of the seemingly miraculous results of acupuncture. American physicians have observed abdominal operations in which acupuncturists provided the only anaesthic. The patients were not only conscious but apparently in good humor, joking and laughing with the surgeon as the operation proceeded.

THE CHINESE are said to be concerned lest acupuncture be seized on in this country as a fad and exploited with harm to all concerned.

Acupuncture is only one part of the approach to medicine in China. Herbs used in accord with formulas centuries old have an equally important place. The whole is wrapped up in a philosophical concept of the conflict between the forces of darkness and evil and the forces of light and goodness. The ying and the yang.

In the two most populous states, California and New York, acupuncture has stirred controversy. In New York City an acupuncture clinic was headed by an internist, a licensed M.D., who turned his patients over to four acupuncturists. The fees were said to be high.

The clinic was closed because of New York State's licensing requirements. Many letters of protest to the White House and NIH followed this action. In the city's Chinatown the folk practice of acupuncture has long been winked at. Inspectors who put on old clothes would drop in for a treatment to make sure the needles were sterile. Only a licensed physician may now practice acupuncture in the state and, since few, if any, physicians are trained for a procedure more complex than it appears, the treatment is all but precluded. As standardized following its introduction into Russia from China, there are between 800 and 1,000 points of insertion classified as primary, secondary and tertiary.

CALIFORNIA HAS ruled that acupuncture is a "medical treatment." It may be performed under a number of conditions including in a medical school or a hospital and under the supervision of a licensed physician. Several Oriental practitioners in Los Angeles are said to have had near-miraculous results with arthritis and seemingly incurable headaches.

Handled in an orderly way and cutting through the jealous prerogatives of the medical profession and the complexities of state licensing laws, this could be a valuable addition to American medicine. It is but one element of the wealth of learning that can come from the opening to China.

Despite all the upheavals of war and civil war, much of the classical past remains. It is embedded in a civilization older than any other on earth. Surely we are now mature enough to show that we can learn from a people so long closed away.

Nixon Takes Desperate Gamble With Renewed Bombing Attacks

Getting the United States out of the Vietnam War is proving to be a more difficult and more costly process than President Nixon and his advisers had any idea when they moved into the White Huse nearly four years ago. The final (we hope) phase is proving to be particularly painful.

The United States has 450 of the big B-52 bombers in its inventory of ready and available weapons. It lost eight in the first four days of the new bombing campaign, which Mr. Nixon launched when he failed to get the terms he watned out of the last round of negotiations in Paris. That rate of loss would not be acceptable for very long. For two or three weeks, yes. For 10 weeks or more, no.

The situation in the White House war room inevitably recalls the one in the London and Berlin war rooms at the height of the German submarine offensive in early World War II. Who could stand the ship losses longer —British or Germans? And again, there was the crucial moment in the German war room at the peak of the German air attack on London — the "Battle of Britain." How many more bombers could the German Luftwaffe afford to lose? The Germans called it off; probably only a day before the Roayl Air Force would have been exhausted.

On the ground there is pain, and damage. The targets appear to include the offices of government and the top people in government. All the damage is being done that can be done. It is the unleashing on Hanoi of what in World War I was called "schrecklichkeit" (terror) when indulged in by the Germans at British, French, and Belgian expense.

But the bombers no longer roam the skies over North Vietnam in safety. The crews of the SAM-2 missiles down below have improved their technique since the beginning of the big American involvement back in 1965. They have been scoring a high rate of hits. And the price for Mr. Nixon of this return to force only begins with the loss of big bombers and their crews.

Add to the price the lost hope for an end to the fighting by Christmas. And the disappointment to the families of the American prisoners who expected them home by Christmas. Add the possibility that some of those prisoners were the victims of American bombs on Hanoi. Add the disapproval of American friends and allies overseas. Add even the break in the upward climb of the American stock market. The price is high.

WHAT DOES MR. NIXON hope to get at that price?

He is hoping to buy better prospects for the survival of a non-Communist government in Saigon. The argument for the resort to the bombing is that Hanoi was trying to take advantage of the desire in the United States for peace by Christmas. The danger in the polcy is that Mr. Nixon will never get his prisoners back unless or until he does sign a formal peace agreement with Hanoi.

It is a footnote to the above that Henry Cabot Lodge, long the American ambassador in Saigon, has often said he doesn't think there will ever be a formal, signed peace agreement.

Perhaps this application of American bombs to the men in Hanoi will have its intended effect. Perhaps they will be impressed by Mr. Nixon's willingness to use force to get his way in Vietnam.

But bombs from the air and tanks in the streets are different. The bombers go away. The tanks stay. We will now learn whether bombing is as effective as tanks for this sort of operation by a great power.

HISTORY SINCE World War II provides more failures than successes on the list of efforts of this kind to use military power to coerce small countires. The French applied their military power (weapons mostly by courtesy of Washington) to Vietnam and Algeria, and failed. The British tried it against Egypt, and failed. (But that was largely due to American diplomatic pressure). The Russians tried brandishing weapons (not quite using them) against Yugoslavia. That failed.

Mr. Nixon is a man who calculates his chances carefully before he makes a move of this kind. We assume that he sat down and added up the pluses and minuses on one of his big pads of lined yellow paper before he gave the order to unleash the bombers. He must think that Hanoi is paying a higher price than he is, and that it will give in before he has to call the bombers home.

There, of course, is one of the high stakes in the battle of Hanoi. Mr. Nixon's own credibility as a leader is on the line. Men who undertake a venture of this kind and win, continue in office. Anthony Eden, now Lord Avon, is a warning of what happens to those who fail. They lose credibility as leaders.

Nowadays, Everybody Gets Angry About The Weather

WASHINGTON — Something is happening to the weather in this country and it's causing tremendous anxiety amongst the people. In the days before television, nobody really cared that much about weather. You got up in the morning and looked out the window. If it was raining, you put on rubbers; if it was snowing, you put on boots. If it was a lousy day, you always figured that tomorrow the sun would shine.

But now, thanks to the miracle of television, people worry about the weather all the time. We are told not only what weather to expect in our neck of the woods, but also what's happening in Billings, Mont., and Pitchfork, Newfoundland.

This not only causes traumas in most American households, it also polarizes the country.

FOR EXAMPLE, the other night a group of friends were watching the weather on the local news. The jolly newscaster was standing in front of a map of the North American continent chuckling as he informed us that we could expect rain, sleet and fog for the next 48 hours. Had he let it go at that, nobody would have been too upset, but he decided to go into a long explanation about what caused it.

Using his pointer he said, "as you can see, there is mass of cold air coming in from Canada . . .

"Canada always keeps sending us cold masses of air," my friend Harry Dalinsky said. "If Nixon has any guts he'll tell them to knock it off or else."

"Or else what?" Collins Bird asked.

"We'll send them masses of cold air that will make their masses of cold air look like a trade wind," Dalinsky said.

"I wouldn't fool with Canada when it comes to cold air masses," Bird said. "They have a cold air superiority over us of five to one."

"This cold air mass from Canada is expected to meet with this warm air mass coming up from the South, which will cause the rain, sleet and fog that will arrive in our area tomorrow morning."

"There is your problem," said Carey Winston. "It isn't cold air coming from Canada that is causing the trouble, it's the warm air from the South. They shouldn't allow the South to send up any warm air at the same time Canada is sending down cold air."

"Nixon isn't going to make the South stop sending up warm air, not after what they did for him during the election," Jim Symington said.

"He has always maintained," Dalinsky agreed, "that the exporting of warm air should be left to the individual states."

THE WEATHERMAN was still talking away. "The Midwest can expect heavy snow which is blowing in from the Rockies."

"I'll bet you the people in the Midwest are really mad at the Rockies," Collins Bird said.

"They shouldn't have settled so near the Rockies," Carey Winston said. "I have no sympathy for them."

"Why do you say that?" I asked.

"Because the Midwest sends us all their bad weather. They get furious because they have all that snow dumped on them, so they want to dump it on someone else," Winston replied. "I'll start feeling sorry for people who live in the Middle West when they stop dropping their snow on us."

"They'll probably get a tax depletion allowance for them," Symington said.

"Now," said the weatherman, "let's look at our satellite map of the United States. As you can see, there is a cloud cover over the entire United States except for Key Biscayne, Fla., where the President is spending his holidays."

My wife said, "It figures."

Nixon Again Leads Most Admired Man

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — president Richard M. Nixon, for the fourth consecutive year, is the man Americans most admire in the world today, followed by the Rev. Billy Graham and Harry S Truman, the Gallup Poll indicated Wednesday.

The poll was conducted Dec. 8-11 and included interviews with 1,008 persons 18 or older at 300 selected localities across the nation.

Nixon, landslide winner in the Nov. 7 presidential election, held a wider margin over the field this year than he did in the past three, the survey said. Graham also was No. 2 for the fourth straight year.

Truman, who died Tuesday, figured prominently in the poll's "Most Admired Man" list since its inception in 1946. He placed among the top 10 in 22 out of a total of 27 surveys, heading the list in 1948 and 1949.

In fifth place was Sen. Edward Kennedy, followed by Spiro Agnew and Pope Paul VI.

Two other newcomers to the list were George McGovern, ninth, and Willy Brandt, 10th.

Japan Faces 1973 Wallowing In Money

By ROBERT CRABBE

Wallowing in money, prosperous beyond their wildest drams, the Japanese must somehow find a way to make their success acceptable to the rest of the world.

Long gone are the dark days when Japan crept out of World War II 27 years ago almost bankrupt, her cities and factories bombed to rubble.

In 1972, the economic colossus built on the ashes of Hiroshima and Tokyo turned out 6.2 million motor vehicles, and about 95 million tons of steel.

With a Gross National Product (GNP) of $242.3 billion in 1971, Japan trailed only the United States and the Soviet Union. She had left every other Asian country far behind.

Gone also were the days when the Japanese were called mere copyists and makers of cheap merchandise.

Her excellent cameras, desk calculators and TV sets flowed into the markets of Europe and America like a flood. Japan made more than $8 billion in trade with foreign countries in 1972, almost half of it with the United States.

There were angry complaints. American businessmen charged Japan had easy access to markets in the United States, and jiggered the rules to restrict entry of American products into Japan.

Asian trade partners like Thailand, South Korea and Taiwan charged that Japan's huge trade surpluses were bleeding them white.

By autumn of 1972, Thai students were staging boycotts against Japanese goods. America and the European Common Market were threatening legislation and quotas to limit Japan's share of the market.

The United States also was threatening to put on pressure for another revaluation of Japan's currency, the yen, whose price was increased by 16.67 per cent in December, 1971.

In foreign affairs outside the economic sphere Japan had surprisingly few problems.

President Nixon had rocked Japan's conservative government in 1971 by sending security adviser Dr. Henry Kissinger to China without consulting his Japanese allies.

During 1972, Japan adapted to Nixon's new Asian diplomacy with a speed that astonished official Washington. In January, Japan got in touch with North Korea, sending a member of parliament from the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) to Pyongyan to sign an unofficial trade agreement.

In February, two representatives of the Japanese Foreign Office were in Hanoi, to lay the groundwork for a post-war aid to North Vietnam.

In September, new Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka went to Peking with a muted apology for Japan's World War II invasion, and established diplomatic relations with China.

Japan today is something new in history. Never before has a country become an economic giant while remaining a military dwarf. She has no nuclear weapons, and only about 270,000 men under arms, to provide for defense of the country in conventional warfare only.

A no-war constitution drafted in 1947 by U.S. Gen. Douglas MacAarthur and his advisers is still in force. The government interprets it to mean that Japanese troops may not go abroad to peace keeping operations in Indochina or other countries rent by power struggles.

For nuclear defense, Japan is linked by a military security treaty to the United States. In return, she grants America the right to maintain military bases on Japanese soil.

Prominent Americans like outgoing Defense Secretary Melvin Laird sometimes confuse Japanese public opinion by demanding that Japan should "do more," without specifying what "more" meant.

Prime Minister Tanaka won a new mandate for himself and the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) at a general election Dec. 10.

The party has governed Japan almost continuously since World War II, with business-oriented policies on the home front and cooperation with the United States in foreign policy.

Tanaka in many ways symbolizes the incredible career of his country during the last 27 years. He started life as a poor farm boy in the snowy hills near the Japan Sea and was a common soldier in the old Japanese Imperial Army before World War II.

With no more than a sixth grade education behind him, he went into the construction business, became a millionaire, and won Japan's top political job in July.

The people call him "the computerized bulldozer" and they like him. Polls showed 60 per cent approval of his policies, far more than actually voted for his party.

As the year ended, Tanaka was pushing for wider entry of foreign goods into Japan to lower the trade balance and negotiating special advance purchases of uranium and passenger aircraft from the United States to meet American complaints.

However, many of these moves are fought by special interests in his own country. Among them are Japan's farmers, whose votes LDP desperately needed to stay in power.

Tanaka's declared goal is to ward off another yen revaluation. But most businessmen in Tokyo doubt he will succeed.

Keidanren, the elite club of Japan's top business leaders, forecast an economic growth rate of 10.3 per cent for 1973. Every able bodied Japanese who wants to work can get some kind of a job. "Help Wanted" signs are hanging out all over Tokyo.

The tiny apartments and houses in which most Japanese must live in a crowded country are stuffed with refrigerators, washing machines, color television, oil heaters and hi-fi sets.

The 1972 Tokyo stock market was one long bull stampede that could be compared only to the American market of the 1920s. The Dow-Jones index of the Tokyo market had crashed to 2,190 yen in August, 1971, after President Nixon floated the American dollar. But on Dec. 8, 1972, it stood at 4,862 yen and was soaring toward the 5,000 yen mark.

The only clouds on Japan's horizon forecast possible troubles in the long-term future — not right away.

Thoughtful leaders of LDP and the businessmen who pay its campaign bills worry over the growing tendency of Japan's city voters to support the Communist and Socialist parties. It has forced LDP into increasing reliance on the rural voter in an increasingly urban age. If it continues, it could threaten Japan's political stability by the end of the 1970s.

Age of Majority

In 33 states now, one is considered legally an adult at the age of 18 or 19. Many older youths thus can legally drink hard liquor, join the armed forces without parental permission, and be held responsible for their debts. For the first time, this age group is being plagued with salesmen offering everything from encyclopedias to motorcycles on the "buy now, pay later" plan. The only way that these new credit buyers can break a contract in these cases is to prove fraud. The Federal Trade Commission urges a vigorous program of consumer education for this group.

Internees Aided By A New Law

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Japanese-Americans interned in U.S. Government camps from Dec. 7, 1941, through Dec. 30, 1946, are eligible for Social Security wage benefits for the time of their confinement under terms of a new law.

John F. Richardson, regional Social Security commissioner, said Tuesday that the World War II internees may qualify for the credits if they reached the age of 18 during their confinement.

The wage credits give Social Security coverage for retirement, survivor, disability and medicare benefits. They also include possibly higher benefits for those already receiving Social Security payments.

The Curious Case Of The Two Wise Guys At A Bridge Table

"This hand I call the Curious Case of the Wise Guys in the Night," my friend George Boehm announced as he showed me the North and South hands of the diagram shown today. "You mean that the wise guys did nothing in the night?" I asked, recalling the famous dog in the Sherlock Holmes story, "That is what was so curious," Boehm agreed.

SOME YEARS AGO

"I played this hand some years ago against two of the wisest guys in New York," Boehm related. "They knew all the tricks, traps, snares and stratagems." (He named them, but the two gentlemen wouldn't relish seeing their names in print in this connection. Suffice it to say that his two opponents were crafty enough to satisfy anybody.)

"I played the queen of spades from dummy at the first trick, and East put up the king. I won with the ace of spades, and now I needed the diamonds. Right?"

NO DISAGREEMENT

There could be no disagreeing with this statement.

"I took the king of diamonds, and found the seven and six on the trick. I led a diamond toward dummy, and West played the eight." Boehm paused here.

"You wondered whether to play dummy's ace or jack," I murmured, glancing at Boehm out of the corner of one eye. Boehm kept his face expressionless.

SHOULD HIT

And then it hit me. "Of course," I agreed. "The Curious Case of the Wise Guys in the Night."

See if it hits you, too, before you read on.

THE STRATEGY

Boehm knew that East would have played 10 from 10-6 on the first diamond trick. East would be trying to look like a man who held the doubleton Q-10. And West would have played 10 from 10-8-7, trying to represent Q-10-7. But neither of the two wise guys had played the ten of diamonds.

There were only two possibilities: East had Q-10-6, in which case nothing could be done; or East had the singleton six. So Boehm finessed with dummy's nine of diamonds and made his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - Q 8
♥ - 8 7 4
♦ - A J 9 5 3
♣ - A 6 3.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Most experts would pass this borderline hand, on the theory that the doubleton queen of spades is not really worth two points in high cards and one point for a doubleton. The hand would be opened with one diamond if it consisted of two low spades with the diamonds headed by A-Q-J or the clubs by A-Q.

GAZER'S GUIDE

Mars, Venus Will Be Seen New Year's Day

By Dr. T.D. NICHOLSON
Director, the American Museum of Natural History, New York
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Monday — Look for the crescent moon at dawn this New Year's Day, and you will find Mars just above it and Venus well to its left. Venus, of course, is the brighter of the two planets. Don't confuse the reddish Mars with Antares, however, also red and the brightest star in Scorpius. Antares is located between Mars and Venus, below Mars and to the right of Venus.

Tuesday — The earth is at perihelion today, the point in its orbit where it approaches closest to the sun. By this morning, the crescent moon has moved to a position below and a little to the right of Venus. Mars is higher and well to the right of the moon. The two planets, the moon, and the star Antares should still comprise an interesting group to see in the half-hour or so after dawn breaks and before twilight brightens the sky too much.

Jan. 4 — An annular eclipse of the sun occurs today over the Southern Hemisphere. The moon, during this eclipse, is too far from earth and therefore too small to cover the sun completely. At mid-eclipse, a ring of the sun — called an annulus — remains visible even where the moon crosses centrally in front of the sun. The annular eclipse will be visible over only one land area, a narrow strip across southern South America.

A partial eclipse will be visible over most of South America and western Africa. This is the first of four eclipses this year, three solar and one lunar. Only the partial lunar eclipse of Jan. 10 will be visible over any significant part of North America.

Jan. 10 — Jupiter is in conjunction with the sun. The planet now enters the morning sky, but don't expect to see it as a morning star until mid-February.

Jan. 12 — Mars has moved into Scorpius this month, approaching Antares, its brightest star. The planet comes closest to the star this morning and begins moving away to the left.

Jan. 15 — After sundown tonight, you will find the waxing gibbous moon well up in the east. The object visible below and to its right is Saturn. If you follow the two across the sky during the night, you will clearly see the moon separate to the left (east) of the planet.

Jan. 16 — The moon is at perigee, nearest to earth this month.

Jan. 28 — The moon is at apogee, most distant from the earth this month. Mercury is at superior conjunction, in line with the sun and beyond it in our sky. The planet now becomes an evening star.

Jan. 30 — The moon again approaches Mars this month. You will find the planet above the rising crescent moon this morning.

Jan. 31 — Venus and Jupiter are in conjunction, but the two plantes, both in the morning sky, rise too late to be seen.

All month: Saturn is the only planet visible after sundown this month. In Taurus, just east of the Pleiades (Seven Sisters) and Aldebaran, Saturn rises before sunset and is well up in the east by nightfall. It sets in the west just about dawn. Jupiter is technically an evening star until the 10th, Mercury after the 28th, but neither one is in position for viewing during January. In the morning, before dawn, Saturn will be in the west and Mars will be rising with the stars of Scorpius in the southeast. Venus may be seen risig after Mars for about the first two weeks, but it will be rising too late during the last half of the month.

Foul Ball Victim Denied Damages

CINCINNATI (UPI) —An appeals court Tuesday told Mrs. Sharon Stradtner, hit in the face by a foul ball at a Cincinnati Reds baseball game two years ago she could not collect on her $50,000 suit against the club.

The First Ohio District Court of Appeals, in upholding a lower court ruling, said Mrs. Stradtner of Louisville, Ky., "voluntarily exposed herself to the risks incident to the game by taking a seat in the unscreened portion of the ball park."

New Controls On Hamburgers

SACRAMENTO (AP) — If a restaurant says it's hamburger, it had better be at least 90 per cent meat, under a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure by Assemblyman John Briggs, a Fullerton Republican, requires restaurants selling imitation hamburger — less than 90 per cent meat — to post a list of ingredients.

Briggs' bill, signed yesterday, allows a product to be advertised as hamburger if it contains not more than 10 per cent added protein and water. But it cannot contain binders or extenders such as cereals.

The bill is AB 1198.

$200 Taken From Tam Valley Store

Sneak thieves stole an estimated $200 from the Valley Hardware, 200 Shoreline Highway, Tamalpais Valley, according to a report Tuesday by deputies from the southern Marin sheriff's substation.

Investigators said the theft apparently took place Dec. 15. The money was in a bag left unattended in the office.

Consumer's Lot Improved Much In Past Few Years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backed by a growing body of laws and rules, the federal government took action in 1972 to protect the consumer in areas ranging from cosmetics to credit rating to cough syrup.

Not that the government has yet provided total protection for the average consumer. Many programs are barely under way and Congress again will wrestle with others, including minimum warranty standards and no-fault auto insurance.

But the consumer has come a long way in the eyes of the law since the passage in the 1960's of regulations governing truth-in-packaging, truth-in-lending, flammable fabrics, child protection and toy safety, and other legislation.

The 92nd Congress in its waning days passed the Consumer Product Safety Act, which President Nixon called "the most significant consumer-protection legislation passed by the 92nd Congress." It allows the government for the first time to set safety standards for all common household products.

Enforcement of this law may cut the toll of household accidents that now kill 30,000 Americans a year and permanently disable 110,000 others.

Senate critics filibustered to death another key bill to create an independent consumer protection agency that could intervene at all levels of government on behalf of aggrieved consumers.

That bill, plus no-fault auto insurance and a bill to take fine print out of warranties, will come up again in the new Congress. Prospects for all three are brighter this time.

At the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, Virginia Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, helped encourage two big automakers to set voluntary warranty standards. American Motors has issued a warranty that covers every part of a new vehicle except for tires for one year. Ford is providing a 90-day warranty for labor and parts on used cars at authorized garages.

In its most significant action of 1972, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) banned the use of hexachlorophene in cosmetics. This chemical is absorbed into the blood over a period of time and it is feared, may cause brain damage or even death.

The FDA also persuaded the cosmetics industry to voluntarily provide lists of manufacturers, products and the formulas used in them, and the industry's file of consumer complaints. The agency believes these lists will make it easier to remove from the market dangerous cosmetics, such as an eye shadow or skin lotion that is found to cause rash.

Mrs. Knauer already has persuaded several cosmetic firms to print the ingredients on the labels of their products — an important safeguard for persons with allergies.

The FDA also began a 10-year review of the 100,000 to 500,000 over-the-counter patent medicines. Expert panels were set up for such categories as coughs and colds, analgesics and sleep aids. The first report, on antacids, is expected early in 1973.

This project is a sequel to the FDA's 1962-72 review of all prescription drugs, an effort that led to the removal of 1,500 drugs from the market.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson's Senate monopoly subcommittee began hearings in December on over-the-counter drugs. One doctor acknowledged at the outset that hot chicken soup may be as effective as some highly advertised medicines in fighting colds.

In another action involving the drug and medicinal industry, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) started issuing complaints following its investigation of advertising by three major makers of analgesics. The FTC action calls for "corrective advertising" as well as affirmative disclosure if the analgesics contain caffein and aspirin.

The FTC's most significant 1972 actions for consumers came in the innovative area of corrective advertising. Earlier, it ordered the ITT Continental Baking Co., to spend 25 per cent of the firm's advertising budget for one year to correct ads about Profile Bread.

The FTC also obtained similar consent orders from Ocean Spray Cranberry Inc., to spend 25 per cent of its ad budget for corrective ads about a cranberry juice cocktail, and from Sugar Information, a trade association of refineries, for agreed-upon wording of its ads.

The FTC told 16 makers of cough and cold remedies and 12 manufacturers of television sets to furnish documentation for claims made in their advertising.

The FTC also began enforcing standards for carpets and rugs from legislation that grew out of a rest home fire in Ohio several years ago. The agency laid the groundwork for enforcement of flammability standards for children's sleepwear.

In other actions, the FTC issued: guidelines for private vocation and home study schools, use of the word "free" in advertising, and the decorative wall paneling and feather and down industries; complaints against door-to-door magazine salesmen and the nation's No. 1, 2 and 4 sellers of encyclopedias; and rules for posting the octane content on gasoline pumps at service stations.

The FDA, in effect, is removing all lead-based paint — a source of poison for ghetto children who nibble at peeling paint—by lowering the permitted amount to 0.5 per cent next year and .06 per cent the following year.

The FTC found widespread compliance with the truth-in-lending law, which requires all firms to list the carrying charges expressed as annual rate of interest. So the commission turned to provisions of the New Fair Credit Reporting Act.

It issued rules prohibiting credit bureaus from publishing books about consumers' credit, and requiring that consumers be informed when they are denied credit on the basis of information furnished by loan exchanges.

A committee of state utility regulators found that discounts for paying electric and gas bills early actually is thinly disguised, exhorbitant interest.

Mrs. Knauer's office is encouraging voluntary action on the consumer's behalf in two sources of frequent consumer irritation—furniture and housing.

Consumers have complained that furniture is often delivered late, or a new home is not ready for occupancy on the promised date. Mrs. Knauer is encouraging these two industries to establish independent groups that will deal with individual complaints and also with the cause of complaints that fall into a pattern.

Two years ago, the appliance industry set up a panel that has achieved 75 per cent success in dealing with consumer complaints. Now, appliance complaints have dropped to fourth place among consumers.

After several major food scares of recent years, the General Accounting Office (GAO) made an inspection of the sanitary conditions in the nation's food supply. As a result, FDA has gained greatly expanded inspection capabilities.

The number of FDA inspectors was increased from 230 to more than 500. This means the agency will be able to inspect each of the 60,000 food plants in the nation once every three or four years—instead of once every six years now.

This was the year in which the food labelling program got off the ground. The FDA spokesmen say it will be completed next year.

A proposed Truth in Food Labelling Act got no action by either the House or the Senate this year and is sure to be reintroduced in Congress in 1973. This bill would require the labels to list ingredients, nutrition and perishability standards.

But the FDA said that even without legislation, the pressure of the market place will continue to force firms to do this voluntarily.

'CRASH MEDICINE'

Island Duty Interesting To Mill Valley Doctor

By BETTY FROST

Dr. T. G. Brown of Mill Valley has returned to Marin after four months as a staff physician at Saipan.

Saipan is the capital of Micronesia and medical headquarters for the entire U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, and from this headquarters physicians go out to staff clincis throughout the islands and atolls of the Mariana, Caroline and Marshall islands.

"It was crash medicine most of the time. There were always emergencies," Dr. Brown said. However, the pediatrician stated, "I would love to go back, and I am sure I will go back. It was a difficult job medically, and a difficult climate for me, but the people were great. The island people are appealing and there are many excellent Americans, dedicated to doing a good job."

She found the three major medical problems in children throughout Micronesia to be malnutrition, dental decay and parasites. All could be eradicated with "improved general education, sanitary education and the will to do it," the doctor said.

Diabetes is also prevalent, enhanced by the inbreeding of the islanders, who must find their mates within the island community, until "everyone is related to everyone else."

IT WAS Dr. Gavin Southerland, formerly of Ross, an orthopedic surgeon working at the Saipan Hospital and very interested in Micronesia, who persuaded Dr. Brown to go to the islands. Usually physicians go for a two-year period, but the Mill Valley woman did not want to be away from her practice that long. It was agreed that even four months would be helpful to the ever-shorthanded staff.

Besides Dr. Brown's work with the children, she assisted with the training of students at the nursing school in Saipan, nurses in the hospital, corpsmen and medical aides. Micronesian doctors, many trained at Fiji, also needed some help.

The trend in the Trust Territory is to "Micronesianize" all services wherever possible. The medical director for the territory, which has 102,250 inhabitants scattered on 97 separate islands and atolls, is now a Micronesian.

To make this leadership effective, Dr. Brown sees the need to upgrade all education, beginning with the elementary level. Chamorro is the language in the Marianas. Teachers having a high school education themselves instruct children until the last three years of high school. In the lower grades the Chamorro language, which was standardized only 20 years ago, is used for instruction. English is taught as a foreign language in the intermediate grades, and is the sole language used for the final years of high school, she said.

DR. BROWN hopes for a time when Micronesians will send their professional candidates to professional schools of high caliber in the United States or other advanced countries.

Some Micronesians, she found, are well educated and bring meaningful leadership to their people. She cited John Heine, principal of the high school at Majuro in the Marshalls, who has been elected to the Micronesian Congress.

Dr. Brown also noted the development of a sophisticated navigation system by the Marshall islanders. They make stick charts, placing shells on the charts to represent islands. They also use the stars for navigation, accurately estimate speed by putting a hand in the water, and time elapsed by the numbers of times a chant is repeated.

ONE TOUCHING incident for the doctor, whose career is working with children, occurred on Majuro. In this remote spot few Caucasian women are seen. Dr. Brown began to walk the mile from the airport hotel to the town. Soon she was followed by the village children singing. She stopped, waved, and began to walk again. She thought the children would soon scatter for home. The youngsters followed her all the way into town, resuming their songs.

"There was no begging, the doctor stressed. "They didn't want anything of me, only to follow me."

In the Ponape District of the Carolines, she watched the women washing their clothes in the river, beating the clothes in rhythm. The children were nude and the older girls wore a sarong at the hips. When they finished their work, the women washed themselves and dived into the water.

"They were beautiful and it was all so natural," T. G. reminisced. "Later I saw an American girl walking along the road, wearing a bikini, and somehow she looked indecent."

Dr. Brown has been practicing in Mill Valley since 1953. A native of Tennessee, she was graduated from the University of Michigan Medical School, interned in Cleveland, Ohio, and was a resident at Gorh University Hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich., San Francisco General Hospital and University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. While at U.C., she discovered Marin County, and decided to establish her practice in Mill Valley.

SHE NEVER uses her own given name, but goes by her initials, "T.G.", and is sometimes called the nickname she likes, "Sarah."

"It is more important to be a woman than to be a doctor," she said. "I have never experienced projudice in medical school or in practice. I like medicine, I enjoy my work, I work hard at it, and I think I do a good job. Still it is more important to me to be a woman," Dr. Brown continued.

"I see women as people. We have to understand each other as people and stop thinking who is bigger, beter or smarter. We have to work together as people and not be divided by the sexes."

"It has been said that girls succeed in direct proportion to the support of their fathers," T. G. commented.

Her father was an attorney and a judge and thought girls should have the same opportunity for education as boys. When he realized she was serious about going to medical school he was pleased and encouraged her.

The physician has a golden retriever dog named Recca, who is trained for field trial work, and keeps a horse in Cotati because she enjoys riding in the country. She also likes to ski, and hopes to go to the Sierra soon.

However, Dr. Brown is having a hard time convincing colleagues "that I've been working like a demon for four months and need a vacation."

Why Many Fruits Have Shiny Look

NEW YORK (UPI) — The shine on a lot of fruit and vegetables you buy is edible wax or oil coating applied by shippers to inhibit decay, reduce shrinkage and prevent chafing during the long haul to market.

The Western Growers Association says the coatings also are cosmetic-intended to make the produce prettier.

The trade group adds that carnauba or paraffin waxes or mineral oils are applied to replace natural protective oils removed when produce is washed before packing.

Treated produce includes apples, citrus fruits, cantaloupes, peaches, tomatoes, cucumbers, green peppers, eggplants, rutabagas, sweet potatoes and some other potatoes.

Coatings can be removed by peeling or washing. In the latter case, soak the produce two or three minutes in warm dishwashing detergents suds, wipe with sponge or towel, rinse and wipe again.

A Professional Tailor's Look

The trick lies in patterns that require no tailoring or complicated construction. Only the usual finishing touches and construction that a woman uses in making her own clothes are required.

If she can make a blazer pantsuit for herself, she can make a blazer or suit for her man, says the maker.

A LOOK AT 1972

Individual Rights Held Center Stage

Associated Press
By EVE SHARBUTT

Women in America demanded attention in 1972 as individuals, whether they were homemakers, politicians or concerned citizens.

They continued to fight for equal rights on their jobs, at home and in the world of leisure. In April, the Senate approved the equal rights amendment to the Constitution, designed to end discrimination based on sex, and sent the measure to the states for ratification. The action had been blocked since 1923, but was revived by support of 92 national organizations. Rep. Martha Griffiths of Michigan had led the fight.

In California, the Assembly voted that women would not have to declare whether they were Mrs. or Miss when they register to vote.

The United States Treasury Department ended its requirement that women use the title Miss or Mrs. when purchasing savings bonds. Men previously did not have to say whether or not they were married. Now all must give a social security number.

THERE WERE more women in politics in 1972 and one less man — because of a woman. Martha Mitchell got her husband to bow out of politics as chairman of the committee to reelect the President. She called the former attorney general's avocation "a dirty business."

Pat Nixon showed a gracious, friendly face to the world in visits to Africa, China and Russia early in the year. Her personal brand of diplomacy found her donning African headdress and costume, touring Chinese kitchens and shaking hands — or paws — with a bear in a Russian circus.

SHIRLEY CHISHOLM

PAT NIXON

Among women activists in politics in 1972 was outspoken Congressman Shirley Chisholm. As a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, the New Yorker appealed for votes on behalf of women and blacks as under-represented in the political process. Although Mrs. Chisholm garnered only a small percentage of the primary vote, the campaign seemed to give the congresswoman a national constituency.

ANOTHER POLITICAL loser was admired in the election year — Mrs. George McGovern, wife of the Democratic presidential candidate. Just over 5 feet tall, weighing 93 pounds at the beginning of the campaign and 10 pounds less at its end, Eleanor McGovern campaigned tirelessly across the nation. She spoke out on issues and was not afraid to disagree with her husband's point of view. In the future, she said, people will expect more of a candidate's wife than a sweet smile.

The number of women holding elective office across the United States increased slightly in the November elections.

Five women were elected to Congress for the first time, offsetting three who etired, and two who were defeated. Among the winners were two black women: Barbara Jordan, a Texas Democrat who was the first black in the state senate, and Yvonne Braithwaite Burke, Democrat of California, who has served in the state assembly. Also returning to Congress was the tough-talking feminist from New York, Bella Abzug.

One familiar face will not return to the United States Senate. Sen. Margaret Chase Smith was defeated in her race for a fifth term. The 74-year-old, fresh-rose-a-day senator had for years been the only woman in that body.

A Mexican-American woman, Romona Acosta Banuelos, was named 34th treasurer of the United States by President Nixon. She was a Los Angeles businesswoman. Dr. Marina von Neumann Whitman, an economist at the University of Pittsburgh, was named to the three-member President's Council of Economic Advisors. She had previously served on the price commission. Another Nixon appointee, Maritime Commissioner Helen Bentley, was the first woman to receive the Man of the Year Award from the Freight Forwarder's Association.

AT REPUBLICAN and Democratic party conventions to nominate presidential candidates, women fought for and won support for women's rights and opportunities in the party platforms.

Patricia Roberts Harris served as chairperson of the important Democratic Credentials Committee which seated more women, young people and minority representatives than ever before.

Jean Westwood of Utah was named to chair the Democratic National Committee. After the defeat of George McGovern in November, she came under attack by old-line party regulars and she fought to retain her position. She lost.

The Air Force named its second woman brigadier general during 1972. She was Ann Hoefly, chief of the nurse corps. Alene Durek, director of the Navy Nurse Corps, became the nation's first woman admiral.

Two young women were nominated to the U.S. Naval Academy by their congressmen, were turned down by the secretary of the Navy but offered instead the opportunity to join Naval ROTC.

Bernice Gera won a three-year battle against organized baseball in 1972. She got a contract to umpire in Class A New York-Pennsylvania baseball. After officiating in her first game she quit, saying it was the principle that mattered.

In business, Juanita Kreps, an economics professor at Duke University, was named the first woman director of the New York Stock Exchange. Sally Priesand was graduated from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati and became the first woman rabbi in reform Judaism.

WOMEN TOOK sex discrimination charges to court in 1972. In one such case, the G.C. Murphy Co. was charged with discrimination under the equal rights law but the case was settled for $548,000 in back pay and $97,000 in expenses and attorney fees for employes. In return for the out-of-court settlement, the company was able to avoid admitting any violation of the law. Other cases had similar results.

Shirley Temple Black, child movie star and Republican politician and representative to the United Nations, surprised many by speaking out on a subject about which most women keep quiet. From her hospital bed after radical surgery for breast cancer, she warned American women to be alert for early signs of the disease.

ANGELA DAVIS, the Communist professor who had been accused of murder and conspiracy in the San Rafael courthouse shoot-out which left four dead, was acquitted of the charges and released from pison.

ON THE INTERNATIONAL scene, Queen Elizabeth II of England celebrated the 25th anniversary of her marriage.

India's Indira Gandhi hammered out a peace settlement with Pakistan over the disputed Kashmir border. Prisoners were to be exchanged by both sides. Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir continued to express her nation's self-preservation stance in the troubled Middle East.

1972 was the year of Ms. rather than Mrs. or Miss. More women were using the term. It was even the title of a magazine, which published an introductory issue in January and its first regular issue in July. Circulation has grown to 350,000.

Marriage contracts were highly publicized as providing a division of labor at home and on jobs.

Among well-known women who died in 1972 were actresses Jessie Royce Landis, Marilyn Maxwell, Miriam Hopkins and Janet Munro; opera and concert singer Helen Traubel; Helen Bonfils, chairman of the board of the Denver Post and patron of the theater; Mahalia Jackson, empress of gospel music; Jane Grant, co-founder of the New Yorker magazine and an early feminist; Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, pioneer efficiency expert and the mother character in "Cheaper By The Dozen"; Dame Margaret Rutherford, the muffin-faced British character actress; and American poet and baseball fan Marianne Moore who won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry in 1952.

Innocent Plea To Burglary

A Missouri man reportedly found Saturday in the closed office of the Community Action of Marin (EOC) pleaded innocent yesterday in Municipal Court to a felony burglary charge.

After the plea, Marvin Ellis Otey, 28, was ordered to return to court Jan. 9 for a preliminary hearing.

San Rafael police said they arrested him about 2 a.m. in the office at 1006 Lincoln Avenue. Entrance was gained through an unlocked window, police said.

Crime Rate Shows Big Drop First Nine Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Serious crime increased 1 per cent in the United States during the first nine months of 1972, the smallest increase since the FBI started issuing quarterly reports in 1960, Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst said today.

There was an increase of 6 per cent in serious crime during the same period in 1971, the Justice Department report said.

The department defines serious crimes as those violent offenses directed against persons — murder, forcible rape and aggravated assault — as well as the non-violent crimes of robbery, burglary, larceny over $50 and auto theft.

Kleindienst said 83 major cities recorded actual decreases in serious crime during the January through September period this year, compared with 52 cities during the same period in 1971.

The attorney general said the statistics reflected "the concentrated and cooperative efforts of all levels of government—federal, state and local."

Kleindienst also gave these statistics:

—Violent crime increased 3 per cent during the first nine months of 1972, compared with a 10 per cent increase for the same period in 1971.

—Cities with 100,000 or more inhabitants reported a 3 per cent decrease in serious crime, while crime in suburban areas increased 4 per cent. Suburban areas crime increased 11 per cent during the same period in 1971. Crime in rural areas increased 6 per cent during the first nine months of 1972.

The report said serious crime in the District of Columbia dropped 27 per cent during the nine-month period. Violent crimes in the capital were down 23 per cent.

Kleindienst said cities in California with a decrease in crime included: Berkeley, Glendale, Los Angeles, Oakland, San Francisco and Torrance.

Design Unit Approves Expansion

The three members of the Corte Madera Board of Design last night agreed with a town council recommendation that the board's membership be increased to five.

Town zoning administrator William G. McBride said C. William Thomas, William B. Gilbert and Robert K. Overstreet, also decided to recommend the town council change some of its powers.

At present all design review applications have to proceed from the board to the planning commission, said McBride, with the board possessing only recommendation powers. The board felt it would cut down on the lengthy process if it was enabled to approve designs of comparatively small projects and not have to forward them to the planning commission.

The Corte Madera Board of Design also:

INDUSTRIAL — Agreed to hold a special meeting before the Jan. 8 planning commission meeting for final approval of the design review application from Trans-Marin Properties for its 8-acre industrial and office complex at 200 Tamal Vista; the structures and layouts were acceptable, but members wanted more landscaping.

STORE — Asked for more detailed plans from architect Dennis Burrow for a proposed Seven-Eleven food store to be constructed at 3 El Camino Drive at the entrance to Marin Estates.

PARADISE — Recommended approval of a design review application by J. S. Malott of 2656 Larkin Street, San Francisco, for an eight-unit townhouse complex at 5604 Paradise Drive.

Second Arrest Made On Burglary Suspect

A Woodacre woman, arrested yesterday by county sheriff's deputies on suspicion of a burglary in Lagunitas and then released, was arrested hours later with a companion on suspicion of burglarizing a Fairfax shop.

Jody Soga, 19, of Woodacre, and Richard William Klaes, 25, of 1902 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, were booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear tomorrow in Marin Municipal Court.

Fairfax police said they found the pair at 5 a.m. today in the Sheba Kiddo, 1828 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, after responding to a silent burglar alarm. Klaes was found at the entrance of the shop's door and Miss Soga was found hiding in a dressing room of the ransacked shop, police said.

It was the second time in as many days that Miss Soga had been arrested on suspicion of burglary.

Sheriff's deputies said they arrested her at 12:05 a.m. yesterday, after Stewart J. Lober, 28, of 110 Mountain View Drive, Lagunitas, reported that his wallet, containing $160, had been stolen. Lober told officers he had given Miss Soga a ride and taken her to his home, later discovering his wallet missing, according to police.

A Marin County Municipal Court judge released the woman after no charge was filed.

Mrs. Gillette Owns Bakery

The bakery, which has offered to supply bread for the ducks at Civic Center Lagoon, has been in Mrs. Gillette's family for more than 60 years.

Valsecchi, who is an employee of the bakery, made the bread offer to the county on behalf of Mrs. Gillette.

Charge Lowered In Assault Case

A 19-year-old Novato youth, caught in his girl friend's bedroom by her father, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor charge of statutory rape.

Sentencing of Gary Charles Johnston was continued to Jan. 26 to obtain a probation report. He was originally charged with felony rape and possession of marijuana.

Johnston was arrested by Novato police after the father, awakened by noise from the room of his 13-year-old daughter, found Johnston, police said.

A Needless Worry

SAN JUAN (UPI) —Although many private insurance companies feared a negative impact on their business when a government-operated no-fault auto insurance plan went into effect in Puerto Rico in 1970, private insurers wrote some $51.2 million in premiums that year, a boost of 5 per cent over the previous year.

Antiques Taken

A thief who pried open a window took antiques of undetermined value from San Anselmo Antiques, 721 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, sometime Tuesday or Wednesday, police reported today.

Tentative Redevelopment Accord

By ERIC M. INGRAM

Faced with a deadline just days away, representatives of Marin County and the City of San Rafael yesterday negotiated a tentative five-point program to avert legal action over the city's controversial redevelopment plan to upgrade local business districts.

The five-point program, submitted by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, accedes to the city's intention of floating a $6 million redevelopment bond but limits its use to a seven-year period.

Administrative staffs from the city and county are scheduled to meet tomorrow to hammer the program into a formal agreement that both county supervisors and city councilmen can agree to on Tuesday.

Whether such an agreement will meet with approval from supervisors remains in question since Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste has said he will only agree if the redevelopment bond is reduced to $3 million.

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. also oppose redevelopment but Arrigoni sent word yesterday he might go along with the city's plan if limited to the downtown area.

Baptiste, who in the past has joined Roumiguiere in meeting with San Rafael representatives, was not present at yesterday's session due to a previous commitment.

The city's redevelopment desires have been a point of contention since last May when county Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell warned supervisors and various school district officials that redevelopment would "siphon off" future tax revenues.

While the San Rafael School District reached agreement with the city for return of some funds, the county — barred legally from making a similar agreement — took a different tack and threatened to sue to stop redevelopment.

There followed a series of negotiating sessions between city and county representatives with yesterday's meeting probably the last.

Supervisors, faced with a legal deadline of Jan. 20 to file suit, have set Tuesday as the day of decision in order to allow time for their legal staff to prepare and file suit if agreement isn't reached with the city.

Other points in Roumiguiere's proposal, agreed to in concept by Mayor C. Paul Bettini, representing the city, were that redevelopment funds should be used only on "those projects which will increase assessed valuation" with excess funds siphoned off to be returned to the county and other affected taxing agencies.

The final point, broader in scope, says the county will not protest redevelopment by any or all 11 cities as long as the amount of money siphoned off does not exceed five cents on the county tax rate during any given year. (This year, five cents on the tax rate equals about $400,000 in revenue.)

Should all 11 cities enter redevelopment, Roumiguiere said, the county's agreed upon loss of revenue would be proportioned to cities on the basis of their total assessed valuation.

San Rafael, with about one-third the total assessed valuation of all the cities, would then be entitled to siphon off one-third the revenues raised by the county's five cents. That amount would be enough to pay off its $6 million bond.

Two Youths Still Missing In Mexico

Attempts to locate two San Rafael youths missing in Mexico have been fruitless, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Missing are Linda Anne Miller, 18, of 60 Marina Court Drive, and a friend, Cary Kristal, 19, of 36 Royal Court, police said.

Police said the pair left for a Mexican vacation on Aug. 18 but failed to return by Sept. 9 as planned. Both planned to register for the fall semester at the College of Marin, according to police.

Detective Ronald M. Averiette said police sent Miss Miller's dental records to Mexican authorities several months ago on the theory she may have died in a rooming house fire in Mexico City, but have yet to receive a reply. "I guess the plates didn't check out," he said.

One theory on the youths' disappearance is that they are being held incommunicado in a Mexican jail, police said.

Agency Hires Bay Sewerage Services Chief

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Paul C. Soltow Jr. has been hired as the $30,000-a-year general manager of the new Bay Area Sewage Services Agency.

The 42-year-old engineer-manager of the San Pablo Sanitary District will take his new post on Jan. 29. He had been with the Contra County Costa County district since 1958.

Soltow was selected by the agency's board of directors from a field of some two dozen applicants.

The agency was created by the Legislature to step into local sanitary districts that fail to meet orders to upgrade their sewage.

Director's Legal Fees Win Support

By a 3-1 vote, directors of the Marin Municipal Water District tentatively agreed yesterday to pay legal fees for director Ronald T. Stafford resulting from a recent complaint charging Stafford did not have a residence in the district at the time of his election to the board.

With board member John M. MacPhail Jr. dissenting, the board indicated it will pay the legal costs only if the district's counsel finds it would be legal to do so and if Stafford is vindicated in any legal action brought against him.

MacPhail said he did not think the board action would be "a proper expenditure of public funds" and the district's attorney, Robert W. Elliott, said he was not sure either.

The board directed Elliott to investigate the matter and report back at its first meeting in January.

Charles S. Adkins, a resident of Division 5 which Stafford represents, last week filed a complaint seeking permission from the attorney general to sue Stafford to keep him from holding office in the water district.

Adkins contends Stafford, who was elected June 6, did not live in the district until after the election.

The Marin Municipal Water District Board also:

EXTENSION — Postponed action on a pipeline extension to serve the 465-unit Madera Del Presidio subdivision in Corte Madera after Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the developer, asked that no action be taken until he had received copies of all district materials relating to the subdivision, including a recent environmental impact statement.

HOLIDAY — Agreed to let the district's 208 employees off work today in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Harry S Truman.

MORATORIUM — Postponed action on a resolution declaring a threatened water shortage in the district and a moratorium on new connections for large public and private projects. Director Jack R. Felson, who proposed the resolution, asked that the matter be continued until a report by a San Francisco engineering consulting firm on future district water needs is ready.

Darwin-Genesis Debate Revived

By MARY LEYDECKER

The old Darwin vs. Genesis debate was revived today in a modern version which pitted two science-quoting creationists against two evolutionists who said they believe in God.

The occasion was a scrappy discussion on radio station KTIM's Sounding Board program, revolving around the question of whether the theory of divine creation should be included in science textbooks for California schoolchildren.

Only one of the speakers, the Rev. C. Julian Bartlett, dean of Grace Cathedral in San Francisco, held that it should not, but even he thought divine theories should be included in other types of textbooks.

Alice M. Vipiano of San Rafael, a mother who has been very interested in seeing the creation theory taught alongside the Darwinian, said she does not practice a formal religion.

Her interest, she said, came about when she began to doubt the Darwinian evolution concept which she "had been brainwashed to accept as fact" during her schooling.

Rev. James Boswell, a chemical engineer who is also pastor of the Christian Disciple Church in Carmichael, also based his arguments on science, saying that tests had shown that the earth is not old enough for evolution to have taken place.

The fourth speaker, Dr. Gordon R. Chan, biologist at College of Marin, said he believes in both evolution and in God.

He added he thinks in time science will substantiate the evolution theory further and that it is impossible to ask God "to measure, test and record" His creation.

Nevertheless, he is in favor of discussing the creation theory in schools and suggested that words like "perhaps" should be used in textbooks to indicate there is not unanimity in belief about how the world began.

Dean Bartlett, an Episcopal priest who said he also has a degree in chemical engineering, called it "incredible, appalling and preposterous" to "put non-scientific material into science textbooks."

Religious beliefs about the creation of the world should be covered in comparative religion courses, he said.

He called the stories related in Genesis "creation myths," not scientific facts, said he viewed God as having created the world but as not interfering with scientific laws.

"I don't believe God sits somewhere and tinkers with the world... if you jump out of a window... God is not going to interfere and save you," the priest said.

A polite shouting match started at the end of the program over whether man is a transitional creature or not.

"There is no evidence to support that," Boswell said and Mrs. Vipiano agreed, saying that though the horse started with five toes and now has one, "he has always been a horse."

Bartlett termed Mrs. Vipiano's views on evolution simplistic, and said Boswell's request that creation theories be taught amounted to "playing games..."

"We are not asking that religion be included in textbooks," Boswell said. "All we are saying is that some acts are better explained by the creation theory than by evolution."

The problem is, Chan added, that "scientists can't test whether God made the world in seven days."

Mrs. Vipriano, who said she had attended all the California Board of Education meetings for the past two years, said she merely wants students to be taught that neither evolution nor creation is a proven fact.

(The state board earlier this month voted 7-1 to instruct a committee of board members and others to rewrite key sections of science texts, which could lead to a downgrading of evolution teaching.)

The debate, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Capron Made The Remark

In a report on the Mill Valley City Council's Dec. 21 meeting, the Independent-Journal the next day erred in attributing to City Councilman Robert E. Burton the remark:

"We should be prepared for some opposition. The public has to hear these proposals and there's nobody out there tonight."

It was actually City Councilman Robert E. Capron who made that comment on proposals to increase some planning fees and impose some new ones, establish a "bedroom" tax on new construction and require that property use reports be furnished to buyers by sellers."

Today is Thursday, Dec. 28, the 363rd day of 1972 with three to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars. The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States, was born Dec. 28, 1856.

For draft eligibles the lottery number is 174.

On this day in history:

In 1846, Iowa was admitted to the union as the 29th state.

In 1869, members of the Knights of Labor held the first Labor Day observance in American history. Also that day, chewing gum was patented by William Semple of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

In 1945, Congress officially recognized "the pledge of allegiance" to the American flag.

A thought for the day: Greek biographer Plutarch said: "The whole life of man is but a point of time; let us enjoy it therefore while it lasts, and not spend it to no purpose."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Research Indicates Influence In Mother Can Affect Unborn

More than two decades ago, we had the first clue that viral infections could have an adverse effect on pregnancy. It was discovered that a woman who developed German measles during the first three months of pregnancy was likely to deliver a baby with defects of the heart, eyes, or ears. Since then, researchers have investigated the possible effects of other viruses on pregnancy. Until recently, they found very little evidence of harm to the fetus.

NOW IT SEEMS that influenza during pregnancy may not be as harmless as has been thought. Dr. Eva Alberman and research epidemiologist Jean Fedrick studied the outcome of 16,750 children born in the first week of March, 1958. While pregnant, the mothers of 1,959 of these infants had influenza. This was in contrast to 14,791 infants born of mothers who did not have the flu.

During the ensuing years, eight from the first group developed cancer, an incidence of 4.1 per 1,000. Among the 14,791 infants whose mothers did not have flu, there were 12 cases of cancer (0.8 per 1,000). In other words, children born of mothers who had influenza during pregnancy had approximately four times as much cancer. The study was conducted 11 years after birth and there is a possibility that a second survey after 16 years may change the statistics.

LEUKEMIA was the type of cancer that these children developed. This research gives credence to the theory that viruses are responsible for leukemia. Beyond this, we only can say that the results add a small piece to the jigsaw puzzle known as cancer. There are many unanswered questions to this type of statistical research.

Certain strains of influenza viruses are capable of crossing the placenta to reach the fetus; others are not. Acute infections, such as influenza, also are capable of producing a profound toxemia. The latter, rather than the virus, could be responsible. Or, perhaps, the effects of the drugs taken for flu caused the cancers.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal).

PROCAINE INJECTIONS

A reader writes: I'm 62 years old and would like to know if procaine injections will revitalize me?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge. American and English physicians never have been able to duplicate the results of Prof. Anna Aslan, the Romanian physician. She has a dynamic personality and her good results may have been obtained through suggestion or mesmerism, rather than from the injections of procaine. In addition, I suspect she had a good public relations department.

DISTURBED SLEEP

D.M. writes: What makes me awaken from a sound sleep and sit up with great force? During this time I feel stunned and cannot think clearly.

REPLY

A dream or an oxygen deficiency may awaken anyone. You are stunned and cannot think clearly because you are half asleep. The oxygen deficiency may be of circulatory origin.

COFFEE AND SKIN

M.G. writes: Will drinking lots of coffee darken the skin and drinking lots of milk lighten it?

REPLY

Not if coffe and milk are swallowed. Bathing in coffe might darken the skin.

West Marin Teen Doesn't Fare Well

A 16-year-old Petaluma youth, who admitted robbing the Bank of America in Tomales in March, didn't fare as well on his second attempt Thursday, the Marin sheriff's department disclosed yesterday.

Deputies arrested the youth in a house on Dillon Beach Road shortly after bank manager Harry P. Bonnikson, Jr. refused to give him any money at 1:50 p.m.

The youth admitted the robbery attempt and also admitted robbing Bonnikson of $788 March 9, deputies said. He was booked into Juvenile Hall on suspicion of both robberies.

His name was withheld because of a standing order by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Bonnikson told deputies he was alone in the bank when the 113-pound youth, five feet, three inches tall entered the bank wearing a ski mask over his face.

The youth pretended to have a gun in his pocket and thrust a note at Bonnikson reading, "Put all of the money in the bag or I will kill you."

Bonnikson, according to deputies, told him, "You are not getting anything this time." The manager told the Independent-Journal the masked robber appeared to be the same one who held him up on March 9.

Court Eyes Prop. 21 Challenge

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A Sacramento court took an NAACP challenge to Prop. 21, the anti-busing initiative, under submission yesterday.

Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Babbich gave no indication when he would rule on the case after hearing arguments from Nathaniel Colley, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and John Heinrich, an attorney in the Sacramento County Counsel's office.

Colley's suit contends that Sacramento's Camellia Elementary School, which has a 90 per cent minority enrollment, had formulated a desegregation plan under the Bagley Act, but the plan has been stopped by passage of Prop. 21 on the Nov. 7 ballot.

Wilmer Leon, a consultant for State Department of Education, told the court that schools with a high ratio of minorities produce "low achievers."

He said the only way a school with 90 per cent minorities can be desegregated is by reassignment, and race must be a primary consideration.

"I think it is educationally advantageous to have desegregated schools," he said.

Heinrich said the state Constitution says everyone is entitled to an education withot regard to race, and it does not say each school must be racially balanced.

Colley said Prop. 21 is "no different" than statutes struck down in other states.

"I have news for those who believe California has always been pure" in race issues, Colley said. He quoted a century-old California law which mentioned only "white children."

Case Is Sent To Superior Court

Christopher Steve James Bailey, 22, of San Francisco, was held to answer in Marin Superior Court Tuesday, after preliminary hearing before Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman.

Bailey was charged with auto theft and drunken driving, after his arrest Dec. 14 by the California Highway Patrol.

$435 Million Available To Reagan For Tax Cut

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post reported today that at least $435 million will be available to Gov. Ronald Reagan for an income tax cut, despite enactment of the $1.1 billion property tax relief-school aid bill.

Post said the state will end the current fiscal year June 30 with a $683 million budget surplus. Roughly $248 million of that will be needed during the next three years to help finance the tax shift bill, Post said.

But, he reported the state still will end the 1975-76 fiscal year with a $435 million surplus, assuming spending levels remained the same as they are now and the economy remained prosperous.

That $435 million surplus, Post's office said, would be available to Reagan on a one-time basis this year for the income tax cut he intends to propose to the legislature.

Chief Deputy Finance Director Kenneth Hall said, however, that no decisions had been made on how big the tax cut would be.

Economy Survey Gets Underway

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau has started the survey it takes every five years of the national economy.

Bureau employes on Tuesday began distributing questionnaires to the nation's 2.1 million largest business firms. The survey will gather information on the state of business in 1972, including the number of persons employed, how much was paid in wages, and in what activities businesses were engaged.

Another 2.9 million smaller companies will be interviewed on a selective basis.

1973 Vintage Year For Russ Diplomats

By PETER J. SHAW

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's foreign policy enjoyed a vintage year in 1972: the Nixon summit, a strategic arms limitation pact, falling barriers to Soviet-American trade, tacit acceptance of the Potsdam status quo in Europe, the beginnings of a European Security Conference, and improved links with West Germany and India.

The challenge in 1973 will be the sober task of maintaining what has been won.

Seasoned diplomats and observers predict that talks on European force reductions and the unavoidable frictions of a full-dress European Security Conference will give Soviet diplomacy its severest tests in 1973.

"Achieving agreement on force reductions will be just as difficult, or more difficult, as the strategic arms limitation talks," a veteran Western diplomat said. "If anything is likely to take the gloss off the triumphs of 1972, this will."

Diplomatic betting at the moment is that the Kremlin will do all it can, short of compromising security and internal stability, to make the international parleys a multisided success.

Some diplomats who foresee Soviet flexibility in any talks on reduction of forces in Europe say the Kremlin may wish to extend such dialogues to include nuclear arms as well as troop numbers.

Their reckoning is based on the economic drain of supplying nuclear arsenals for two potential fronts, Europe and China.

Virtually no one expects any change in 1973 in the Sino-Soviet stalemate on border talks and the ideological rift.

The border talks apparently are stalled over Soviet refusal to heed China's demand for at least a partial withdrawal of the 1 million Soviet troops Peking says are massed along the border.

Soviet offers of olive branches in the ideological split were ignored by the Chinese in 1972 and will be, one diplomat said, "as long as Mao Tse-tung is in charge."

The rosy euphoria that accompanied better Soviet-American relations in 1972 may dull somewhat in 1973.

Diplomatic contacts have been warming steadily under a Kremlin directive—confirmed by Russians and Americans alike—to be "freer and easier." But the great trade boom remains distant.

"Both nations have been led to expect too much in the way of mutual economic benefits," a Moscow veteran said. "The hard facts are that the trade balance remains 3-1 in America's favor and is not going to shift in 1973. The big deals for Soviet natural gas that could change things are not feasible until the end of the decade."

One key to a trade upsurge—most favored nation tariff status for the Soviet Union — remained threatened by 75 U.S. senators who vowed to thwart approval if Moscow does not rescind or tone down a "diploma tax" on would-be emigrants. No clear picture of Soviet policy regarding the tax had emerged at year's end.

Moderation in Soviet-American projects for environmental and scientific research is expected in 1973. There will be a smaller, more selective number of projects because the volume of talks up to now has been wearing down the bureaucracies of both nations.

No major new agreements are anticipated when Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party general secretary, visits Washington in April.

Diplomats say Brezhnev and President Nixon will review the progress of the pacts signed in Moscow last May. One predicted Brezhnev "may not be very happy" about the pace of economic cooperation although both sides should "make every effort to smooth things over."

Factually, most diplomats and observers think China will remain the Kremlin's top preoccupation in 1973, largely because of security fears. Others view China as the prime "emotional worry" but see Soviet-American relations as the most important consideration right now.

"The new Soviet-American friendship is a big and major switch," one European diplomat said. "It is not just for tactical purposes, but a permanent change based on a permanent fact—the nuclear arms balance and the need to keep arms at a reasonable economic and military level."

Following a Vietnam ceasefire, the Soviet Union will likely continue to support Hanoi politically but do nothing to provoke a confrontation with the United States should hostilities reignite. Diplomats think the Kremlin will continue to press for the neutralization of Southeast Asia as a step that would curb Chinese influence.

Moscow will probably maintain its tough line against Israel in 1973 and keep the door shut on any possible renewal of major involvement in Egypt, whose ouster of Soviet advisors in 1972 was embarrassing, albeit welcome, for the Kremlin.

The Soviet manned space program, idle since the SZ-11 tragedy in June, 1971, should resume in 1973 with the same goal — establishing the first manned orbital space station. Unmanned flights to Mars and Venus, where the Russians are years ahead of the United States in exploration, should continue. There has been no indication of a manned flight to the moon.

Junior College Signups Slated At Santa Rosa

Registration for evening classes at Santa Rosa Junior College will begin Wednesday, according to John J. Healy, dean of the evening program.

Brochures listing all classes for the spring semester will be mailed this week to more than 60,000 Sonoma County households. A full range of academic and occupational classes will be offered at the Santa Rosa campus and other locations.

Registration may be completed by mail or in person at Bailey Hall beginning Jan. 5. The registration period will close Jan. 26 and classes begin Feb. 5.

Persons needing assistance in planning programs may contact the evening college office for counseling appointments. Classes are open to all high school graduates and to persons over the age of 19 who have been out of school at least one semester. Most classes carry a registration fee of $3.50.

$600,000 Award Given To Family

OAKLAND (UPI) —Alameda County Superior Court Judge F. M. Van Sicklen Tuesday approved a $600,000 out-of-court settlement in a malpractice suit by the wife and children of a senior methods analyst for Varian Associates of Palo Alto.

The attorney for Mrs. Mary E. Nickolai, 38, and her four daughters said Erhard R. Nickolai, 41, was to have undergone routine sinus surgery in 1970 but this was canceled when a skin cleansing preparation containing iodine was used in his mouth and got into his lungs.

Bruce Walkup, the lawyer, said Nickolai died eight days later.

The settlement was approved by the insurance carriers for Drs. Andrew Chen, Arnold Wong and Alan Kinsel of Fremont and Washington Hospital in Fremont.

Law Carries Regulations On Pregnancy Test Kits

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed legislation to regulate "do-it-yourself" pregnancy testing kits and vetoed a bill extending peace officer status to Los Angeles dog catchers.

The measures were among dozens the governor signed or vetoed on Wednesday as he rushed to meet a Dec. 31 deadline for acting on legislation before the start of the veto override session Jan. 1.

Reagan rejected a bill by Assemblyman Alex Garcia, D-Los Angeles, which proposed extending peace officer status along with the right to carry a gun to Los Angeles dog catchers, city parking control checkers, public defender investigators and housing authority patrolmen. The governor said he saw no need for the measure.

The governor signed a measure by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, that will require state health certification before "do-it-yourself" pregnancy kits can be sold in California.

Reagan also signed a $590,000 bill to help provide treatment and transplants for children suffering from kidney disease. The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, requires the money to be used either for existing kidney dialysis and transplantation centers or to establish new programs.

The governor also vetoed these bills:

—By Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, to require the state to maintain surplus highway lands in big cities as parks. Reagan said the cost would be "prohibitive" and would require the Department of Public Works to start an "extensive and entirely new parks function."

—By Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, empowering the advisory Health Care Commission to approve any cut back in Medi-Cal services ordered by the state Medi-Cal director. Reagan said he saw no "sufficiently compelling" reason to reduce the director's authority.

—By Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, R-San Diego, to grant additional survivors benefits to certain state and retired school employes. Reagan said an investigation is now under way into state employe benefits and no major changes should be made until the study is finished.

—By Assemblyman Robert Beverly, R-Manhattan Beach, to require that a "safety member" of the public employes retirement system would be retired for a disability or reinstated from such retirement when his employer determined his disability has ended. Los Angeles County Marshal Timothy Sperl had complained earlier that a virtually identical bill was aimed at forcing him to retire. Reagan vetoed that measure and said he saw no reason now to reverse that action.

—By Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, to increase the death benefits for retired state workers. Reagan said a study of the entire state employe benefit system was under way and no major revisions should be made until it is completed.

Reagan also signed these bills:

—By Sen. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, providing a 5 per cent pension increase to state employes or local school district employes who retired before Dec. 31, 1970.

—By Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, appropriating $750,000 to pay overtime to California Youth Authority employes which was earned between Jan. 13, 1970, through June 30, 1971.

—By Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, imposing uniform rules of voter registration to clarify Supreme Court rulings. Among other things, the measure permits voters to register until 29 days before an election.

—By Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'Berg, D-Sacramento, and a similar measure by Sen. Jack Schrade, R-San Diego, increasing the limit on Cal-Vet home loans from $20,000 to $25,00.

Teen Contraceptive Legislation Vetoed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A controversial bill allowing sexually active teenage girls to obtain contraceptives without their parents' consent has been vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan as going "too far." "Simply because sexual permissiveness may exist among certain young people does not mean the state should make it any easier for them," Reagan said in a veto message Wednesday.

But the author, Sen. Anthony Beilenson, D-Beverly Hills, charged that Reagan's veto "will result in more teenage abortions, more unwanted babies born to teenage mothers and more teenage girls running away from home."

The measure would have made it legal for a physician to dispense birth control information and prescribe The Pill and other contraceptives for a minor he considered "sexually active." Prior parental consent would not be required.

Currently, teenage boys can purchase contraceptives but most girls cannot. Beilenson said, however, that children of welfare families need no parental consent to obtain contraceptives.

Beilenson, author of the state's liberalized therapeutic abortion law, noted that teenage girls nw can legally have babies or abortions without their parents' approval or they can declare themselves self-supporting and legally obtain The Pill without parental knowledge.

"But the law does not permit them to see their own doctor about birth control without a note from home," he said, noting that the governor twice previously vetoed similar bills.

Reagan said the bill represented an "unwarranted intrusion" into the prerogatives of the parent and said when "government assumes such authority and strips parents of such consent prerogatives, it has gone too far."

Prime Interest Rates On Loans Raised By Banks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Starting today, the prime interest rate on loans at every major bank in California is one-quarter per cent higher.

The announcement yesterday of the increase from 5¾ to 6 per cent came after eastern banks announced similar plans last week. The prime lending rate is the rate available to the best customers of the banks.

Earlier this year, the prime rate was as low as 4½ per cent.

John F. Holman, executive vice president and senior loan officer of Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco, said, "Loan demand has been strong at Wells Fargo. Our loan volume has been rising each week for more than a month."

One Los Angeles bank official said, "One reason our rates are moving up is the recent tightening of the money system by the Federal Reserve. Interest rates are a thermometer of business activity and as business increases, the government knows rates are going to climb, too."

He said he expected the prime lending rate to increase another one-half of one per cent by the middle of next year.

Bank of America was the first to announce the one-quarter per cent increase. There were similar statements by Wells Fargo Bank, Bank of California, United California Bank, Union Bank and Security Pacific National Bank and Crocker Bank.

Female Inmate Care Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A woman in jail or prison can summon a private physician of her choice to determine if she is pregnant or not and to care for her if she is under a bill signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Reagan also signed yesterday a separate bill forbidding imposition of restrictions on abortions for prisoners other than those contained in the state's Therapeutic Abortion Act.

Both measures were authored by Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles.

The abortion bill is AB 1004; the other is AB 1003.

It's A Great Game For Great Cause

With the 49ers and Raiders losing their first playoff games, the Shrine East-West people were left with the only football game in town this weekend. There will be no competition for the sports dollar which gives the Shrine committee a better chance to sell all 61,000 seats at Candlestick Park for Saturday's game.

If the 49ers had made it past Dallas last Saturday, they would be hosting Washington on the same Candlestick Park carpet Sunday and many fans who couldn't afford to shell out enough money for both games would have to make a choice. Unfortunately for the 49ers, that choice has been made or those fans.

FOR THE SAKE of a lot of kids lying in beds at the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, I hope Saturday's 48th annual game is a sellout. That's one time you can sit there and watch good football and know the money you plunked out for the ticket is going to a good cause. You watch strong legs run, that weak legs might walk. It's the motto of the game.

I see that the East has been made four-point favorites but that shouldn't alarm all you Westerners. The East is usually favored, but the West won the last four years.

If you haven't yet bought tickets, you better make your move. Marin County ticket locations include Macy's, Taveggia and Brusati Sport and Saddle Shop, Glass and Sash, Tam Fences in San Rafael, and Dolman Realty in Corte Madera.

THERE ARE STILL tickets left although it was rumored they would all be gobbled up by pro scouts. I'm not saying that there will be 61,000 scouts at the game, but if the guy next to you keeps taking notes and charting plays, find out which pro team he is representing.

The talent is there for you to see. There are 12 players who were named either first or second team consensus All-America. Most of them are on the East squad. First team Easterners who won consensus A-A honors are Paul Seymour, offensive tackle from Michigan; Otis Armstrong, running back from Purdue; Dave Butz, defensive tackle from Purdue; Brad Van Pelt, defensive back from Michigan State, and Randy Logan, defensive back from Michigan. The lone first string A-A players on the West side are both defensive backs, Calvin Jones from Washington and Jackie Wallace of Arizona State.

BUT YOU NEVER know who is going to be the star of the show. Last year, everyone expected Cornell's Ed Marinero, runner-up for the Heisman Trophy, to be the big gun but he had a miserable day, held in check constantly and coughing up the ball on a fumble.

This year the Ivy League is sending Jauron, a young man who holds 10 Yale running records, breaking some held by Calvin Hill, now with the Dallas Cowboys.

It should be some game.

PRO SCOUTS PREDICT:

East To Beat West In Shrine Football

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pro scouts watching the two teams in practice this week figure the East will rout the West Saturday in the 48th Shrine East-West Game at Candlestick Park.

While the scouts have been lavish in their praise of the East team, the professional oddsmakers list the East no more than a four-point favorite.

"Every year the East comes out here with all the press notices and the West winds up winning the game," cautioned Andros, an eternal optimist. "They are telling us this year that we won't be able to run against the East defense but I won't believe that until they stop us, if they can."

But as insurance, Andros has worked his two quarterbacks—Ty Paine of Washington State and George Amundson of Iowa State—overtime on play-action formations.

"I want them to be ready to throw on the run if they have to," said Andros, who added he'll pick his starting quarterback at game time.

"I don't see that it makes any difference which one starts," said Andros, "because they'll get equal time in any event."

While Andros pondered over his starting alignment, head East Coach Carmen Cozza seemed all set. Wednesday he named his starting defensive unit and it produced two mild surprises.

Cozza picked Joe Ehrmann of Syracuse to play at defensive tackle ahead of big Dennis Johnson of Delaware when Johnson missed a workout because of illness. He also named Gary Hrivnak of Purdue, normally a tight end, to play at outside linebacker as well.

"The way he (Hrivnak) hits we had to find a place for him on defense," said Cozza.

Gary Huff of Florida State will be the East starting quarterback with Mike Wells of Illinois behind him. Cozza indicated they'll share the job pretty much on a 50-50 basis.

"In a game such as this," said Cozza, "you want to give every boy some playing time. Besides, we have only 28 players on the squad, which means every man does his share."

Game time Saturday is 1 p.m. and the game will be televised nationally. The forecast is for clear weather with the temperature in the high 50s and low 60s. Officials indicated Wednesday that some tickets are available in most locations.

Nostalgia Award To Casey Stengel

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Casey Stengel, who won 10 pennants and seven World Series in 12 years as manager of the New York Yankees, will receive the Nostalgia Award Jan. 21 at the Kansas City baseball dinner.

Stengel, 82, and a native of Kansas City, played 12 years in the major leagues and managed 25 years. He still holds the record for the most world series games as a manager, 63.

The dinner is co-sponsored by the Royal Lancers and the Kansas City chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Last year's award went to Satchel Paige.

SIX-POINT LANDING — Gray team running back Kenneth Garrett (35) eluded North team defender Michael White and scampered one yard into the end zone for a second quarter touchdown last night. The Gray won, 27-15, in the Blue-Gray football game in Montgomery, Ala.

Redskins Adopt Deflation Plan; Steelers Have Edge

Nickel Defense Is Set By Allen For Dallas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskins' coach George Allen has adopted a deflation policy for his defense against the Dallas Cowboys in the National Football Conference championship playoff Sunday. Instead of his "quarter" defense, he's going back to the "Nickel" one.

Allen caught the Green Bay Packers by surprise last Sunday when he removed his middle linebacker on almost every running situation and used a fifth defensive lineman, Manny Sistrunk, to provide added heft.

In the upcoming confrontation with Dallas, Allen will return to the "Nickel" defense used by most pro teams. This consists of removing a linebacker for a speedier defensive back in passing situations.

Allen's strategy worked against the Packers, who went down to defeat by a 16-3 margin.

Green Bay was limited to 78 yards rushing with their top runner, John Brockington, netting only 9 yards on 13 carries. Sistrunk wound up being voted a game ball for his performance.

"You can't use a five-man defensive line against a diverse offense like Dallas has," he explained.

Redskin defensive end Verlon Biggs agreed.

"Dallas has perhaps as good a running attack as Green Bay," he commented, "but they also have a tremendous passing attack.

"The five man line is great if you want to make the other team throw because it's strong with the run and weak with the pass. You can't be weak in any area against the Cowboys. You just about have to play them straight."

If, as Allen predicts, Dallas starts Roger Staubach at quarterback in place of Craig Morton, the scrambling Cowboy passer will create a new defensive problem for the Redskins. Dallas was to name its starting quarterback today.

Sugar Bowl Bet By 2 Governors

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania will pay a "deer" price if Penn State loses the Sugar Bowl game.

Gov. Milton J. Shapp has wagered a white-tail deer, the official state animal, against an Oklahoma steer offered by Oklahoma Gov. David Hall.

The animal bet by the losing team will be slaughtered and dressed before being sent as payment.

Shapp said Wednesday he chose a deer because its "swift and graceful movements through the broken field have served as a pattern for the running style of Penn State's great football team."

A's Action: Cepeda, Two Others Axed

OAKLAND (UPI)—Orlando Cepeda, once one of the most feared right-handed hitters in baseball, today finds himself without a team and looking for a job.

The National League's Most Valuable Player with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1967 was one of three players released Wednesday by the Oakland Athletics.

Clearing waivers were Cepeda, infielder Larry Brown and pitcher Joe Horlen. None of the other 23 major league teams was interested in the players.

Cepeda, 35, came to the A's last June 29 from the Atlanta Braves for pitcher Denny McLain and managed only three hitting appearances before going into the hospital for another knee operation.

Cepeda had played previously with the San Francisco Giants and was called the "Baby Bull."

Brown, 32, was purchased from the Cleveland Indians in April 1971 and filled a utility role with the A's. He batted only .183 in 47 games.

Horlen, 35, was signed as a free agent last April 19 after the Chicago White Sox cut him loose. He appeared in 32 games for the A's as a middle inning reliever and spot starter and posted a 3-4 won-lost record and 3.00 earned run average.

The A's also announced the signing of 21-year-old switchhitting third baseman-catcher Jack Bastable of the University of Missouri.

Meanwhile, A's' owner Charles O. Finley won an award of $231,600 in attorney fees from Sportservice Corp. in U.S. District Court in San Francisco. Last August, Finley was awarded $864,504 in antitrust damages from Sportservice in litigation over concession rights at the Oakland Coliseum.

Tom C. Clark, retired U.S. Supreme Court Justice, found that Sportservice had violated antitrust laws by monopolizing concessions at major league ballparks.

Pittsburgh Has Specialty Teams Plus Over Miami

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—When opponents are as evenly matched as American Football Conference title contestants Pittsburgh and Miami appear to be, the winning edge is often with the specialty teams.

The edge may be with the Steelers in this case. Placekicker Roy Gerela and punter Bobby Walden both finished second in the AFC at their respective tasks.

As a counterbalance, Sunday's game is the first league title appearance for the 40-yearold Steeler franchise, tipping the pressure indicator towards Pittsburgh.

Gerela, the all-time leading Steeler scorer with 119 points, discounts the intensity of the championship.

"It's been that way all season long—in Dallas, with Minnesota, Kansas City, Cleveland," He said Wednesday, "We've been under pressure in all of those games and came through."

Walden, who averaged 43.8 yards per punt this season, agreed.

"I've been telling myself in tight situations all season long, don't lose the rhythm," he said.

Particularly effective in clutches, Walden kicked the longest punt in the NFL this season, a 72-yarder against Oakland early in the season.

The Dolphins blocked a punt by Don Cockcroft early in their 20-14 playoff victory over the Cleveland Browns last week, but that doesn't concern Walden either.

"Well now, they might block one and they might not," he said. "That's what I've got 10 men in front of me for. But I've had two blocked this year, though."

With Garo Yepremian, the Dolphins do not have to reach mid-field to score. Yepremian has kicked 24 field goals, including boots of 54 and 51 yards, and had an overall point total of 115.

Gerela, who has kicked 28 field goals, including a 49-yarder acknowledges that Yepremian is one of the top longrange kickers. Gerela has been remarkably accurate from inside the 30, however, kicking 17-of-19.

Russian Hockey Team Triumphs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)— Russia's World Cup hockey team nipped the Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western Hockey League 5-4 in an exhibition game before a packed house of 12,104 Wednesday night.

Viacheslav Anisin scored twice for the Russians, his second goal in the third period giving the Russians a two-goal lead.

Murray Heatley, with his second of two goals for the night, cut the margin to a single road with less than four minutes remaining in the game. The Raodrunners had a late power play opportunity to tie the score but were turned aside by goalie Vladislav Tretiak.

GRAY STARS

Defensive Backs Steal Grid Show

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) —The 35th annual Blue-Gray football game featured some of the nation's top offensive performers, but two defensive backs from Mississippi State stole the show as the South took a 27-15 victory.

Ken Phares, a 185-pounder from Clinton, La., put the South ahead on the third play of the game Wednesday night when he stole a pass thrown by quarterback Tony Adams of Utah State and raced 34 yards for the score. The Mississippi State star set up another Gray score with an interception and Frank Dowsing, an All-SEC performer from Mississippi State, stopped a Blue drive with an interception on the two.

The game had been billed as a passing duel between Adams and South quarterback Don Strock of Virginia Tech. Strock was the nation's total offense and forward passing leader. Adams had completed the 1972 collegiate season second in the nation in total offense and third in passing.

Strock hit on 14-of-33 passes for 153 yards. He was denied a touchdown, but key passes of 19 and 21 yards from Strock to Jim Hodge of Arkansas set up a one-yard scoring plunge by Ken Garrett of Wake Forest in the second period. Strock was chosen the game's Most Valuable Player by sportswriters covering the game.

Strock and Phares took the offensive and defensive honors for the South while flanker Tom Forzani of Utah State and defensive end Eddie Sheats of Kansas won the honors for the North.

Bill Sadler of Texas Christian, the game's leading rusher with 69 yards, scored another South touchdown on a one-yard run. The score was set up by Phares' second interception and a pass interference call. Mark Williams of Rice kicked field goals of 21 and 23 yards to complete the Gray scoring.

Drake Team Lone Winner

Redwood and Marin Catholic High Schools took on some tough foes yesterday, and both lost valiantly, as the Giants dropped an 80-72 decision to Mills of Millbrae, and the Wildcats lost to Bishop O'Dowd in Oakland, 49-47, in non-league basketball games involving Marin teams.

In other games, Drake was the day's only varsity winner for Marin, beating Lincoln of San Francisco, 55-34, while San Rafael was upset by Washington of San Francisco, 55-54.

Redwood (6-6) lost to one of the peninsula's top teams in its doubleheader at San Francisco State University. Tonight at 8:30, the Giants take on St. Ignatius in the same gym.

The Giants shot well from the floor (49 per cent), but so did Mills (58 per cent). Redwood coach Dick Hart was pleased that all his starters scored in double figures, as Mike Connor led with 16. "We just lost to a better team," said Hart.

Marin Catholic's game was quite similar, as the 'Cats (6-6) lost to inexperienced, but perpetually tough Bishop O'Dowd in the opening round of the O'Dowd tournament. Marin also shot fairly well at 40 per cent, but the Dragons had a hot night, sinking 58 per cent of their outside shots.

Sophomore Mike Mahoney took up the slack of his absent brother, high scoring Dan (out with illness), scoring 22 points. The Wildcats resume tournament action tomorrow at 2 p.m. against San Leandro.

Drake (9-3) had an easy time against Lincoln, after its disastrous loss last week to another San Francisco foe, Riordan. The Pirates opened to an 11-point halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way.

Center Byron Stewart led San Rafael (7-4) with 12 points and 10 rebounds in the Bulldogs' surprising loss to Washington. Pete Neuwald led the host scorers with 13.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda High School moved into semi-final action of the Marin Catholic Freshman Basketball Tournament, edging the hosts, 43-42.

Marin County's other representative, San Rafael, lost to Sacred Heart of San Francisco, 46-19, while Bishop O'Dowd emerged a tourney favorite, drubbing Santa Rosa's Cardinal Newman, 56-30. Moreau of Hayward dropped St. Patrick's of Vallejo (score unavailable) in the tourney's other game.

Action resumes today, as Newman plays San Rafael at 3 p.m., and St. Patrick's takes on Marin Catholic at 4:30 in the losers' bracket. O'Dowd plays Sacred Heart at 6 o'clock and Moreau goes against Terra Linda at 7:30 in the winners' bracket.

Terra Linda outscored the hosts 24-14 in the fourth quarter to pull out the close victory. Steve Carli led the Trojans with 12 points, while Wildcat Gary Johnson scored 20. Deke Welch topped San Rafael's scorers with eight in the Bulldogs' loss.

Tars In Oregon Tourney Tonight

Maybe the influential New York press hasn't found out yet, but College of Marin's basketball fame certainly does extend beyond the confines of California.

"I picked 'em on reputation," said tournament director Art Weston, explaining why Marin will take the floor tonight in the second annual Central Oregon Community College tournament in Bend, Ore.

Marin will play at 6:30 p.m. against Big Bend Community College from Moses Lake, Wash., in an opening-round game. Yuba College of Marysville will face the hosts in the other contest at 8:30. Winners advance to the finals tomorrow night at 8:30.

"I wanted some schools from California," continued Weston, who also coaches Central Oregon's team. "I like a tough schedule. I could pad my own tournament so we could win it, but I don't like to operate that way.

"I played down at Compton (Junior College) a couple of years ago in a tournament, and their coach told me about Marin."

The Tars left by car at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, minus center Neil Traub and forward Jim Forni, who are ill. They went to Marysville where they joined the Yuba team for a bus trip north. Marin (10-1) defeated Yuba last week, 96-61, so it might have been an interesting trek.

Central Oregon's record is only 3-5, but Weston rates his team better than last year's, which was second in the state. "We've played some tough opponents," he said. "We've won three straight.

"But still, I hope Marin is tired from the drive."

The Seals Squander Another Early Lead

OAKLAND (UPI) — For the umpteenth time this season, the California Golden Seals have squandered an early lead.

It cost them a victory Wednesday night as the Philadelphia Flyers stormed from a two-goal deficit with two scores in the middle period to deadlock the Seals 2-2 before 3,610 hardy hockey fans.

The Seals managed only three shots on goal in the opening period and scored on two of them.

But Belhumeur, subbing for regular Doug Favell, then shut off the Seals for the remainder

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

Scrambling Man

By LEE TREVINO

There's a difference between luck and scrambling. The best scrambler is the player who isn't afraid to use the club that the shot calls for.

I've seen guys roll balls out of bunkers, bounce 'em off of trees, rocks and caddies, and still wind up close to the hole. That's luck. A scrambler turns bad shots into good results — and that takes skill.

Nobody can scramble well with a "pet" club. Show me a man trying to come out of a trap with a seven-iron because it's his favorite club and I'll show you somebody who's gonna scrape the sand in his backswing.

Don't lean on a certain club for small miracles. Okay, so you can hit a five-iron 70 yards into a tea cup. Don't try to chip out of tall grass with it. A good scrambler ain't afraid to use a four-iron, seven, or a wedge — if it's the percentage club.

A dude who takes the same stick into the bushes, trees and bunkers will always be scrambling — for bogeys. You can spot him anywhere. He's the one with the check book in his hand.

Harris Has A Strange Road To Top

In college at Penn State, Harris was in the shadows while Lydell Mitchell was the recipient of all the publicity and glory. Still, when it came to the pro draft, Harris was the first back taken.

He joined the Pittsburgh Steelers and as a rookie, was relegated to a reserve role, also serving as a return specialist. Then it happened. Frenchy Fuqua and Preston Pearson, the regular Steeler running backs, came down with injuries and Harris got his chance. The rest is history.

Harris tore up the National Football League for two months, tying Jim Brown's record for six consecutive games in which he surpassed the 100-yard mark. He tapered off in his final two games when his offensive line was plagued with injuries but still managed to gain 1,056 yards, just short of the rookie record set last year by Green Bay's John Brockington.

Harris was rewarded for his efforts today when he came within one vote of unanimous selction as United Press International's 1972 American Football Conference Rookie of the Year. Harris received 38 of the 39 votes cast by a panel of three pro football writers from each AFC city.

The lone vote not cast for Harris went to Sistrunk, the Oakland Raiders' defensive tackle.

The 6-4, 255-pound Sistrunk, meanwhile, was one of the better bargains of 1972. Signed as a free agent by Los Angeles, he couldn't find a slot with the Rams and Oakland grabbed him up. He immediately moved out veteran Carlton Oats and established himself as one of the toughest performers in the league.

THIS DAY IN SPORTS

Dick Lotz Working For Goal

The touring pro from Hayward, Calif., fired a five-under-par 67 on Old Delmonte Wednesday to take a one-stroke lead over the field entering today's second round of the $25,000 Laguna Seca-Delmonte Hyatt Pro-Am Invitational.

A dismal 1972 season eliminated Lotz as a automatic qualifier for the 1973 PGA tour. He blamed his poor showing to the fact he had several other side interests and spent too much time as a member of the PGA Tournament Policy Board, a position he no longer holds.

"I'm going into this coming year with an attitude of working hard on my game and I am enthused about it," said Lotz. "Now I'm only going to concentrate on golf."

Eight players shot 68s to deadlock for second place in the new 72-hole tournament. Play opened under warm sunshine Wednesday but finished with a light drizzle falling.

Southern Cal Motivation For Roses

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—For those who claim the Southern California Trojans don't have any motivation for their Rose Bowl game against Ohio State, Coach John McKay says it isn't true.

"A lot of people have been saying we don't have any motivation," he told a telephone news conference Wednesday. "But that isn't true because we would like to be the only team in the country to go 12-0 this year."

The Trojans were named the nation's No. 1 team by the United Press International board of ratings and McKay has said that the outcome of the Rose Bowl will not affect the ranking.

The Trojans practiced for 90 minutes Wednesday and McKay said he will give the players the day off Sunday, the day before the Rose Bowl contest.

The Buckeyes skipped practice Wednesday and instead toured Universal Studios.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes said reserve offensive guard Dick Mack probably will see some action at center in the New Years Day classic.

The 6-foot, 215-pound Bucyrus, Ohio, sophomore was added to the roster of centers who will replace the ailing Steve Meyers. Also seeing action at center will be Steve Luke and possibly Tom Nixon.

Meyers has a virus of the spleen and team doctor Robert Murphy said he will not recover in time for the Rose Bowl game.

PREP CAGE PROSPECTS

Terra Linda Is Improving As League Season Nears

By LEW CODDINGTON

Seventh in a series on Marin County Athletic League varsity basketball prospects.)

"At this juncture, I'm not pleased, but I don't think they're doing as poorly as the record makes it seem."

That was coach Bob Corley's assessment of his Terra Linda High School basketball team after the Trojans had lost six of seven games, dropping their season record to 4-7 before Tuesday's victory over the College of Marin freshmen.

"We have profited from our losses," Corley went on. "We are improving, and I've seen a lot of good things."

Corley's Trojans finished seventh in the Marin County Athletic League last year with a 4-10 record, and were 10-15 overall. One authentic star and two other occasional starters return from that team, but otherwise the names are new.

The star is Mark Lowey, a 6-foot-4 senior who has been moved from center to forward. He finished eighth among MCAL scorers last year with a 12.7 average and was honorable mention all-league.

The other forward spot belongs to 6-2 Scott Logan, moved from guard, and one guard post is in the hands of 5-10 Nick Mattos. Both were sometime starters last year.

Brian Morey, a 6-5 junior transfer from Utah, has moved into the center spot, and 5-11 Jeff Leaird is the other guard. When Corley has to go to the bench, he comes up with 6-3 forward Rich Mullin, 6-3 forward Mike Purcell, 6-1 guard Mike Austin and 5-10 guard Bob Buckley, who is the younger brother of last year's star John.

For the Trojans to start winning consistently, Corley says, they must start to control the tempo of the game. "I'm not saying we'll play a real slow game, but we can't run and shoot with some of these clubs," he said. Last week, the Trojans lost wide-open games to Washington of San Francisco (85-73) and Ells of Richmond (107-92).

Another problem has been fouling. Against Ells,7for example, the entire front line fouled out, and against Del Valle of Walnut Creek earlier, the Trojans gave up 33 points on free throws. "We held them to 10 field goals and still lost," lamented Corley.

The Trojans have had trouble passing effectively against a press, Corley added, but he sees this as one area where his team is improving as the season goes on.

And that, after all, is why the non-league season was created — not to run up an impressive record, but to iron out the problems and get the team ready for the league. And this fact is known at Terra Linda.

Any time Corley looks up from his desk he can see Don Lucas, whose Trojan football team lost 'em all during non-league play, but ended up in a post-season bowl.

THE SKI SCENE

Snow Chains: Necessary Evil

By CHARLIE COANE

One of the necessary evils of skiing is usually in a sack or a small rectangular box in the trunk of your car. Chains are something that no one likes to think about, much less learn how to use. But for anyone who is planning on doing much skiing during this or any season in the Sierra, chains will enter into the scene more times than one.

True, you don't have to buy chains and you may not have to learn anything about them. You can also rent them for a few dollars. But, if you're an avid skier, you're just delaying the inevitable. You should buy chains and you should learn how to use them correctly. Chains are more likely to be required during the first two or three months of skiing than during the final half of the ski season. But you cannot afford to take a chance driving around the mountains without at least having those little devils in your car somewhere.

Chains cost between $10-$35, depending upon the size of your tires. Fifteen dollars is pretty close for your basic car. But don't stop with just chains. You also need a pair of rubber tighteners ($1-$2), which can be essential for a tight fit around the tires. Those are the basics: chains and tighteners. And most of the time you can get someone (for $3-$4) to put those items on your car when the "chains required" sign pops up, and take them off when they're not needed. But, you can't always depend upon the official chain "putter-oners" (who are licensed).

Other handy things to have in your trunk include a "chain tool", extra chain strands, links, wire, flashlight, ground cloth and perhaps an old parka and gloves. Sounds like preparations for battle, and in a way it is. You have to expect the worst. The "chain tool" is a device for $1-$2 that allows you to very easily take off a broken strand.

If you're driving along and your chains break — you've got a problem. The easiest solution is to clip off the broken strand, and that's done with a chain tool. If you try it with anything else, you could be in for a real struggle. Remember, it could be snowing heavily and no help available. You can keep driving, but you'll do quite a bit of damage to your car with a broken chain. Don't worry about replacing the strand in the bad weather. You'll have no trouble running minus a few strands. The replacement strands can be put on where it's dry — again, use your chain tool.

The extra links and wire are emergency repair items. The wire could be used to fasten down a loose chain so it won't damage the car. The other preparations are strictly to aid in the comfort of putting on chains.

You can also run into situations where chains are required over a summit, and then not necessary once you've passed over the summit and dropped down 1-to-2,000 feet. But beware. You may need them again to drive on side roads or to reach your lodging.

Minnesota Is Tourney Favorite

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Minnesota's Gophers established themselves as the club to beat Wednesday when the 17th Far West Basketball Classic got under way at Portland, Ore.

The Gophers came from behind with a variety of full-court presses and zone defenses to trip Washington State 41-35 after trailing by six points in the early going.

It was the sixth straight victory for fifth-ranked Minnesota which was paced by Dave Winfield's 15 points.

Oregon's Ducks shot at a blistering 64 per cent pace from the floor and trimmed Columbia 81-56 in the classic's other opening night game. Doug Little led the Ducks with 16 points and freshman Mark Barwig contributed 14.

In the Quaker City Tournament in Philadelphia, Southern Cal's Trojans lost an opening round game by 77-72 to LaSalle. Sophomore Gus Williams led USC with 23 points while Clint Chapman had 18. But Jim Crawford got 20 for LaSalle and Bob Jones and Bill Taylor 16 apiece.

All-America Ed Ratleff threw in 29 points at Oklahoma City while leading Long Beach to its ninth straight victory, by 87-68 over Mississippi in an All-College Tournament opening round tilt. Long Beach hit at 49 per cent from the floor.

Las Vegas' Rebels took a 15-point lead early in the second half and held on for the victory. Bob Florence paced the Rebels with 33 points and Jimmy Baker had 24.

Alaska trimmed Chico State 81-78, Marymount downed Eastern Washington 75-59, MacAlester turned back Whittier 84-79 and Central Washington beat Lewis and Clark 63-52 in the Chico Invitational in California. Al Shoats hit two free throws with nine seconds to go for Alaska.

In non-tournament games, Pacific with a 55 per cent shooting streak beat Illinois State 73-64, Hayward State upset St. Mary's 91-70, Seattle thumped Dayton 92-71, Wichita State got by Los Angeles State 84-67 and Cal State Bakersfield overcame a five-point deficit with 7 1-2 minutes to go and defeated UC Davis 73-68.

NHL PLAY

Rangers, Bruins Are Surprising

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

When the infant World Hockey Association raided the Boston Bruins for four of their key performers this summer, the experts said there was no way the Bruins could repeat as National Hockey League champions.

They also said there was almost no way last season's runner-ups, the New York Rangers, could miss out on the Stanley Cup.

Well, things haven't quite worked out the way the so-called experts figured and after Boston posted its fifth straight triumph Wednesday night, a 3-1 decision over the Atlanta Flames, and the Rangers went down to defeat at the hands of the Buffalo Sabres, the Bruins moved four points ahead of New York in the NHL East and were only one point behind the first-place Montreal Canadiens.

The Rangers dropped a 4-1 decision to Buffalo and in other NHL action, Minnesota edged Montreal 3-2, Toronto and Pittsburgh battled to a 3-3 tie, St. Louis whipped Chicago 5-2, California tied Philadelphia 2-2 and Los Angeles beat the New York Islanders 4-1.

Second period goals by Wayne Cashman, Fred Stanfield and Johnny Bucyk provided the streaking Bruins with their fifth straight win and third straight over Atlanta.

The injury-plagued Rangers, who have regained the services of defensemen Brad Park and Jim Neilson plus left winger Steve Vickers were unable to threaten the Sabres' goalie Dave Dryden who lost his shutout when Bruce MacGregor tallied for New York with five minutes left in the game and Buffalo leading 4-0.

Second period goals by Danny Grant and Barry Gibbs gave Minnesota the lead and Dean Prentice added the decisive goal in the final period as the North Stars upended Montreal.

Green Bay Coach Devine Is Selected 'Man Of The Year'

Combined AP & UPI

DETROIT — Dan Devine, who took the Green Bay Packers from mediocrity to the National Football Conference Central Division title in two years, has been named Man of the Year by the Football News.

The Packers' coach-general manager was cited by the weekly paper over owner Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and coaches George Allen of the Washington Redskins, Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins, Bob Devaney of Nebraska, and Joe Paterno of Penn State.

Devine left his relatively secure job as coach at Missouri in January, 1971 to take over a team which had disintegrated after Vince Lombardi left it. Devine, 48, had a 93-37-7 college record for 13 years and won four of six bowl games.

Green Bay was 4-8-2 in Devine's first season but went 10-4 this past season, including back-to-back clutch wins over challengers Detroit and Minnesota at the end of the season to nail down the title. Washington defeated Green Bay 16-3 last weekend in the divisional playoffs.

Tennis

MELBOURNE — Bottom seed Onny-Parum of New Zealand today pulled an upset, defeating Russian champion Alex Metreveli in five tough sets in the quarter-finals of the Australian Open Tennis Championships at Kooyong, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3.

With many top seeds in the stands, interest has swung to the women's singles championships dominated by triple Wimbledon champion Margaret Court, 1971 Wimbledon champion Evonne Goolagong and Great Britain's Virginia Wade.

Miss Court who has trimmed right down since the birth of her son Daniel 10 months ago, blanked Barbara Dart of Australia 6-0, 6-0.

Miss Wade defeated former Australian champion Lesley Bowery, 6-1, 6-1 in 40 minutes.

Olympics

TAMPERE, Finland — Tampere's City Council voted 9-2, with one abstention, to ask the International Olympic Committee to consider the city as a possible site for the 1976 Winter Olympics, conditional upon the help of the Finnish government to the tune of $3 million.

A's In Close Games

SPORT SHORTS

Most major Olympic events would be held in the city itself at existing facilities, with the ski jumping held 100 miles to the southeast at Lahti, and alpine events anywhere in central Europe.

Golf

NORFOLK, Conn. — Twenty-three-year-old Lanny Wadkins and 25-year-old Jocelyne Bourassa were named Wednesday as the 1972 Rookies of the Year by Golf Digest magazine. The awards will be made Feb. 19 at the Metropolitan New York Golf Writers Dinner in New York.

Wadkins, a former U.S. amateur champion, set a money-winning mark for first-year professionals, garnering $116,616 for 10th place on this year's money-winning list, including a victory in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational. Miss Bourassa set a money-winning record of $16,098 for first-year women pros and finished in the top 10 in nine tour events, including a second in the Southgate Open.

Hockey

DETROIT — The Detroit Red Wings announced Wednesday that goalie Denis DeJordy, acquired in a trade with the New York Islanders for Arnie Brown, has been demoted to the Fort Worth Wings of the Central Hockey League after clearing waivers. DeJordy had a 5.19 goals-against average this season.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Czechoslovakia upped its record to two victories Wednesday night in a penalty-plagued 5-1 World Hockey Tournament downing of Canada.

Czechoslovakia plays Russia tomorrow night in the final game of the Colorado Springs series. There is no game tonight. Saturday night the round-robin tournament moves to Bloomington, Minn., with Russia playing Canada.

PREP NOTES

Marin Cage Records Poor Vs. Bay Teams

By LEW CODDINGTON

It is axiomatic in high school basketball circles that teams from Marin, while good enough to consistently beat their neighbors from up north, are not good enough to beat teams from around the Bay. Performances this year support the axiom.

Marin's overall record so far (not counting last night's games) is 41-37 against all outside opponents. That's not bad — any time a league as a whole is above .500, it's doing all right.

A significant majority of the victories, however, has come against teams from the North Bay — Sonoma, Solano or Napa counties. Marin has a 23-12 record against this competition.

Against the East Bay, where Northern California's basketball power is said to be concentrated, Marin is 7-10. Against San Francisco and the Peninsula, Marin is 10-15. Against others, Marin is 1-0, Redwood having beaten Vacaville.

The overall record is about the same as last year, but with one significant difference. In 1971, Redwood High School gathered prestige for Marin by winning 13 straight, including a victory over powerful Sacred Heart from the city. (When Redwood later was unable to win the Marin County Athletic League title, it appeared the MCAL was becoming strong.)

This year, no team is undefeated. The most impressive so far, Drake, has lost three times. San Marin has sustained only one defeat, but it was a whopper, 112-59 to awesome St. Elizabeth of Oakland.

In short, the situation is the same as it has been the past few years: Marin is O.K. in basketball, but doesn't rank with the best.

HIS METHOD — Fred Doar, who scored 30 points for San Marin's lone bright spot against St. Elizabeth, has a unique training method which is not recommended for general use. He missed the two practices prior to the game with a cold.

Warriors Host Cavs Tonight In Oakland

The films were of Golden State's 97-95 loss Tuesday night to the Seattle SuperSonics. In that contest, the Warriors shot a miserable 32 per cent from the field.

"What we did at practice, before we loosened up, was to sit and watch the videotape of the Sonics game," said Warriors coach Al Attles Wednesday. "We saw what we did wrong."

But doing something about it is another thing.

"They've got quite a few good ballplayers," added Attles. He said the Warrior defense must shut off Austin Carr and Lenny Wilkens or face the prospect of another Sonics fiasco.

"We should beat Cleveland," noted Attles. "But we should have beaten Seattle. If we don't go out there and do something, we're going to be in trouble. We just got by them last time."

Cleveland lost nine straight before beating Atlanta Tuesday night.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

No Need To Switch Out Of Holiday Inns

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I am a 56-year-old housewife with a portfolio of common stocks valued at $54,000. About 45 per cent is in utilities, 30 per cent moderate income stocks and 25 per cent in Holiday Inns. In addition, I have an $18,000 income which rises with inflation. Should I sell Holiday Inns (NYSE) and put the proceeds into mutual funds and government bonds? — M.B.

A. Since you apparently do not need to supplement your income, I can see no great advantage in switching out of Holiday Inns. As your portfolio is now constituted, this issue is your major source of potential appreciation, with the balance of your holdings primarily income equities.

A nine-month old strike at Continental Trailways reduced profit contributions from Holiday's Transportation Division in the second and third quarters. However, as a result of strong gains from the hotel supply business and rebounds in food and lodging operations, earnings comparisons were not significantly affected. Full year net should equal or slightly better last year's performance.

The Food and Lodging Division, which has shown outstanding strength this year, with earnings ahead 33 per cent year-to-year through the first nine months, should be an important contributor in 1973. A small increment in occupancy levels, coupled with a 3 per cent increase in room rates, would lift profits in this division by about 20 per cent. Transportation, the company's second largest contributor both to revenues and earnings, should be strike free within the coming quarter. The products division, which provides furnishings, supplies and equipment for the Holiday Inns chain as well as for other customers should extend its above-average growth record.

Longer-term benefits are anticipated from the newer, 25 per cent less costly construction methods now being introduced, an increase in the number of new company-owned units to be opened, plus foreign expansion. European inns are experiencing 70 per cent occupancy rates in older units and 60 per cent usage overall. Three units are under construction in Japan, with four more scheduled. Shares should be held for their above average long term potential.

SAFETY VEHICLE

This is Ford Motor Company's Experimental Safety Vehicle (ESV), which was delivered to the United States Department of Transportation. It was built for the government for the token cost of one dollar. The most noticeable feature is the front bumper, which extends further than conventional bumpers to allow room for a nine-inch stroke of the hydraulic strut linking the bumper to the frame.

Fairchild Makes Comeback At Redwood Highway Plant

By WAT TAKESHITA

Fairchild Semiconductor's diode plant at 4300 Redwood Highway in San Rafael, which came close to economic failure only 18 months ago, is making a strong comeback, with 1973 prospects the best in recent years.

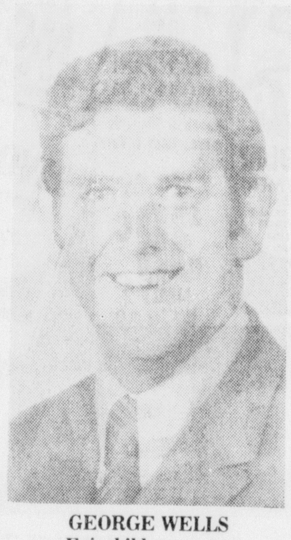
Manager George D. Wells, who took over the San Rafael plant in August of 1971, said the plant was in serious trouble that year.

"But now the tough times are behind us," said Wells. "We face the brightest year in five years. The backlog of orders has never been higher, and the chief limitation to production is the supply of raw materials like silicon."

Prospects are so bright that expensive new modern equipment is being installed to increase and upgrade production.

Wells, 37, a nuclear physicist who came from Scotland 12 years ago, said the economic decline at the Fairchild plant in the mid 1960's resulted from a decline in the diode market. He said the company was able to reverse that trend by opening up new markets and producing integrated circuits which are more in demand than the old diodes.

Wells gave the following account of the rise, fall and recovery of the first major industrial plant in the Northgate area of San Rafael:



GEORGE WELLS
Fairchild manager

Fairchild's diode plant originally opened on Jordan Street in San Rafael in 1960, with a staff of about 10 girls. In 1962, when the 80,000-square-foot plant was built at Northgate, it was the only major structure in the area.

During the peak of its production in the mid 1960's, 1,100 persons were employed at the plant, more than half of them Marin residents.

The plant's main product is the diode, a tiny device that allows passage of electric current in one direction but not the other. The diode also controls the amount of current flow. The primary use of the diodes were in computers, although some were used in radios.

As electronic technology improved, the diode was replaced by the integrated circuit (where diodes and transistors are made of one piece of material). This, together with the drop in computer sales and cutbacks in the space program, threw the diode market into a tailspin during the recession of 1968 to 1971. Plant employment dropped from a peak of 1,100 to 245 in February this year.

Wells decided that the only way to save the diode plant was to (1) go into the production of integrated circuits and new kinds of diodes, and (2) develop new customers, particularly in the consumer market, instead of relying almost completely on the computer industry.

Wells succeeded in developing new products and found new markets in the automotive, camera, and radio-TV field.

Some examples of his new products:

The Zener diode, used in conjunction with the automobile seat belt, will prevent the car from being started unless the seat belt is fastened in front.

Special diodes used for the digital clock in automobiles.

Linear circuits used in computers, desk calculators, missile control systems, Polaroid cameras, television and radios.

New products and a broadened market brought employment up to 300, with another 100 expected to be added next year.

Whereas at one time, a majority of the work force lived in Marin, the picture has changed. Today, 40 per cent live in Marin and the remaining 60 per cent is divided just about evenly between the Sonoma-Vallejo area and the East Bay.

Minority hiring ranks high in the priorities set by Wells. The minority population of the employees is 35 per cent, much higher than the average in the Bay Area, said Wells. "I'm proud of that figure. Among our toals for 1973, one of the top priorities is in hiring and promoting minorities."

Wells is the sixth manager at the San Rafael plant. After receiving his master's degree in nuclear physics at Glasgow University, he came to the United States in 1960 and went to work for Transitron Corporation in Wakefield, Mass. He then went to Sylvania in Woburn, Mass., in 1961 and to Fairchild's Mountain View plant in August of 1969. He became manager of the faltering San Rafael plant in August of 1971.

Bright Idea Turned Into A Bond Bundle

PALO ALTO (BW) — James M. Benham is a 36-year-old Californian who got an idea while he was a star salesman at the San Jose branch of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith a year and a half ago and now is a rebel against a very important system.

The system against which he is firing is the one which pays a mere 4 or 5 per cent interest on savings accounts when, he contends, the investment should yield savers 6½ or 7 per cent.

Benham said he isn't really a revolutionary but rather an "evolutionary." He foresees "a natural evolution of the capitalistic system" to correct the situation.

Bond funds are increasing but Benham contended his capital preservation fund is the first no-load fund to offer a straight debt portfolio of government securities and AA or AAA rated corporate bonds. The annual management fee is ½ per cent.

Born in Joliet, Ill., Benham studied money under Andrew F. Brimmer, when the federal reserve board member was a professor at Michigan State University, where Benham obtained a master's degree in economics.

Then, for two years, Benham was an examiner for the 12th Federal Reserve District (San Francisco) where, he said, he got a look at bank portfolios. He joined Merrill Lynch in 1963.

His idea came in June, 1971, as a result of observing in the securities industry "the hardships of small investors in buying bonds in small amounts," he said. He began reading on the subject and "picking brains."

He hired a doctor of philosophy degree candidate at Stanford University to find out how long ago a no-load bond fund could have been presented successfully and got back data indicating the answer was 25 years ago.

"Why don't big securities houses (he mentioned several by name) open no-load bond funds?" he asked. "Because their commercial bank friends wouldn't like it. There'd be disintermediation like you've never seen before."

Disintermediation is a word generally used to mean taking money out of a bank or savings and loan association and buying bonds with it.

He has prepared a booklet stating that his fund offers more safety, liquidity and yield than the savings institutions.

The booklet states that the fund will always have at least half of its portfolio in government securities and the rating on the rest of its bonds will be at least AA. A typical bank or savings and loan has less than 50 per cent of its assets in comparable quality investments, the booklet states.

Benham is chairman and president of the fund. There is a vice president, Paul K. Robertson, a lawyer who "contributes legal advice." They have secretaries — and that's the organization.

"That's all we need," said Benham. "I don't have to go out and study a company to see if the stock is going up. Moody's and Standard & Poor's ratings tell me what bonds we can buy. Outside services handle our accounting."

With assets of $100,000 Benham made the fund's first investment — $95,000 of Federal Home Loan Bank notes maturing Jan. 25, 1974, and yielding more than 8 per cent.

If the fund were a thousand times as big, three zeros could have been added to the purchase without the need of additional staff, he remarked.

The fund has a minimum initial share purchase of $1,000 and a minimum subsequent investment of $10. A redemption fee of 1 per cent is imposed on investors of $100,000 or more who pull out within 90 days of entering.

Benham said this is designed to keep out disruptive "hot money" from big corporations that might be tempted to cash their bank certificates of deposit.

Benham thinks the management company, of which he owns 70 per cent and Robertson 30 per cent, should break even when assets reach $6 million. He then can start taking out a salary, he said, and at $20 million he would hire a portfolio manager.

He said he has invested $60,000 in the project. His plan is that it will eventually pay him a good salary and also accumulate capital for him that will reach $1 million at the age of 63.

He's not aiming at more than $1 million, he said. He thinks that by the time he's 63, the way things are going, no one will be permitted to own much more than a million bucks.

Small Furniture Stores Said Facing Hard Years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The large furniture warehouse showrooms will capture a fat 15 per cent of the furniture market by 1975 at the expense of the small home furnishings retailer, says the Bank of America's Small Business Reporter.

The report Tuesday said the small retailer must learn to strengthen his operations and develop competitive innovations to create his own niche in the nation's $38 billion annual home furnishings marketplace.

Although the warehouse concept is sound, the bank said, it doesn't cover all consumers since many don't desire self-service for major purchases like home furnishings.

The store in the strongest position to compete with the warehouse concept is the small specialty store that offers services, wide choices of fabrics and custom-designed goods, said the report.

"The small general furnishings store will disappear from big metropolitan areas within a short time," states the bank. "The only avenue left for a small merchant will be in specializing — having the best selection of modern and traditional furniture or in having a top-end store with talented decorators and fine quality merchandise."

The report predicted an overall upward surge in the home furnishings industry during the coming decade. "To survive this highly competitive and hazardous field requires a tenacious and aggressive merchant, who is flexible and will offer personalized service and an appealing store image," it said.

Rental Demand Will Continue

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — There will be a continued and strong demand for rental housing throughout the 1970s according to L. B. (Les) Nelson, president of the National Apartment Association.

"Contrary to some current forecasts that rental housing soon will become a thing of the past, the market for rental apartments will continue for a long time to come," said Nelson, whose association represents more than 25,000 builders, developers, owners and managers of apartments throughout the U.S.

"There always will be a segment of our population that will demand apartment living and that demand can't be satisfied by housing built for sale, whether it is single-family detached, condominiums or other forms of sales housing," said Nelson. "Many people cannot or will not assume the responsibilities of home ownership."

Crockett's Van And Storage To Begin 76th Year In '73

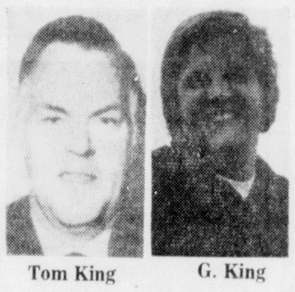
Crockett's Van and Storage Inc. is completing its 75th year of operation in San Rafael and will start its 76th year in 1973.

The company, located at 522 B Street, is operated by the third and fourth generation of the Crockett family, Thomas W. and Lavonne Keyes King and their son, Gerald King.

It was back in 1897 that the express business was launched at the same 522 B Street location by a man named Berkhart, who hauled everything from dead bodies to household goods.

In 1910, Henry and Dora Crockett opened their van and storage firm on B Street where the Independent-Journal building is now located. The Crocketts later bought the old Berkhart express business at 522 B Street.

When Henry Crockett died in 1917, the ownership passed to his stepson, Marshall Keyes, who ran the business until his death in 1963. Marshall Keyes' widow, Marie, lives at The Tamalpais in Greenbrae and is president of Crockett's Van and Storage Inc., although she is no longer active in the business.



Tom King G. King

Her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. King of San Rafael operate the business, with warehouses in San Rafael and in Hamilton Industrial Park. They are also Marin agents of the Aero-Mayflower Transit Co. of Indianapolis.

Their son Gerald, who graduated from the University of Oregon last year with a degree in economics, joined the firm this year as the fourth generation of the Crockett family to be associated in the business.

LAUREN (LARRY) LARSON, formerly with Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies, is now associated with the financial planning firm of Capital Planning Associates, Inc. of 97 San Marin Drive, Novato.

Larson, a resident of San Francisco, worked for Liberty Mutual for more than 20 years before joining Capital Planning Associates.

CONTEMPORARY HANDCRAFTS, which has been operating for two and one-half years at 1313 Fourth Street in San Rafael, will move next February to San Anselmo.

Owners Kenneth N. and Linda Ingber of San Anselmo said they will move to 635 San Anselmo Avenue where the H. P. Morphis Antique Store is now located.

Contemporary Handcrafts sells gold and silver contemporary jewelry, handblown glass, leather goods, hand-made furniture, weavings and other gift items.

The new location will be directly across the street from Flash Jewelry Supply Co., which the Ingbers operate at 638 San Anselmo Avenue. Flash Jewelry Supply specializes in a complete line of American Indian turquoise jewelry. Flash also supplies raw gold and silver, stones, and tools for the silversmiths and goldsmiths in Marin.

The Ingbers established Flash at 1 Bolinas Avenue in Fairfax in November of 1971 and moved it last September to larger quarters at 638 San Anselmo Avenue.

Ingber said he is moving Contemporary Handcrafts to San Anselmo because it is a better business location, and his two shops will be close together for a more efficient operation.

S & S MACHINE and Engineering Co. moved last week from Woodland Avenue to its new location at 767 Lincoln Avenue, suite 12, in San Rafael. The company's telephone number remains unchanged.

S & S Machine and Engineering, founded in September of 1969 at 66 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael, is owned by John P. Suacci of Greenbrae and his son, John Douglas Suacci of Novato. It is an industrial manufacturing firm that produces machinery for various industries.

DENNIS GAMBLE of San Rafael has been promoted to assistant vice president at the Marsh & McLennan Inc. insurance broker in San Francisco.

Gamble began his career as a Lloyd's broker in London, joined Marsh & McLennan in 1968, and is currently responsible for the property, boiler and machinery marketing department.

JOE WITTENMEIER of Mill Valley, charter life underwriter, has been elected president of the Marin County Estate Planning Council.

Marin County Estate Planning Council is a group that assists mutual clients in all of the various needs for accountants, attorneys, trust officers and life underwriters in solving their business and personal problems.

New Light For Repairing Eye

I-J Special Report

PALO ALTO — A newly developed lamp — slightly larger than a Christmas tree light yet producing 200,000 peak beam candlepower — has opened the way to a low-cost device for surgical "light welding" repairs of the human eye.

Developed by a division of Varian Associates, the high-intensity 150-watt lamp measures only one and one-fourth inches in diameter by one and one-eighth inches long. It is called a xenon short arc lamp after the gas which pressurizes the sealed, self-contained unit.

The lamps' first medical application, the portable xenon light coagulator, was developed by Patrick O'Malley, M.D., of South Bend, Ind., and is being manufactured by Clinitex, Inc., of Danvers, Mass.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

San Pedro Ridge Plan Presented

A handful of Las Gallinas Valley residents listened favorably last night as Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere presented his proposal for "do it yourself" acquisition of 407.65 acres of San Pedro Ridge to preserve as open space.

The 10 persons in the audience agreed the idea needed wider public airing. They decided it should be included on the agenda for the Santa Venetia Improvement Association public meeting at 8 p.m. Jan. 8 in the Santa Venetia Middle School library. Roumiguiere agreed to repeat his presentation.

All residents of Gallinas Valley east of Highway 101 and the Los Ranchitos area west of the freeway will be invited, according to Mrs. A. J. Whittle, association president.

Roumiguiere's presentation last night was essentially the same as reported in Tuesday's Independent-Journal, that the 1,212 homes in the area could form a local service area and hold an election on a $500,000 bond issue to buy the land.

The supervisor stressed that he could not speak for other board members, but he indicated the county might be willing to share 10 or 15 per cent of the cost, since the Marin County Civic Center could be included in the service area.

This would lower his earlier estimate of the monthly cost per home, Roumiguiere pointed out. He had predicted that a 20-year bond issue would cost each home between $1.95 and $2.75 a month.

The supervisor estimated the fair market value of homes in the proposed county service area at $40 million, and the market value of the civic center holdings at $15 million.

He said the first step, if valley residents were favorable, would be a hearing by the supervisors, followed by formation of the service area and a bond election — which might take a year in all.

Roumiguiere pointed out that the largest of the six parcels in the suggested open space package, the 257-acre Fierman holdings, has already been proposed for development of 1,100 townhouses.

A last-minute unannounced relocation of last night's meeting deprived Roumiguiere of a third of his audience. The talk originally was scheduled for the Santa Venetia Middle School, but was shifted to the Civic Center to coincide with a weekly meeting of the Las Gallinas Valley master plan committee. Five residents of Santa Venetia and the San Pedro Peninsula waited half an hour at the school, then went home unaware of the meeting change.

Vote Percentage Is Low Despite Record Number

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Final voter turnout figures show a record 8.6 million Californians cast ballots in the November election but the state's voting percentage was the lowest since 1948.

In reporting the official statistics Wednesday, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. said the unusually low 82.1 per cent voter turnout was caused primarily by "a definite apathy on the part of voters toward the presidential election."

He said the record number of Californians voting was due to the record 10.4 million registration, almost two million more than were eligible to vote in the 1968 presidential election.

Registration was boosted by the lowering of the voting age to 18 and permitting people to register until 30 days before the election instead of 54 days, Brown said.

Sanitary Board Decides To Reapir Leaky Sewers

The Corte Madera Sanitary Commission has decided to spend up to $16,000 to reapir leaky sewers on Granada Drive and the Marin estates area after repeated complaints from the Ross Valley Sanitary District about increased wet weather flow from Corte Madera.

According to Town Public Works Director Arthur N. Morrison, the commission voted Tuesday night to spend an initial $4,000 in sealing sewer joints beneath Granada Drive.

If the work appears successful after the next rainstorm, said Morrison, similar repairs will be done in the Marin Estates area at an estimated cost of $12,000.

Corte Madera's sewage is treated by the Ross Valley District at its San Quentin peninsula plant under a contract. In recent months Corte Madera's wet weather flow has been double that permitted, the Ross Valley district has charged.

Morrison said the problem is caused by infiltration from rain and ground water. Preliminary tests had shown that Granada Drive and Marin Estates are included in problem areas.

The commission — which is in fact the Corte Madera Town council — also authorized Morrison to get bids for a chlorinator to be installed in its own system.

Morrison said the commission added the proviso that the Corte Madera District won't pay for any pre-chlorination apparatus that might later be installed at the Ross Valley plant.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird will spend New Year's weekend on a "farewell visit" to troops in Hawaii, the Pentagon announced Wednesday.

Hitler's Parade Car To Go On Auction Block

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Adolph Hitler's $2 million parade car will be auctioned Jan. 6 at a sale here.

The German dictator's Mercedes-Benz model 770-K, owned by Tom Barrett of nearby Paradise Valley, will be one of 50 classic vehicles sold. Included will be the staff car used by German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, "The Desert Fox."

Hitler's car was built under his special supervision in Stuttgart, Germany, costing $2 million for engineering and $60,000 for materials. It is armor-plated and has two-inch thick bullet-proof windows.

The car was capable of speeds to 150 miles per hour. It has a 56-gallon gas tank and gets 3 to 4 miles to the gallon. Hitler had raised a platform built into the car to make him appear taller to parade audiences.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Amnesty Set

MOSCOW (UPI) — The government announced last night it will free thousands of petty criminals, but no political prisoners, in a general amnesty marking the 50th anniversary of the Soviet Union.

The amnesty is the first since 1967.

Action Applauded

MONTEVIDEO (UPI) — Sixteen men who survived for 70 days on an icy Andes peak said yesterday they did so because they ate the flesh of dead colleagues. Their admission drew applause from 600 persons attending a news conference.

"When we ran out of food," said Alfredo Delgado, "we thought of Jesus and how at the Last Supper he divided his body and blood to all the Apostles.

"Then we understood we had to do the same..."

Delgado said the 16 men who survived the crash of a Uruguayan air force plane in mid-October as it flew over an Andes peak in neighboring Chile considered the eating of the human flesh as an act of "intimate communion."

"It was what helped us to subsist," Delgado said.

Aide Is Killed

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — President Alejandro Lanusse, in a speech following the assassination of his chief of naval intelligence, said yesterday "nothing or no one" will thwart his plans to return control of Argentina to civilians.

He pledged an all-out battle against any violence intended to disrupt national elections next March and thus postpone the return to civilian rule after six years of military rule.

"Nothing or no one will impede the institutional normalization," Lanusse said in a nationwide broadcast made after the assassination of Adm. Emilio L. Berisso, the chief of naval intelligence.

Berisso was shot yesterday as he placed packages in his car outside a suburban market and died at a nearby hospital.

At Camp David

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon was expected to spend the holiday weekend in seclusion at his mountaintop reteat working on his inaugural address.

He and Mrs. Nixon flew by helicopter to Camp David yesterday after Nixon dispatched Maurice J. Williams, a veteran of disaster relief efforts, to earthquake-shattered Nicaragua. Williams, deputy head of the Agency for International Development, will coordinate U.S. aid to the Central American nation.

Interview Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gordon Rule, a civilian cost-cutter for the Navy who was demoted last week after he criticized a presidential appointment, has been denied an interview with Navy Secretary John Warner to talk about it.

A spokesman for Warner said yesterday that Rule had telephoned to ask for a meeting with the secretary to discuss the matter but had been told to go through "channels," starting with Adm. Isaac C. Kidd Jr., chief of naval materiel, the man who ordered Rule's demotion.

"At the moment, the secretary has no plans to see or talk with Mr. Rule," the spokesman said. "He's not closing the door to him. But he's not going to go around Adm. Kidd by talking to this guy directly."

13-Year Sentence

BELGRADE (UPI) — The Titograd district court has sentenced a Yugoslav-American to 13 years in prison for war crimes committed in the southern Yugoslav republic of Montenegro 30 years ago, U.S. Embassy officials said today.

Bob Petrich, 68, left Yugoslavia after World War II, was naturalized as a U.S. citizen and lived for 20 years near Chicago, Ill. He was sentenced late yesterday in the capital of the Montenegrin republic.

As a gendarmerie commander under German occupiers during the war, Petrich was convicted of making mass arrests of civilians and Communist partisan guerrillas in Montenegro. The court also held him responsible for mistreatment of prisoners of war.

To Delay Visit

LONDON (UPI) —Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev has put off a scheduled visit to the United States for talks with President Nixon until next autumn "because the political climate is not right" for an earlier trip, a Communist report from Moscow said today.

The report said that without a Vietnam agreement, a visit by the Soviet leader is "out of the question."

The report came from Victor Louis, a Soviet journalist who often reflects official Moscow developments.

Bombing Deaths

DUBLIN (UPI) —Irish troop reinforcements moved into towns bordering Northern Ireland today to set up checkpoints following bomb blasts Thursday that killed two teen-agers and injured more than a dozen persons.

Premier Jack Lynch's cabinet today studied security reports of the bombings that hit three small border towns. The bombs went off in parked autos.

Police said no warning was given before the explosions in Belturbet, Clones and Pittigoe, just inside the republic's border.

Peace Session

PARIS (UPI) —Chief U.S. peace negotiator William J. Porter conferred today with French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann, who has pledged to help smooth differences between Washington and Hanoi over a Vietnam peace settlement.

The Foreign Ministry and the U.S. delegation kept secret the details of the 45-minute meeting at the Quai d'Orsay palace.

Crown Prince

BANGKOK (UPI) —King Bhumipol Aduyadej formally invested his 20-year-old son as crown prince Thursday in a resplendent ceremony against a background of blaring trumpets and chanting by saffron-robed Buddhist monks.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again... Anacin.

Each year, doctors give up to 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

TRUMAN'S SIMPLE RITES

Bess Remains The 'Boss'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Veteran UPI reporter Margaret P. Richards of Kansas City, Mo., was a friend of former President Harry S. Truman and Thursday was a guest at his private funeral.)

By MARGARET P. RICHARDS

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) —Harry S Truman was buried yesterday in the courtyard outside the office window where he used to swing around and "look at the weather."

From his big mahogany desk, weighted with books and papers, he turned to the window one January day 10 years ago and remarked that there could be snow in the clouds. His visitors, including this reporter, faced a 15-mile drive back to Kansas City but the former president was in mellow mood and in no hurry for their departure.

When Truman finally rose from his chair and went out into the corridor leading from his office he spread his arms in a wide gesture and remarked that he intended to "live to be 90."

"There's about 10 more years work around here," he said.

After his tenacious, three-week long fight against the ravages time wreaks on aging hearts, Truman's died Tuesday —one year, four months and 18 days short of his 90th birthday.

There were two vastly different funeral services yesterday for two men, the first for Harry S Truman, Missourian, "retired farmer," as he once called himself. The second was for the former commander-in-chief of his nation's armed forces.

Throughout it all Bess Wallace Truman, 87, his sweetheart since he was 6 years old, sat straight, very evidently the "boss" as he called her, of her emotions, at least during public moments.

During the first service, she sat with daughter Margaret Truman Daniel, her son-in-law, Clifton Daniel, her four grandsons, and her beloved sister-in-law Mae Wallace, behind the green draw draperies through which military men carried the flag-draped casket.

Two-hundred-forty friends, relatives and a very few dignitaries filled the auditorium of the Truman Library for the first service. Among them were three Missourians, all Democrats of note, seated together on the front row. Together were Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, Sen. Tom Eagleton and Rep. William Randall of the Fifth Missouri District, which includes Independence.

Three rows back, in a less favored position, the most prominent of the political friends were gathered, including Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, who tried in vain 20 years later to repeat the presidential victory Truman scored in 1948. The congregation was mostly Truman's kind of folks—the aging men of his World War I outfit, one of them in a wheel chair, the carefully coiffured ladies of Mrs. Truman's Thursday bridge club, Truman nieces, nephews and cousins.

Taken as a group, the congregation was indistinguishable from those that gather at 11 o'clock every Sunday morning in churches throughout Missouri.

The second service was another matter—a service wholly appropriate to a former commander-in-chief of the armed services.

Cadres of servicemen, from each branch of the armed services, filled nearly a third of the courtyard surrounding the grave. The 5th Army band provided the only music of either ceremony, except for the tolling of the library's carillon.

The band played the National Anthem, "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "America the Beautiful." A 21-gun salute and later three volleys of musketry punctuated the silence of the courtyard and reverbrated between its walls.

Mrs. Truman, sitting with black-gloved hands folded in her lap, flinched visibly as the guns sounded, and Mrs. Daniel covered one ear with a hand, then sheltered her mother with an arm around her shoulder.

Both women wept silently. But Bess Wallace Truman never lost composure, even when a chill wind swept a corner of the presidential flag against her face as she walked from the courtyard with slow but unfaltering steps.

With her daughter and other members of the immediate family behind her, she paced the length of the courtyard and disappeared through a gate.

Above it, outlined against a darkening sky that hinted of snow, stood a prosaic thing—symbolic in its own way of the man from Missouri who was newly buried there. An auxiliary water tower showed the word "Independence" in big black letters just above the courtyard wall.

Gap Increases In Beef Prices Between Farmer And Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Supermarket margins for beef, looming as one of the administration's key inflation-control problems in 1973, rose to a new record in November and were one-third above a year earlier, the Agriculture Department reported today.

The department's monthly report on farm-to-retail price spreads showed the overall gap between farm and retail prices of choice grade beef rose 4.6 per cent in November to a record 45.7 cents a pound, 26.1 per cent above a year earlier. It was the second consecutive monthly rise.

The previous record was 44.8 cents a pound last August.

The spread between wholesale and retail beef prices, primarily made up of supermarket costs and profits, rose 4.9 per cent in November to a record 38.2 cents a pound, up 33.1 per cent from a year ago.

Despite these margin gains, Agriculture Department estimates showed average retail beef prices dropped in November for the fourth straight month and reached $1.12 a pound, the lowest level since last May.

Retail pork prices, backing down from a record set in October, fell 0.3 per cent to 87.2 cents a pound but were still 22.1 per cent above a year ago.

Figures for all foods ran counter to the beef-pork trend.

Retail prices for all U.S. farm-produced foods included in a typical family market basket, as reported last week by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), rose 0.5 per cent from October and were 6 per cent above a year ago.

Middlemen's margins on the entire market basket were 4.1 per cent below a year ago, while farm returns were 9 per cent higher.

Slayer Of Coed Ruled To Be Mentally Ill

SAN DIEGO (UPI) —A transient who pleaded guilty to first-degree murder in the shooting death of a University of California at San Diego coed was found to be a mentally disordered sex offender Wednesday.

Superior Court Judge Louis Welsh ordered the man, Richard K. Shoopman, 29, a transient, to be placed in the state hospital at Atascadero for an indefinite time.

Shoopman was arrested Oct. 7 in Larkspur on suspicion of murdering Holly Halvorson, 19. The victim's body was found on the UCSD campus July 29. She had been shot through the head.

Resolution To End War Urged

NEW YORK (UPI) —Rep. Bella Abzug Thursday called for a national New Year's resolution to end the Vietnam War.

The congresswoman from New York City urged all Americans who oppose the war to come to a demonstration at Washington on Inauguration Day.

"Let it not be said of us as it was of the German people: 'They knew, but they were silent,'" she said.

Television Engineers Accept New Contract

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cameramen, technicians and electricians who struck the Columbia Broadcasting System 56 days ago over a jurisdictional work dispute voted Thursday to accept a new three-year contract.

Members of the Radio and Television Engineers Union, a local of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, voted to accept the new pact by a slim 52 vote margin, 561-509. The contract provides for a 5.5 per cent pay raise each year for the technicians, in addition to two extra holidays. Technicians now earn a base pay of $305 weekly.

The technicians were expected to return to their jobs within 48 hours.

The strike had idled CBS workers in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Washington, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis.

The walkout, which began Nov. 3, involved disputed jurisdiction over new electrical equipment, and hampered coverage of football games, election returns and the flight of Apollo 17.

The union argued that the new devices would mean a loss of jobs, while the network said no one would suffer from the changes.

Frank Stanton, vice chairman of CBS, called the new contract a fair solution of the issues and said it "makes possible a return to the good relationship which CBS and the union have had for many years.

A spokesman for the union compared the strike to a "David conquering a Goliath" but he said the close vote showed the membership was not completely satisfied with the outcome.

Major Breakthrough In Treating Burn Victims

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Shrine leader Henry Struby says new methods of quick-freezing human cadaver skin have provided a major breakthrough in treating burn victims.

Struby, in San Francisco for the annual East-West Shrine football game Saturday, said a process developed earlier this year by the Shriners' Burns Institute in Boston has been so successful that skin banks have been established to store the tissue.

"We were using pig skin for a while," Struby said. "Now we can quick-freeze cadaver skin and keep it up to six months. Before, we could only preserve it for about two weeks."

Money raised at the annual East-West games goes toward financing the hospitals.

Struby, the Imperial Potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, said the skin is frozen in plastic envelopes to a temperature of 256 degrees below Fahrenheit zero.

He said the tissue can be thawed and grafted to a burn victim up to six months after freezing.

Fired Employee Shoots Ex-Boss With Shotgun

NEW YORK (UPI) —Shouting, "This will be the last person you ever fire," a former cashier pulled a sawed-off shotgun from under his coat and fatally shot his boss in the chest at the plush St. Regis-Sheraton Hotel.

The shooting of Damaso Salomon, 30, the hotel's head cashier, occurred Thursday before the personnel manager and two union officials in the hotel's second-floor personnel office during a meeting called to discuss Manuel Irizarry's dismissal.

A few hours afterward, Irizarry, accompanied by a cousin, surrendered to police on a Bronx street. He gave the three arresting officers a sawed-off 20-gauge shotgun, one spent shell and 12 unfired shells.

A police spokesman said that, during the meeting, Irizarry excused himself to go to the bathroom. When he returned a few minutes later, police said, he produced a sawed-off shotgun from under his coat.

He lined the union officials and personnel manager up against a wall, told Salomon, "This will be the last person you ever fire," shot him in the chest and fled , police said.

Plans For Curbing Animal Population

NEW YORK (UPI) —As of New Year's Day, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will desex all animals adopted from its New York facilities.

Charles Haines, president of the chapter, said, "Primarily, we hope to keep the animal population in New York City within reasonable bounds. It would be far better if there were fewer unwanted animals in the city. Much of the blame for this is the result of street corner and backyard breeding fostered by irresponsible owners."

Chinese Rally

PEKING (DPA-UPI) —Premier Chou En-lai and Mao Tse-tung's wife, Chiang Ching, led a rally of more than 10,000 persons today in support of North Vietnam's battle "against U.S.aggression," China's Hsinhua news agency said.

Newsmen Have Stout Defender Of Right To Protect Sources

FRESNO (UPI) — A newsman has a responsibility not to jeopardize the rights of another human being on trial for a crime, but beyond that, he should have an iron-clad privilege not to reveal the sources of his stories.

If he does not, the average citizen's First Amendment right entitling him to enjoy the fruits of a free press is a "hollow one."

This is the opinion, not of a newsman, but of a man who spends most of his time defending persons charged with a crime —Melvin Nitz, the public defender of Fresno County.

Nitz, who also is an instructor of constitutional law at the San Joaquin College of Law here, assesses the current controversy over whether prosecutors or judges can compel newsmen to reveal their sources as boiling down to the issue of the rights of the public rather than the newsman.

"As a citizen the First Amendment entitles me to read any information I want because I am entitled to have any opinion I want. Thus I have the right to read something the government does not want me to read. But if the government cuts off my supply then my right doesn't mean anything. My right is a hollow one," he said.

It is Nitz' contention that the public must have the ancillary right, that of a newsman protecting his sources, in order to preserve the main right, that of the public's right to know, because if a newsman must reveal his sources at the behest of the government, they tend to dry up.

But what about the situation where a newsman has obtained information about evidence to be introduced at a trial? Should he print it now or wait until it is introduced in evidence or, if the information never gets into evidence, wait until after the trial?

These are the questions surrounding the case of Los Angeles reporter William Farr who wrote a story he said he obtained from attorneys in violation of a "gag" order by the court regarding evidence which was never introduced at the Sharon Tate murder trial.

Farr subsequently was jailed by Superior Court Judge Charles Older for an indefinite term —until he tells the court where he ot his information.

"The Farr case was kind of a bad one because it wasn't a question of his getting or eventually using the information, it was a question of timing," said Nitz.

"Commenting on actual evidence before it is introduced could, in effect, have some influence on the trial of the defendants. There the reporter jeopardizes the rights of another human being.

"The court's order (in the Farr case) was a proper one. There is no question about Farr using the information when and if it is placed in evidence; if it never is, then he could publish it after the trial."

But still Nitz believes the punishment in the Farr case was too severe.

"There is no standard employed as to what type of punishment the man is to receive. This (placing Farr in jail until he talks) gets into the area of cruel and unusual punishment.

"If the idea is to get him to talk and this becomes the only concern, then they could put him on the rack and probably get it out of him in a couple of hours.

"I think the appropriate punishment would have been to cite him for contempt and put him in jail for five or 10 days. That would be enough."

On the issue of newsmen generally being privileged to keep their sources confidential, Nitz believes the trend of recent cases should give the news media cause for alarm.

"They are going to have to work for some kind of legislative protection," he said. "Unfortunately I don't see any protection coming from the courts."

Recent U.S. Supreme Court cases have indicated that a newsman has no constitutional right to withhold his sources from government inquiries.

"It would seem that the problem should be approached on the basis of who should be privileged as a newsman and not whether or not the newsman has a right to protect his sources.

"Thus it is a problem of classification. A man who makes his livelihood gathering news should have the privilege. One who does not, should not have the privilege. For example, I should not be entitled to claim the privilege by saying I was going to use the information to write a letter."

Nitz views protection of sources of a bona fide newsman as essential in rooting out corruption or uncovering some types of crime.

"This is where you dig out the dirty politician. A newsman starts snooping around and sometimes this is the only way we find out about it.

"But that sort of thing stirs up the powers that be. They get excited and feel they have to strike out at someone. Unfortunately they are striking out at the newsman."

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The last of six prisoners who escaped from the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City three years ago was captured Thursday in an apartment.

Plato-Quoting Thief Returns Stolen Goods

HOQUIAM, Wash. (UPI) —A remorseful thief, quoting Plato in an apology note, Thursday returned $400 worth of equipment he stole from the Ace Welding Co.

The burglar sent the equipment in a gift-wrapped package and wished the owners a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

An accompanying note said: "As the great philosopher Plato said, 'There is no crime greater than one committed upon one's soul.' I ask your forgiveness."

In a postscript he suggested Ace Welding change its locks, and a company official said he would take the thief's advice.

Unions Protest Vietnam Bombing

SYDNEY (UPI) —Two more maritime unions joined the Australian Seamen's Union today in refusing to handle American ships in Australian ports as a protest against U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

The Waterside Workers Union decided to impose a ban on U.S. ships starting next week while the Firemen and Deckhands Union endorsed a resolution to immediately apply the ban.

The federal secretary of the Seamen's Union, Elliot V. Elliot, in announcing the ban Thursday, said union members will refuse to take pilots or tugs to U.S. ships entering or leaving Australian ports.

The ban will apply to every ship either flying the U.S. ftag or American-owned and remain in effect until the bombing ceases.

Police said Baggett appeared at Kaiser Hospital yesterday with what appeared to be forged medical prescriptions and requested pain killers for an injury, according to police.

A suspicious doctor called police.

What The Law Says, And What Judges Do

California law specifies that drunken driving which results in death or bodily injury is a felony.

Last Aug. 10 on a Golden Gate Bridge approach, Dr. Steven M. Sidow of Larkspur was killed in an auto crash. The driver of the car that struck Dr. Sidow's was Leonard Lundgren III, a San Francisco school teacher. Lundgren was arrested and charged with felony drunken driving. -

CALIFORNIA LAW calls for a jail or prison sentence for felony drunken driving. Also, California law provides that conviction of a felony is cause for dismissal of a public school teacher.

However, when Lundgren appeared for hearing this month before Judge John A. O'Kane in San Francisco Municipal Court, the judge permitted him to plead guilty to misdemeanor drunken driving — which by law cannot include drunken driving that results in death.

Judge O'Kane then sentenced Lundgren to 90 days in jail, but suspended the sentence, fined him $500, and placed him on two years' probation.

Lundgren thus escaped going to jail and also avoided losing his teaching job.

The law contains no provision for what Judge O'Kane did.

CALIFORNIA LAW specifies that a newspaper reporter cannot be forced to disclose the source of information he uses in a news story.

William Farr was a reporter covering the Manson murder trial for the Los Angeles Herald Examiner. Somebody gave him some information, in defiance of a "gag order" imposed by Judge Charles H. Older, who was presiding at the trial. Farr used the information in a news story.

A few months later, Farr left newspaper work for awhile. As soon as he was no longer employed by the Herald Examiner, Judge Older had him called before a grand jury that was investigating the Manson case. The grand jury demanded the source of Farr's information. Farr refused.

Farr subsequently re-entered newspaper work, as a reporter for the Los Angeles Times. But Judge Older charged him with contempt of the grand jury for refusing to disclose the source of his earlier information. He claimed that, because Farr was not a reporter at the time of that refusal, he had lost his privilege to protect his source.

The only way Farr could "purge himself of the contempt," said Judge Older, was to tell him — the judge — where he got that information. Farr refused.

Judge Older then sentenced Farr to jail — indefinitely; not for any crime, for Farr had committed none, but for refusal to breach a confidence.

Farr remains in jail today.

The law contains no provision for what Judge Older did.

WHEN THE PEOPLE lose confidence in their courts, the nation is in deep trouble. Anarchy is in the wings.

It is difficult for the people to retain confidence in their courts when they see what happened to Leonard Lundgren and what happened to William Farr.

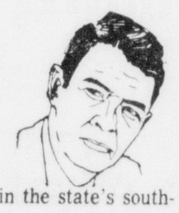
Behr's Wild Rivers Act May Mark End Of Era



By RUS WALTON

When Governor Reagan signed into law Sen. Peter Behr's wild rivers bill, he may have done more than just protect the last of California's free-flowing rivers.

He may have set the keystone for a new era (and new policies) of balanced growth in California — and put an end to the 25-year post-war period of progress at any price.

At least, that is the opinion of Rich Wilson, Covelo rancher, former president of the Planning and Conservation League, and leading exponent of proper balance between economic expansion and environmental protection.

Behr's new law establishes the California Wild and Scenic Rivers System. It prohibits the construction of dams, reservoirs or other unnatural structures on the American, Klamath, Smith or Trinity rivers. And it places a 12-year moratorium on any construction, or the plans for any construction, on the Eel River.

IN WILSON'S EYES, the Behr bill has three obvious messages:

-It announces that the state will no longer permit the rivers and resources of the north coastal area to be rigged and raped to provide unlimited waters for the developers in the central valley and southern plateaus.

-It serves notice on Southern California cities that they must accelerate their search for new methods of developing and reclaiming water resources.

-It proclaims that the California Water Plan will not continue to push more residents on top of the masses that are already congregated in the state's southern counties.

"OUR PROBLEM is not population growth as much as it is population compaction," comments Wilson. "The Behr bill will help turn off that neon arrow that has been sending people to live in southern California."

Wilson sees the passage of the wild rivers bill as another in a series of recent healthy developments that could end the age of the land speculator and rip-off artist.

The developments to which he refers are Boise-Cascade's withdrawal from the real estate development business and its massive, $65 million settlement; the passage of Proposition 20 (the coastal protection initiative) at the November polls, Governor Reagan's 1969 refusal to approve a high dam at Dos Rios on the Eel River, and the 1971 cancellation of the thousand-acre My Ranch subdivision in Sonoma County.

"I think we are heading into a period of more natural, sensible growth, a time of greater responsibility in land development and environmental protection," he says.

WILSON IS ESPECIALLY scornful of business interests that built on the flood planes at the mouth of the El River. Those interests joined the water lobby in an effort to kill the Behr bill.

"Those fellows knew about the floods when they built there. But they went ahead anyway. They should not be able to have the taxpayer come running in every so often to save them from their own stupidity.

"People have to learn to take the consequences of their own actions. These guys want free enterprise without the risk. They want the government to cover their risks, but leave their profits alone. that is not free enterprise."

THE ENACTMENT of the Behr bill may also mark the end of another era: the power of senior State Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka. Collier, who has been in the Senate since 1939, also authored a wild rivers bill. It was a ploy, an attempt to kill or weaken the Behr bill. As the Behr bill picked up strength, Collier kept amending his measure until it was almost — but not quite — as stringent as Behr's.

The plot failed. The governor vetoed Collier's bill. Not too many years ago the Collier measure would have sailed through the Legislature and been signed by the governor — any governor.

"Now that those busybodies have finally finished digging rocks up there, I'll get back to my poem."

"I wouldn't reveal my sources." "I did!"

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

President's Bombing Decision Tragic

Mr. Nixon's recent decision to unleash bombs and destruction on Hanoi in the hope it would bow to his demands for peace is tragic and insane.

A just peace was close at hand. To Mr. Nixon, however, it was less than a settlement he could interpret as "peace with honor", which to him means "American victory."

The President's inability to see the necessity for ending the death and destruction is tragic.

Hopefully, the overwhelming majority of Americans who want a prompt peace settlement will write or wire their congressional representatives demanding that all American military aid to Southeast Asia be withdrawn immediately and all funds for military purposes be terminated.

'End Justifies Means' For County Planners

The I-J is to be commended on its recent editorial, "Social Environment and Open Space," as should Commissioner Gerner who it quotes.

It is hard to know where the administration at Civic Center is importing these alleged planners from but, wherever it is, they should ship them back and replace them with real people. They are apparently symptomatic of the ridiculous, permissive morality that seems to be overcoming our local political and governmental institutions. Their creed is, "the end always justifies the means."

Appropriate note should be made of the fact that some of the prime movers on Proposition A were leaders in last year's abortive attempt to saddle Corte Madera with an outrageous, unreal housing element. We now know that they weren't just off on another crusade but, along with our high paid, "vacuum packed" county planners, had a very real, consistent purpose in mind. . .

Finally, Mr. Editor, the last two paragraphs of your editorial are gems. May our supervisors have the wisdom and good sense to understand them, give them proper consideration and take appropriate action.

Crusade Appreciative Of Campaign Support

As the 1972 campaign is drawing to a close, I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank you for the excellent coverage of our campaign by the Independent-Journal.

Your concern for the community's welfare could not have been expressed in better fashion than through the generous amount of space you gave to our cause. We are particularly appreciative of the outstanding editorial of Oct. 20 entitled, "Crusade Campaign Has Different Look" and the other in-depth articles concerning this year's decentralization of the campaign along with your general campaign coverage

Also, our thanks to you for the courtesy you extended to Sheryl Ronshausen, Marin winner of the UBAC High School Editors' Day contest, who spend a day with your good newspaper as her prize.

Speaking for the board of directors and staff, may I say thank you to you and your editorial staff, with special regards to city editor, Bob Strebeigh.

Congress Should Bar More Funds For War

Nixon's terror bombing on Hanoi and Haiphong brings to mind Hitler's terror bombing on Rotterdam and Warsaw. Hitler too thought that he could inflict suffering on humanity with impunity. But, to quote Goethe, "World history is world justice."

Last November the American people had the choice between war and peace. They chose war. Maybe they were tricked by President Nixon's election game of "peace at hand."

All of us should urge Congress to withhold additional funds for our undeclared, unjustified intervention in the Viet civil war.

Only thus can we save the Vietnamese and outselves.

Tiny Tim's Benefit Made Christmas Merry

I wish to express my appreciation for the story in your paper on our Tiny Tim's Benefit. Some 300 needy families in Marin County will have had a merry Christmas, thanks to the toys, trees and Christmas dinners that were given away. None of this could have been possible if it weren't for the donations of toys and money made to Tiny Tim's.

I wish to ask that everyone begin saving toys now, thse in good condition, so that needy families in Marin County can have as merry a Christmas next year, as they did this year.

Thanks To Cheerful Newspaper Carrier

I would like to publicly thank our newspaper delivery boy, Carl Scheniel, and to wish him the merriest of Christmases.

Carl is a credit to the I-J and is always cheerful and so willing to comply with any little request. Delivering papers on these hills in Mill Valley is no easy job, but he always seems to be enjoying his job and is so polite when making his collections. All of us on Upland Avenue really apprecaite having him for our "Paper boy."

Thank you, Carl.

TODAY'S WORLD

"One more thing: How does the company compensate employees for the coffee break time lost during vacation?"

THE NEEDLE

Non-credit cards are the newest marketing gimmick. Card holders are allowed to pay cash for their purchases in participating stores.

These cards are frowned upon by many merchants who are so busy processing credit sales they aren't set up to handle cash transactions.

Clerks dislike the new-fangled cash cards due to the time-consuming necessity of counting out change.

Consumers complain that the lower prices they pay as holders of non-credit cards cut down on the number of trading stamps they receive.

Today's shoppers carry so many credit cards there's no room in their wallets for currency.

A Kind Of Scrooge Feeling While Cutting Down Pine Trees

SOLOMONS GAP, Md. — Admittedly, it was an unusual situation in that the man from the telephone company wanted something from me, rather than the other way around. Nevertheless his politeness is worth remarking on. He called me at work in Washington and said the pine trees growing along the telephone cable right-of-way across my land had gotten too big and were going to have to be cut, so their roots would not get into the line and do who-knows-what to service. Would I okay his going in with his contract crew and getting the work done?

Well, the fact is, I had no choice; the telephone company had an easement in the deed to this land long before I became a country squire. I had known all along that someday the white pines planted by the man who had the land before, intended to grow into Christmas trees, were going to have to be cut.

IT WAS HAPPENSTANCE that someday came just before Christmas, which would seem timely except that most of the trees had grown far past Christmas tree size; besides, the honeysuckle draped in and over them and the irregular wet and dry summers of the past few years have made most of them too ungainly for decorative purposes. Still, they were luxuriantly needled and their branches would make excellent greens for mantles, tabletops, wreaths and things.

So after the man and I made arrangements to meet but missed each other because of my erratic schedule, I told him next time he called not to worry, I would do the cutting myself. He sent somebody to tie tassels of white bunting on the ones to be cleared from the right-of-way, which is marked by yellow-painted posts from the road down to the barbed wire above the spring branch.

I arrived, then, on that cold Saturday before the Saturday before Christmas, when the wind was whipping down off Elk Ridge and the chill factor was something below zero. I shook hands with my tenant's nanny goat and dug out an old Marine Corps raincoat to help bluff the wind. I sharpened the ax and went down through the woods to the cut.

He wanted seven big ones down, and a scattering of smaller ones. The ax bit easily through the sappy pine; the only problem was slicing the vines away to get a clear swing at the trunks. One of the girls came down to watch, and as I was finishing she told me she saw two boys hiding in the brush near the raod.

I went up and asked them what they were doing. They said guiltily that they were cutting themselves a little tree. They already had hacked away at one of the few saplings that was coming up in perfect shape. I scolded them mildly for not asking permission, then told them they could have whatever they wanted from the trees I had just cut down, but to leave the smaller growing ones alone. They cut the top out of one of the bigger ones and left across the fence, headed up the road, and seemed surprised when the girl told them to have a Merry Christmas.

SO WAS I. She made me feel like Scrooge. And as the boys disappeared around the curve, dragging their tree-tip behind them, she looked down the line of pines I had felled and asked, "Doesn't it make you feel sad to cut trees down?" Having committed myself to the tough-guy role, I played it out. I said, "No, not really, I've cut down hundreds, maybe thousands in my time, and if it has to be done, it has to be done."

That was not, however, what I was thinking — not when the first chip flew, nor when I was driving to town with my back seat filled with greens dripping resin that looked like tears, nor when I stopped at a lot on Massachusetts Avenue and bought a shapely Scotch pine from Pennsylvania, nor what I will think next week when I see truckloads of discarded trees headed for the cumps.

Yes, I realize almost all Christmas trees lit up in the city these days are from commercial tree farms, not brought home free-lance the way the boys up the road were doing — which is exactly the way I used to bring a red cedar home every year form across the railroad tracks down home. When you think of it commercially, a handful of young pines is like a dozen bales of hay. But I cannot bring myself, yet, to think of it that way, and I suppose that only reinforces the Scrooge image.

To which I can only add, apologetically, Happy Holidays, anyway.

Inaction On Terrorism Shows Uselessness Of United Nations

WASHINGTON — It must be said in candor that the United Nations is headed toward death's door, as a force to help the world solve any of its major problems.

It won't be buried, and it shouldn't be. Sometime it will come back to life because it is needed.

It won't disappear, and it shouldn't. But it has become useless as a place to get any significant action. It remains useful as a place for talk. Talk has some value because it shows how badly the world needs the United Nations.

PERHAPS I OVERSTATE the weakness of the United Nations. It has some strength. It has strength enough to run; it can run away from serious problems faster and further than any organization invented by man.

That is what it is doing now. It is resolutely refusing to do anything positive to help the world put an end to terrorist crimes which are taking the lives of so many innocent people.

Its prompt and decisive inaction shows the United Nations at its worst and weakest. It exposes its impotence as presently organized and adds to its impotence by forcing nations which want to do something constructive to act outside the United Nations.

HERE WAS a problem — international terrorism — so visible, so cruel, so criminal that it seemed almost made-to-order for the United Nations to deal with it.

Acts of terror kept accumulating so ominously that nearly the whole world was shocked and dismayed. Scarcely a single nation's airlines escaped the hijackings; 26 persons were massacred by Japanese terrorists at Tel Aviv airport; 11 Israeli athletes were assassinated at the Olympic Games; deadly letter bombs are being mailed to public officials around the world.

The United Nations voted 76 to 34 (with 16 abstentions) to do nothing. They did nothing by voting to "study" the problem.

Here was an international problem which directly and acutely affected most countries and potentially all countries.

Ninety-two member nations voted to make sure the United Nations did nothing. Seventy-six voted positively to do nothing and 16 others, unable to decide between doing something and doing nothing, passed.

United Nations Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim himself initiated the effort to put the United Nations behind a concerted fight against terrorism. Quickly and overwhelmingly most member governments rejected his initiative and in effect warned him against having any such ideas about the role of the United Nations.

HERE WAS AN international problem which was so clear-cut in its illegal and immoral character that it seemed it should be wholly free from ideological controversy.

It wasn't, not at any point. Every Communist government, except Cuba, and all the Arab nations voted en bloc against doing anything about terrorism. It coyly called for "posible" co-operation. And if you want to get right down to the meat of the do-nothing resolution, one of its spokesmen described it as "meeting the need for further study of the question and for exercising caution."

In approving the escapist study-the-problem resolution, the United Nations turned aside two do-something proposals. One, introduced by the United States, would have called an international conference this year to draft legal actions against acts of terrorism. The other, introduced by Italy, Austria, Canada and Britain, would have created a U.N. international law commission to draft a treaty with teeth in it.

Neither of these actions would guarantee U.N. success in dealing with terrorism. But the study-some-more resolution guarantees U.N. failure.

The United Nations can't stand many more such failures and survive as a significant force.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Dec. 29, 1962

United Nations forces occupied the Katanga presidential palace, but found that President Moishe Tshombe had fled.

President John F. Kennedy told a cheering crowd of ransomed Bay of Pigs captives that the United States would stand behind their efforts to liberate their homeland of Cuba.

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 29, 1952

The California Toll Bridge Authority voted to sell $62 million in bonds for the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and called for bids on the span, after a Sonoma County Superior Court judge threw out a suit by the North Bay Barrier Association seeking to halt the project.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors endorsed a proposal by Frank P. Myer, president of the Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce, for a new road to connect Sausalito with Stinson Beach.

The Two-Party System Is Facing Political Shoals

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The two-party system in the United States is passing through a long-term period of stress with few clues to its future —or even its survival.

Possible trends include realignment such as President Nixon's vision of a pro-Republican "new American majority," revival of a dominant Democratic coalition, fragmentation of parties or, most unlikely, dissolution of existing parties.

The best guess is that the two major parties will stay in competition in a system which usually has matched Democrats against Republicans for more than a century since the GOP replaced the Whigs.

State laws encourage two-party contests for national and state offices. Losers shift positions and bounce back. New parties organize and may bend the results of an election or two before passing into history. Congress and most of the legislatures function with a two-party system; only Republicans or Democrats win White House terms.

Yet the system is changing. There has been a steady increase in the number of voters classing themselves as independents and in split-ticket voting. Ticket-splitting has led to one party holding the presidency and its opposition controlling Congress for 14 of the 28 years ending in 1974. It was a Democratic Congress facing a Republican President during 12 of those years.

This division of power between the presidency and Congress saddens political scientists and other students of politics who believe that more "party responsibility" is the key to more effective government.

Except for 16 years, Republicans held the White House and usually majorities in the House and Senate from the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1860 just before the Civil War until the defeat of Herbert Hoover in 1932 at the bottom of the Great Depression.

The Democratic coalition that elected Franklin D. Roosevelt four times and won control of Congress in the New Deal and World War II years was based on the South, blue collar workers, ethnic groups, Catholics, big cities, the then relatively small black vote and often the farm belt.

Nixon cut deeply into those traditional Democratic voting blocs—except the blacks—to win his landslide in 1972 and an apparent majority of new voters whose support the Democrats had claimed before the balloting started.

For the foreseeable future, the Democratic party has lost its anchor in the South, which once supplied more than a third of the electoral votes needed to elect a President. No Democratic nominee has carried all of the 11 southern states since FDR in 1944. Defections to southern-based new parties came in 1948 and 1968 and the Republicans carried three to six states in the elections from 1952 to 1968.

Nixon in 1972 was the first Republican to sweep the southern states. Republicans have been slower to win southern seats in Congress and state and local offices, however.

It was in September 1967 that a Gallup poll indicated the GOP, still convalescing from its debacle of 1964, had fallen to "third party" status. That survey showed 27 per cent of the voters called themselves Republicans, 42 per cent Democrats and 31 per cent independents. Nixon won the presidency 14 months later and soon polls indicated more voters viewed themselves as independents than Democrats.

A Sindlinger & Co. survey released in late October 1972 indicated 11 million more persons of voting age classed themselves as Republicans than in July, although the number of Democrats ranked first and independents second. The survey said the shift gave many voters "an excuse for voting for a Republican President" but that the GOP drew more from independents than Democrats.

Only time will tell how much permanence there may be in that indicated massive shift.

Ticket splitting to an apparently unprecedented degree marred the dimensions of Nixon's runaway victory. The Democrats added one governorship to raise their total to 31 and added two seats to their Senate majority. The Republicans remained a minority in the House with a pickup of 13 seats, below normal for the party winning the presidency.

Split-ticket voting may indicate more voters are giving greater attention to candidates and issues, but it does not show greater concern about party responsibility for governing. Its increased use does not suggest that it is a waystop for a voter tending to shift party allegiance.

The Democrats, still hurting from their performance at their riotous 1968 convention, undertook a vast reform program which showed that Sen. George S. McGovern knew more about winning the presidential nomination than the election. Many old line Democrats were exiled and alienated.

Now the party's national committee has chosen Robert S. Strauss, who calls himself a centrist but has long been regarded as a conservative, to replace Jean Westwood, McGovern's post-convention choice. Strauss says he gets along well with Democratic governors and congressional leaders. It would be an achievement if he could get the Democratic side of Congress to present more than the blurred image that surfaced in Nixon's first term.

His party also needs to modify some of the reforms which alienated blocs of Democrats in 1972 while it keeps commitments for new reforms —such as its 1974 conference on policy and a national charter, sure to cause discontent among elements of the party.

The GOP faces a continuing conflict with the Democratic-led Congress and, like the Democrats, competition for its 1976 presidential nomination. Advice will come from all sides, such as that already heard from the Ripon Society, a liberal Republican group, which says Nixon must build the GOP into "an instrument of effective domestic policy."

Moreover, Nixon and the GOP never finished the job begun by Ray C. Bliss, when he was national party chairman from 1965 to 1969, to rebuild the party organization from the precinct level to the top.

Party realignments may be in the offing, but not necessarily with more party responsibility, which implies more uniformity in the views and votes in Congress.

Reagan Uses Veto Ax 20 Times

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed a controversial bill to permit profit-making firms to sell prepaid health care insurance in California.

The governor also wielded his veto power to kill 19 other bills Thursday, including a measure by Democratic Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti to put environmentalists on the state Lands Commission, which controls offshore oil drilling.

In addition, Reagan vetoed bills to provide disability benefits for some pregnant women, to lift restrictions on health benefits for Medi-Cal recipients, to consider waitress "tips" as wages, and to establish pilot school programs for low I.Q. children.

Reagan, who has vetoed 39 bills in the past two days, has until midnight Sunday to act on bills passed by the 1972 legislature.

The governor said he was not necessarily opposed to the principle" of the prepaid health bill by lameduck Assemblyman William Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, but agreed to veto it at the request of legislative leaders.

The measure was enacted during the final hours of the session with no public hearings and virtually no debate on the floors of the Senate and Assembly.

Reagan said the legislative leaders wanted to make a "more comprehensive" review of the bill at the 1973 session. "I agree that it should be subject to further legislative study," he said.

The bill, opposed by the California Medical Association, would have allowed doctors to form or contract with public, profit-making corporations to sell prepaid health plans. Currently, they are prohibited from doing so.

Only nonprofit organizations such as Blue Cross, Blue Shield and the Kaiser Foundation now can offer prepaid health care plans.

Campbell intends to establish a health care consulting firm when his Assembly term expires Jan. 8. He did not seek reelection to the Assembly and lost an election bid for the Los Angeles County board of supervisors.

On the Moretti bill, Reagan said increasing the membership of the Lands Commission from three to seven by adding environmentalists would "hinder the board's operation.

The three current members are the lieutenant governor and state controller, both elected officials, and the state director of finance, an appointee of the governor. The bill proposed adding four public members, each a gubernatorial appointee with expertise in ecology.

Reagan also vetoed bills:

To grant unemployment disability benefits to women workers who suffer complications as the result of pregnancy. Reagan said the bill by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, would result in an annual loss in the disability fund of $500,000 and there was no money to finance the $6 million starting costs.

To lift restrictions on the number of doctor visits and prescriptions a Medi-Cal patient can receive each month. Reagan said such a change, proposed by Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, would weaken Medi-Cal "controls."

To require employers to consider employe "tips" as wages for purposes of unemployment insurance. Reagan said the bill by Assemblyman Leon Ralph, D-Los Angeles, would be "unfair" to employers.

To establish an experimental education program for children with low intelligence quotients (I.Q.'s). Reagan said there was no need for the bill by Assemblyman Peter Chacon, D-SanDiego.

To appropriate $200,000 for the training of psychiatric technicians in community colleges. Reagan said the "excess cost" of such training under the measure by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy, R-Hanford, should not be paid by general taxpayers.

To repeal a requirement that certain Medi-Cal patients receive "prior authorization" before they visit a physician. The governor noted the bill by Sen. Peter Behr, R-San Rafael, would wipe out a key section of the 1971 reform of Medi-Cal and welfare.

To allow state employes to credit unused sick leave toward retirement. Reagan said he believed the measure by Sen. John Harmer, R-Glendale, would "tend to encourage employes to stay at work when sick" and not curb sick leave abuses.

To establish a procedure for the state to allocate money to counties for search and rescue operations. Reagan said the bill by Sen. George Zenovich, D-Fresno, eventually would cost $250,000 a year and he was opposed to creating "any new subsidy for this purpose at this time."

Farm Accidents

CHICAGO (AP) — Accidents in 1971 killed more than 6,500 farm and ranch residents and disabled nearly a half million more, according to National Safety Council estimates. The council says the cost of these accidents exceeded $2 billion.

Amtrak Leases French Trains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — French trains will start running on U.S. tracks next year as Amtrak, the National Railroad Passenger Corp., boosts its service with new high speed trains.

Four modern trains will go into service in the Chicago-Milwaukee and St. Louis-Chicago corridors, Amtrak said Thursday.

Two of those will be five-car French turbine trains leased for two years from the ANF-Frangego Co. The trains can reach 125 miles an hour. Amtrak has an option to buy them at $2.2 million each.

A Tougher Law Governing Door-To-Door Salesmen

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill aimed at protecting consumers from unscrupulous telephone and door-to-door salesmen has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor also signed a bill Thursday that requires advertisers to back up claims they make about their products.

Telephone and door-to-door salesmen will be required to identify themselves, the firm they represent and what they are trying to sell before beginning a sales pitch under a bill by Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello.

The measure also permits contracts to be terminated if they are solicited without complying with the requirements. A salesman not complying with the requirements could be charged with a misdemeanor and fined up to $2,500 in cases where a sale resulted.

Reagan signed a measure by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, authorizing the Department of Consumer Affairs, attorney general or district attorneys to request advertisers to produce evidence backing up claims they make about products.

A kind of living they never knew before.
"The closest possible thing to normal family living." That is what Marin Foundation Friends of Arequipa attempts to provide for the youthful residents of the two group homes it sponsors in Corte Madera and Kentfield. It is a kind of life most of them have never known. And it makes possible an informality and freedom, as illustrated by a jam session in the boys' group residence in Kentfield, that is impossible or difficult at most institutions for troubled teen-agers. This week's Independent-Journal Marin Magazine reports on the program in depth.
